COMMENCEMENT DAY AT ST. JEROME'S BERLIN

Eternal City, fed with education by the universal church, and we expect, and have the right to expect, that you will be no narrow or provincial bookmen, but educated, developed men of character.

As such for the old boys of St. Jerome's I welcome you into the ranks of the Alumni; as a Catholic man of business I welcome you as the finished product on which we build our hopes. What that means I cannot be expected to amplify. When I was asked to deliver this address I realized that I could not be expected to cover all the ground. It reminds me of the little boy who came into the house and told his mother that he had set the old hen on two dozen eggs. "Twenty-four eggs," said the mother. "You can't expect her to hatch that number." "Oh, no," said Johnny, "I just want to see the darn old thing spread herself!"

I shall not attempt it. I extend to you from the men the hand of fellowship, and I grasp in return a hand, each finger marked with its characteristic as follows: "Representative, learned, developed, Catholic gentleman."

You are trained in knowledge. Use it. It will be a pleasure and a pride ever.

You are developed, educated. Possibly this includes all the rest. It certainly includes what this age looks for, the answer to the question "Does a college education pay?" As the old pork packer said when he sent his son to college and was asked that question: "You bet it pays. Does it pay to feed in pork trimmings at five cents a pound at the hopper, and draw out nice cunning little country sausages worth twenty cents a pound at the other end. You bet it pays. Anything that pays a boy to think, and to think quickly, pays; anything that teaches a boy to get the answer before the other fellow gets through biting the pencil pays." You are certified to be educated, to know how to find things, to test them, to prove them, to reject the sophism and the sham, to choose the sterling and the right. And you have found in college, and will find in after life—if you are not afraid—that the shams often appear in leather bound books, that they speak with authority often from mouths of men in high places, that neither college degree nor high position is always guarantee of a man's sincerity or his correctness, but that no matter what appears to the contrary, right is always right, and wrong is always wrong, and that affected disdain of others is often a huge bluff to protect some untruth that dare not face attack.

You are gentlemen, for you are disciples of Him who was the most gentle of men, who respected authority for its own sake and despised rank and class when they transgressed it. Always, in private and in public the graduate of a Catholic College should be, and if he is but true to himself, will ever be, a gentleman in the truest sense of the word.

And above all you are Catholic. There is in this audience not one person but envies you in the full flush of your enthusiasm, buckling on your armor as gentlemen and scholars to go forth and do great deeds. But great deeds need great causes, great inspirations. Like the knights of old you stand, your probation ended, about to go forth and fight. Under what banner, with what motto? You have one which will ever appeal to the highest in your nature. That good Knight, St. Jerome, your sponsor, consecrates you to a cause which will be your surest help, as well as your highest aim. Humbly speaking, no organization has such aims, such order, such a history as your Church. Nothing in his life will cause the educated man such pride and self-reliance as his membership in the Catholic Church. And as she is not only glorious in herself but infinitely beautiful, in the light cast on her by her heavenly spouse, not only surpassingly great in the natural order, but as well infinitely perfect in the supernatural order, your cause will be your help. The sword of your knighthood has a miraculous blessing for every-time you draw it in defence of the Church its touch will revive and strengthen you, and like a sword of flame its very presence in your hand will be your armor and defence.

One thing more, gentlemen, you are our representatives now. The other qualities you may drop if you will, but this characteristic is yours forever. The graduate of a Catholic college is a marked man. The non-combatant in the rear may fight or flee; you have chosen the van and by you the rest will be judged. You are leaders now. After eighteen centuries of miracles is the Church of God to do its work by shrinking in the catcombs like the cataphrums of old? You cannot. The battle of to-day is with the so-called scientist whose natural science is his all. You will, who unite to your natural science the metaphysics he had forgotten, fear to meet him who comes clothed with armor on only one side. We have not to palliate or to apologize, for this is the church militant. There is no other description that can be recognized. In your graduation, and in the graduation of every Catholic collegian we see a champion come who can win who dare not shirk the fight.

Gentlemen, I have but one word more of advice. This is a practical world, so don't let your fancies get away with you. Ride your hobbies, but keep them under your control or

HE'S AT WORK ONCE MORE

Simon V. Landry Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Had Lame Back, Weak Legs, and was a Total Wreck before he was cured to Try the great Kidney Remedy.

River Bourgeois, Richmond Co., C. B., June 22.—(Special).—One more remarkable cure has been credited to Dodd's Kidney Pills in this neighborhood. The story is best told in the words of Simon V. Landry, the man cured. Mr. Landry says:

"I was bothered for over a year with Lame Back, Weak Legs, and Palpitation of the Heart and general weakness and shortness of breath. In fact I was a total wreck. I could not work as I got tired and weak so easy."

"I also had a weakness in my stomach, and it was so bad that I could not bend down to anything. I tried many medicines without getting any relief till I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"After I had used three boxes of them I was able to start work again. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to everybody."

It is cures like these that give Dodd's Kidney Pills their popularity. They not only relieve but make people able and willing to work.
