The Karn Church Organ
A Credit to Canada

The Karn Church Organ is an organ that Canada can well be proud of. It is an organ that brings forth unstinted praise both from organist and audience—an organ that is as near perfect as human agencies can make it. Endorsed by leading organists everywhere.

It is intended to restore the ancient Church of Rahon, Diocese of Meath. The church is known to all who take an interest in Irish antiquities. It is built on the site of the famous monastery, founded by St. Carthach Mochuda in the year 580, and the chancel is assigned by Petrie to the eighth century. It is stone-roofed, contains a stone altar, and round window, of which that eminent authority says that it is "not only the most curious of its kind in the British Isles, but the most ancient." The church is used regularly for Divine service, and an appeal is now being made for its restoration in order to preserve the spot where worship has been offered continuously for 1,300 years. The restorations will be carried out without in any way interfering with the ancient architecture.

The Rev Cyril Bardsley, the Hon. Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, in his recent monthly statement to the General Committee, stated that:—"At the recent All-Indian

Convention of Religions at Allahabad 400 delegates assembled from all over India, representing Hinduism, Islam, Jainism, Zoroastrianism, Judaism, and Theosophy, and each religion was given a fair opportunity of explaining its message. It was soon evident that the Christian missionary had the opportunity of giving his message under peculiarly favourable conditions. Two results are evident—first, a great advance in friendliness of spirit; and, secondly, the marked confidence, the quiet spirituality, the loftiness of tone which characterized the Christian message. 'The one thing we would not have dispensed with,' remarked at the close the Hindu Secretary of the Convention, 'was the Christian contribution.'
