In view of the high prices paid in the country for butter and cheese local holders are inclined to ask higher prices, and the result is a condition of trade that is absolutely lifeless. About the average quantity of cheese was offered at the boat at prices ranging from 11c to 11c; 11c was the ruling price, and most of the sales were made at that figure. Locally cheese is quoted at 11c to 11c was the ruling price, and most for Quebec. An advice by mail of the Liverpool Dairy Produce report for the week ending August 18 says that "Cheese has met with a good demand, and the tone is stronger, with quotations quite 6d to 1s per cwt dearer on the week. There is now, however, a disposition on the part of buyers to resist further advance, but with higher cables, holders are firm. Medium cheese are in demand, and where showing quality, meet with a ready sale. Finest Canadian colored are quoted at 53s to 54s per cwt.; finest Canadian white, 52s to 53s per cwt.; medium qualities, full creams, chiefly United States, 46s to 50s per cwt.; lower grades, according to quality, 34 to 44s per cwt.

The butter market is a little easier, but owing to the dull state of trade, quotations are only nominal. Sales on the wharf yesterday were made at 21c to 22c. The Liverpool Dairy Report for the week ending August 18 says that butter of strictly choicest quality, Danish, has met a steady sale at last week's values, but anything at all inferior has been difficult to sell. Irish butter has met with a good demand. Canadian arrivals, which are showing excellent quality, are in fair request. Medium grades have been in good demand, but values are irregular. Choicest Canadian creamery in 56 lb. boxes, is quoted at 107s, to 110s per cwt.; choicest Irish creamery, 110s to 114s per cwt.; medium grades, United States and Canadians, at 86s to 94s per cwt. Local quotations are 22c for finest, and 22c for fine.

I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness I can show to any fellow human being let me do it now. Let me not defer nor neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again.—Stephen Grellet.

MAYO.

(Special Correspondence.)

The long looked for social took place here on Friday night. The old familiar spot, Burke's Grove, was the scene of festivities. The weather was favorable, though old Boreas might have softened his chilly temperament a little with some advantage. As he was not extreme, however, we will not reproach him too much. The pleasures were considerably more numerous than had been anticipated. They numbered in the hundreds, and they were all a credit to the occasion. Those who would not be a credit would not be tolerated, and two lone youths who strayed this way from a faroff place that evening can vouch for the very literal truth of this statement. The grove was beautifully illuminated, and the fire and fiddle scattered sweet, fantastic notes far and wide to the neighboring hills, and joy and laughter rang out all night long telling of the blithesome hours that were passing for the happy throng of lighthearted youth assembled there. Super was served on the grounds and was right well enjoyed by all. A refreshment booth furnished a variety of good things. The hours seemed to go like minutes, so wrapped in pleasure were the happy members of that assemblage. Grey dawn was peeping across the hills and the robin preparing to chant his first notes before the young folk could make up their minds to leave. A contest in the Irish jig furnished not a little interest to the close of the night's enjoyment. Four worthy representatives of this noble art entered into the competition, and each of the four did his part well. They were Messrs. Vincent and Willie Doherty, and Michael and Willie Garvey. To those who judged the contest from an athletic point of view or who can see in them the higher traits of human enjoyment in the attitude and accuracy of keeping time to music, there was on this occasion a highly creditable performance given. The task was no easy one for the judges, as the contestants were pretty evenly matched; first honors, however, were awarded to Mr. Willie Garvey, and second to Mr. Vincent Doherty.

With the awarding of these honors, the morning, being at hand, the social was brought to a close. Everybody seemed well pleased, and the older element represented on the ground that morning expressed themselves as being highly delighted with the exemplary conduct of the young folk and the manner in which the whole affair had been carried out. This happy conclusion is a guarantee of more such and just as successful events in the future.

On Thursday, the 17th inst., the people of the mission at Mulgrave held their annual picnic. The day was an ideal one, and though the crowd was not very large the picnic was a splendid success. The music was furnished by local talent, with the life thrown in, its worthy exponent, John Wymán, furnishing sweet notes therefrom. The scene of the day's pleasure was at the old site of the same events of former years, known as McDonnell's Grove. The genial Thomas has always been generous, and has gladly done his part in assisting the youth on such occasions. The tables would have done credit to more pretentious places and people. The ladies of Mulgrave won the highest applause and praise for this feature of the day's success. The refreshment booths were well furnished with everything desirable. They were nevertheless partitioned in a manner that showed that the pleasure seekers appreciated highly good and delectable things.

In the afternoon the feats of force and agility were contested with great enthusiasm. Representatives of the Germanic and Celtic races vied with each other for the coveted prizes and honors. Contests were on the programme for the robust man, for the daring boy and venturesome child, and all were closely contested and good naturedly terminated. The result of the athletic contest was as follows: Putting the shot—1st, Frank Rowan; 2nd, Fred McAndrew. Long Jump—1st, Edward Garvey; 2nd, Frank Rowan. Hop, Step and Jump—1st, Frank

The Demand for Irish Laces Centres Itself in Our Store

Over ten years ago the Council of Aberdeen appointed us to be the representatives in Canada of the Irish Home Industries Association, organized to foster a revival of the Irish Lace Making Industry. By virtue of this appointment we practically gather to ourselves a demand for real Irish Lace, not only from Montreal, but also from such American cities as New York, Boston and Philadelphia, places where the real Irish Lace is decidedly at a premium.

Our stock is complete, and that means all the more because of the large amount of money it necessarily represents. Real Irish Crochet Edgings—1 to 9 inches. Real Irish Crochet Insertions—1 to 9 inches. Real Irish Crochet Allover—18 inches wide. Real Irish Crochet Motifs or medallions, sharp's round, square, Shamrock floral effect. Rowan; 2nd, Fred McAndrew. Children's Contest—Putting the Shot—1st, John Rose; 2nd, Willie Carling; 3rd, Jos. Rowan. Long Jump—1st, John Rose; 2nd, Jos. Rowan; 3rd, Austin Martin. The day's pleasure closed about 7 o'clock in the evening, when the sun was nearing the horizon, and everybody returned to their homes well satisfied and hopeful that the future would bring many such pleasurable events.

PONTIFICATE OF PIUS X Rome, August 5.—On the 4th of August, the Sovereign Pontiff Pius X. entered upon the third year of his Pontificate. Catholics and heads of States all over the world have remembered this day—the second anniversary of his election—and have sent messages of congratulation and good wishes to him. During the day there came to the Vatican numerous telegrams from rulers of States and from many distinguished personages, expressing the congratulations of these to the Pontiff on the second anniversary of his election. The Swiss Guards that kept watch by the bronze door of the Vatican had hoisted their flag within the long passage, which opens in one direction towards the Papal apartments, and in the other towards the Sala Regia and the Sixtine Chapel. The Pontifical flag was raised in the Court of San Damaso at the quarters of the Palatine Guard. Both the Guards were arrayed in gala uniform. The band of the Pontifical Gendarmes played a choice selection of music in the evening in this same court of San Damaso.

The anniversary of his election offers an occasion to Italian anti-Catholic journals to criticize the line of action he has followed. They see but one side of it, and they are apparently satisfied with that policy which led the Pope to call upon Catholics in Italy under certain circumstances and with the consent of their Bishops, to take part in political elections as they had already taken part in municipal or administrative elections. When the subversive forces of the country were menacing the very existence of a settled form of government, the influence of the Pope was exerted for the safety of law and order. The Liberal-Monarchical party acknowledged that to this act of the Pope the government of the country owed, if not its actual existence, at least its security. Since then, the action of Pius X. has been continuous. He has practically put an end to the pretentious individualism which threatened to wreck the unity of the Catholic democratic associations, and he has re-established unity amongst them. A WAR SONG THAT LIVES.

"We are tenting to-night on the old camp ground" was a product of the darkest days of the gigantic, fratricidal struggle between North and South. It expressed in words, to a simple melody that has the peculiar, indefinable, persistent quality of 'stayin' the thought that was uppermost in the hearts of those who were watching anxiously at home, of those who were waiting in Southern prison pens, of those who were watching, waiting, and doing on the camp grounds and on the battlefields. Walter Kittredge, in his personality, was a retiring, unassuming, scarcely self-conscious man. To the last he failed to understand why so many people of whom he had never heard from all parts of the country and from other lands, wrote asking for his autograph. He had written a song and composed a melody which moved his countrymen to tears, and went about the daily affairs of his little farm as if he was one of the most obscure of his townsmen. And yet he did not lack something of recognition in his lifetime. His songs found a ready market, and a portion of the profits came to him in the form of the last of a steady and not altogether inconsiderable income. On more than one occasion, too, he had been the special and honored guest at National gatherings of the Grand Army of the Republic, where his immortal song was rendered to the stirring accompaniment of the best music and applause of thousands. And now a good old age, the life of Walter Kittredge ends, as the flow of peaceful stream may end, waiting up in an illimitable sea, but he remains and will remain as hearts are won and waiting to be held to something of honor watching—Manchester (N.H.)
