Of course, Rob—the brother, I mean—came with me, and somehow I forgot the cold and damp as I walked home.

'I think we must have talked for a long time as we stood on my uncle's doorstep, for suddenly Rob—my escort I mean—said: 'Elma, your face is very pale. Have I kept you standing here too long?' He talked to me for ten minutes after that, and wished me good night and left me. I rang the bell, and when my mother opened the door I told her what I might have known an hour sooner, if I had given it a thought, that I was really ill.
