Promising Shortstop

THE year 1926 had just isued its first baby cry when out the spectacular deed of a Southern Meteor of the gridiron, Grant Gillis. This sturdy lad it was who heaved a pass 55 yards for Alabama University in the New Years Day battle with the University of Washington. Officially that pass went but 55 yards, but the news of it traveled from coast to coast. The throw speeded the doom of the Pacific Coast team.

Grant Gillis is now in a new role, that of a baseball player.

This on the word of Manager Johnny Dobbs of the Birmingham Southern League club that Gillis is
