NEED OF VEGETABLE FOOD.

Most People Do Not Eat Enough of It, Says Dr. Biggs.

The importance of vegetables in our diet was emphasized by State Health Commissioner Hermann M. Biggs in one of his recent Radio Health Talks.

"The value of leafy green vegetables in our daily diet," said Dr. Biggs, "has not until recently been fully appreciated even by food experts. We know that they are desirable, but not until the vitamins were discovered and certain ones found to be in vegetables was it known just how essential the latter are to most people eat vegetables, but they do not eat enough of them. While vegetables are not as cheap a source of energy for work as cereals, they are less expensive as a rule than fruit; and when economy is necessary, fresh vegetables may replace fresh fruit."

"Like fruit, vegetables tend to prevent or correct the disease known as anaemia, which is due to lack of red corpuscles in the blood. All vegetables contain valuable mineral matter needed to keep the blood in proper condition, and to build or renew bones and tissues. Hunger is often times due to the absence of vegetables in the previous meal; especially is this true in the case of children. The habit of eating between meals, and an unwholesome craving for more food is never so prevalent among those who use vegetables liberally and regularly."

"Potatoes, baked or boiled or mashed, are used practically every day by everybody; but the green vegetables of all kinds should be more commonly used, and to build or renew bones and tissues. Hunger is often times due to the absence of vegetables in the previous meal; especially is this true in the case of children. The habit of eating between meals, and an unwholesome craving for more food is never so prevalent among those who use vegetables liberally and regularly."

"Within recent years the tomato has come into its own—as a 'protective food' the 'protective foods,' as you know, are those without which certain diseases like scurvy or rickets develop. Tomato juice may be substituted for orange juice in the case of artificially fed infants."

"Almost all vegetables, except cabbage, cucumbers and corn should be used freely for children after the fifth year. For young children, vegetables should be thoroughly cooked and rubbed through a sieve."

"Much valuable food material dissolves in the water in which vegetables are cooked. This decreases their food value, unless the water is used in making gravies or soups. If vegetables are steamed instead of boiled, much of the mineral content is saved."

"During the war we were urged to conserve meat by using peas and beans instead. Peas and beans contain more protein than other vegetables, and so they may be used at times in place of meat, eggs or fish. They must not be used exclusively to replace these, however. A large dish of peas or beans may be used in place of meat for dinner occasionally; eight or nine ounces of shelled green peas or beans being equal to a quarter of a pound of beef of average composition."

"As a class, vegetables are notably lacking in fat. Hence the common sense practice of serving on them a fat such as butter or bacon fat. This not only improves their palatability, but makes good nutritive defect."

"In the winter, if fresh vegetables are not obtainable, canned or dried vegetables should be used. The effect that different methods of drying and canning has on their nutritive value is still under active investigation."

PRACTICAL PUNISHMENT FOR SHORT WEIGHT MEN

Boston, Dec. 4.—(By Canadian Press) Judge Brown in East Boston Court recently ordered two coal peddlers who had given short weight to give a ton of coal free to the families involved or pay heavy fines. One, who had sold ninety-two pounds for 100, gave a ton. The other refused, was fined $50 and appealed.

Headaches

Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.
