OPEN, THEN CLOSE DOORS TO LIQUORS
Officials Recall Order Permitting Importation of Certain Distilled Spirits
Up to Attorney General—Interpretation of Revenue Law by Solicitor Accepted by Department Now is to Be Reviewed
Washington, Oct. 23.—Instructions to all customs collectors to admit to entry distilled spirits produced abroad prior to Oct. 3 last, "either for beverage purposes or for other than beverage purposes," were made public and recalled within a few hours today by the treasury department.
The issuance of the instructions, which were sent out by Assistant Secretary Rowe last Saturday, was based upon an interpretation of the food and revenue laws given by Lawrence Becker, solicitor for the treasury department, an official of the department of justice. Mr. Becker ruled that the revenue law approved Oct. 3 repealed provisions of the food control law which flatly prohibited the importation of distilled spirits. Now the question has been placed before the attorney general for a decision, and in the meantime the food law prohibition remains in effect.
That section of the food law, passed Aug. 10, after prohibiting the manufacture of distilled beverages in this country, says: "Nor shall there be imported into the United States any distilled spirits." Section 301 of the revenue law, passed nearly two months later, provides:
That no distilled spirits produced after the passage of this act shall be imported into the United States from any foreign country or from the West Indian Islands, recently acquired from Denmark (unless produced from products the growth of such island, and not then into any state or territory or district of the United States in which the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor is prohibited) or from Porto Rico or the Philippine Islands.
Mr. Becker held that the words "produced after the passage of this act" in the revenue law, in effect, permitted the admission to entry of spirits distilled prior to the enactment of the law. In recalling the instructions high officials took the stand that the question was one of such magnitude that Attorney General Gregory should pass upon it.
The effect of the decision of the solicitor would be to make available for importation and consumption here the great store of spirits, cordials, liquors and other distilled beverages produced abroad prior to the enactment of the revenue law. It also would permit importation of spirits distilled from virgin island products either before or after the revenue bill became law.
How far Mr. Becker's interpretation of the law became operative before the recall of instructions is unknown. The instructions were forty-eight hours old when recalled. The collector at New York, for example, had all of today in mind to permit the entry of distilled spirits into the country.
Such admission applied not only to importations arriving today but also to shipments reaching the United States at any time after the enactment of the food control law and seized by customs officials to await final disposition by the department.
"In view of the foregoing decision," the recalled instructions said, "the prohibition of the importation of distilled spirits contained in Section 15 of the act approved Aug. 10, is repealed by Section 301 of the Act of Oct. 3, 1917, and refused entry and seized by collectors under the provisions of regulations issued by the treasury department Aug. 20, may be released and admitted to entry."
If acted upon today, the effect of these instructions would have been to admit into the country large stores of such importations.

On that occasion Marquard's team was beaten in a ten inning game.

Zybsko is planning an extensive wrestling campaign this winter.

WAR MAY CURTAIL BASEBALL SEASON
Club Owners Believe Fewer Games Are Certain Next Year
Baseball men already are wondering what the status of major league baseball will be next summer if it is likely that the prosperous days of the ball players will have to be curbed until the war is over. The few players who have themselves fortunate, and next season there will be less of these than ever before.
There is sure to be some opposition from some of the club owners on the question of shortening the season. Schedules of 140 games have been tried by the National League in the past, but the 154-game programme was found to be more profitable.

No Manager Picked For New York Yankees
Col. Rupert Denies That Ban Johnson Has Singed Out Huggins for Job
New York, Oct. 23.—Col. Jacob Rupert denies that he has yet selected a new manager for the Yankees. He says that he has not even gone so far as to name a candidate, but he is sure to do so before the season is over.
He always has liked Bill Donovan personally, but friendship and business are two separate things, and the New York Club of the American League is not a business investment. The difference between the profits of a winning major league club and a loser are enormous. The expenses of running a major league club are great.
Beyond considerations of profit and loss, Col. Rupert is a sportsman who wants a winner. He is determined that the Yankees some day shall fly a championship pennant if the lavish use of thought and money can attain that end. Nobody will pick any manager for him. He is not that kind of a man. When he gets good and ready, if he wants a manager he will pick him himself, and he will select him after carefully considering all the men eligible for such a position.
At the present time the Colonel has not made his choice. He has no agreement with Miller Huggins or anybody else. He himself no later than yesterday stated this to be true. As soon as he decides what he will be the best interests of the club he will take the public into his confidence.

ITALIAN AIRMAN IN A RECORD FLIGHT
Minesola, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Carrying eight passengers, Lieut. Spier of the United States Army aviation field here in his Caproni biplane at 4:21 o'clock this afternoon, completing a flight of about 825 miles from Hampton, Va., in four hours eleven minutes.
According to officials of the Aero Club of America, the flight breaks all records in the United States for men carrying two or more passengers. In 1916 a flight was made by a pilot and two passengers from Newport News, Va., to Philadelphia, a distance about twenty miles shorter than Lieut. Resnati's achievement. The only flight with as many as eight passengers made in this country before, the club's records show, was between Newport News and Baltimore. Resnati did not use a biplane

PREDICTS AIR RAIDS ON AMERICAN CITIES
Dr. Lyman B. Powell, Back From Europe, Asserts Germany Is Planning Attack
(New York Times)
Dr. Lyman B. Powell, president of Hobart College, who has returned from the war zone, where he had unusual opportunities to observe conditions, said today that the Germans were planning to raid the American coast with their airships within the next six months. To accomplish this, he said, they were now engaged in building a fleet of huge hydro-aeroplanes which could travel from 100 to 200 miles an hour, and could rise to a height of 20,000 feet, if necessary.
"it is a mistaken policy," said Dr. Powell, "to suppress or minimize the seriousness of the situation. The American public is not even half awakened to the havoc that has been wrought by the airplanes in England. The casualties are much greater than the people over here have been led to believe. Since May 1, 2,000 men, women and children have been maimed or killed in London by air raids. The German airships recently made the Charing Cross Hospital their objective. Several bombs were hurled at the hospital, smashing all the windows in the place.
"it is just as certain a peril that we are facing in this country, but we won't realize it. French military experts have informed me that the Germans are building airships on such a huge scale that the Allies would have to work ten times as fast as they are to keep up with them. In the first place, they are devoting themselves entirely to the construction of planes that will be capable of operating from a height of 20,000 feet—airplanes, furthermore, which will be able to carry at least two tons of bombs. The Allies thus far have been unable to produce machines on such a scale. That is why French experts are so sure that America will build her machines in France. Before the American machines are brought to France the Germans will have put them out of date by a far more improved engine of aerial warfare.
"The Germans intend to settle this war with the airplane. What is more, they intend to carry the war right to our doors with a fleet of huge hydro-aeroplanes, which will be able to travel from 100 to 200 miles an hour, and will be able to carry the people here knew the truth about these things. Thus far the western line and the British fleet have stood between America and the sea. But airplanes that can rise to a height of 20,000 feet and travel from 100 to 200 miles an hour will overcome even those barriers, and she is prepared, is from that moment at Germany's mercy."
Dr. Powell said that the submarine menace was also very much underestimated. During the course of the return voyage, Dr. Powell said, he had been informed that one of the largest of the British cruisers had been sunk within the last ten days, with more than 700 men aboard.
"Thanks to Mr. Gray's of the New York Times," said Dr. Powell, "the American public has been able to get some real light on the submarine situation. His appraisal of the losses and his general estimate of the entire situation are absolutely reliable."

THE MIDINETTES.
(By Miss Bernardini-Sjoestedt in Cartoons Magazine.)
One would scarcely believe it, but the Paris midinettes really are wise little things. Those fairies of the needle, who earn a scanty living in the ateliers of the fashionable dressmaking establishments in Rue de la Paix, have received their pretty names because of their habit of taking their frugal repast de nuit (noon day luncheon) on the benches of the Jardin d'Alger. And this lunch consists, according to season, of four sous' worth of cherries, a bunch of radishes, and a few slices of sausage, the total cost of which never exceeds the traditional 30 centimes. If they have learned to live on little, one might say that they know how to dress on nothing. For haven't they made all manner of pretty things for others? So with a few yards of flimsy cotton or light wools they contrive to dress deliciously and in the latest styles, and if anybody knows about styles it's the midinettes.

FITZSIMMONS, THE GLADIATOR
(New York Times Editorial)
With Robert Fitzsimmons passed away a protagonist of an ancient profession which has always been more or less honored. He had the paralyzing blow of Epelus and the subtle skill in attack of Entellus. Indeed, he resembled both. It will be remembered that when Epelus, builder of the wooden horse, knocked out Euryalus at the games that were held to do honor to the shade of Patroclus, and battered Euryalus lay prone and written on the ground. Epelus raised him by the hand and raised him up.
So in our day Mr. Fitzsimmons had pity on the state of John Dempsey in his last classic encounter at New Orleans, praying his seconds to lead the spent hero of many unusual triumphs from the ring. Mr. Fitzsimmons was the modern Patellus, Dares, the Trojan, and died all corners at the games in memory of Anchises. Mighty in stature and in modern times, and all seemed to be in a state of a fearful silence, and hearts sank low, until Entellus, the Sicilian, cast his blood-stained cestus into the ring. He roared old Entellus scrambled to his feet, and he held him over to enter him in the big stakes next season. Manicure horsemen will watch his career with great interest.
