"Buy Cockerels Now"

This is good advice to poultry keepers. It is given by one of The Guide's consistent poultry advertisers, The Balmossie Farms Ltd., Sask. We quote from their letter, dated Oct. 27, 1916:

Would it be possible to publish a short article in The Guide pointing out to farmers the advantage of purchasing cockerels in the Fall? Breeders will always take a smaller price now, which more than makes up for price of wintering. The expense is less, as the birds do not weigh as much as in the spring. Then, besides getting the pick of the stock as far as feather is concerned, the farmer is certain of getting satisfaction now because it is only early-hatched, well-grown cockerels that can be shipped in the Fall. Most good breeders have been unable to supply the spring demand for the past two years, and the shortage is certain to be greater this year, as, owing to the high price of feed, breeders have not as a rule increased their stocks.

We enclose an Ad. which we should like run for at least three weeks and hope it will bring the results our spring Ad. did. Thanking you in anticipation, Yours truly, BALMOSSIE FARMS LIMITED.

"Advertise Cockerels Now" is also good advice to poultry breeders. Wideawake farmers are buying their male birds now. Don't be left with a big stock on hand over winter. Let The Guide's Farmer's Market Place sell them for you. Advertising rates are given at the top of this page. Send in your order now.
