Annual Drawingroom Sale Takes Place Friday Next

Mrs. H. A. Boomer has received several promises of contributions for her annual drawing-room sale for Council aid purposes, for which she is very thankful. As again this year, it has been impossible for her to get gifts from her friends open house on Friday afternoon next, and will welcome all her friends who can spare an hour or thereabouts to pay her a visit, to look over the table of saleable cup of afternoon tea before leaving.

Mrs. Niven has been kind enough to take charge of the refreshment room, as she has done so often before in comradeship with Mrs. Edge, who is also interesting herself in the success, although not able to be present on this occasion. All personal friends, as well as members of the affiliated societies, are very cordially invited to 353 William street, the home of Mrs. Boomer.

MY SOLDIER HUSBAND ADELE GARRISON'S CONTINUATION OF REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

Why Dicky Asked Madge To "Get Edith Fairfax On the Telephone" For Him.

The weeks following my ultimatum to Dr. Pettit that I meant to go to work as soon as it was possible for me to leave the baby had been paid for with the kaleidoscope quickness. There were so many things to arrange if I were to settle, the while Dicky and I had demanded most of my time and attention. But, found myself and my baby with the breathless feeling of one chasing a rapidly receding train.

Dicky, of course, had yet no inkling of my plan. Under Dr. Pettit's skillful hand, and his rigid restrictions, but obeyed nevertheless—my husband's regaining his old strength was no longer a source of anxiety. In fact, several days Dicky had been allowed to read his beloved book, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," and I knew it was only a question of a few more days when Dr. Pettit would pronounce him fit to be discharged and take up the work suspended by his accidental action concerning my father.

With a few crisp words, the young physician had forestalled the necessity I had felt for immediate action concerning my father.

"There is no immediate necessity to arrange for your father to become a inmate of your home," he had said. "The rent and other fixed expenses of the place over there have been paid for two or three months in advance, while your father and I am not summoned. It will be time enough for him to move his duties and I am not summoned. I knew the young physician meant to be kind, that he was still ready to serve me in any way he could, but I was inwardly amused at the way he was so easily won over. I knew, and he felt of resentment toward me for my Little cared I, however, what Dr. Pettit's opinion of me was. There were other problems far more pressing, especially those of my father's health.

Daily Bible Question Club

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE UNIFORM LESSON FOR SUNDAY, December 1, 1918.

QUESTIONS FOR TODAY.

7. Verses 21-22.—Did Reuben act as possible, and why would you or not, that he did well to conceal his regret?

8. Why is it right, or wrong, to ever plan for a minor evil to prevent in this case, and for example, in licensing the liquor traffic and, in some countries, the social evil?

9. Verse 23.—Would you say, or not, and why, that Joseph bore all this indignity with equanimity and in a dignified, manifested grief and terror?

Golden Text: Hatred stirreth up strife; but love covereth all transgressions.—Prov. x, 12.

STRIFE CAUSES MORE STRIFE.

A very little thing starts jealousy, there is strife, and when strife begins, it really war in embryo; like war, it grows and swells, and in the end, it settles nothing, but the more it operates, the more it creates more strife.

Strife is a terrible thing, and its purpose is to hurt and not help. It is a war in embryo, like war, it grows and swells, and in the end, it settles nothing, but the more it operates, the more it creates more strife.

Strife is a terrible thing, and its purpose is to hurt and not help. It is a war in embryo, like war, it grows and swells, and in the end, it settles nothing, but the more it operates, the more it creates more strife.
