The Church Union-This Society is naking rapid advances in its organization; each day bringing intelligence of the formation of Branches in various parts of the Province. The proceedings at many of the meetings were most interesting, and the spirit which actuated those who attended most gratifying: many having travelled long distances to take part in the proceedings. From the crowded state of our columns we cannot give any details, but we will endeavor to give a summary of the proceedings at some of them in our next. Amongst the returns which have been received of the formation of Branch Unions, we may name Richmond, North Gower, lent on the Paris and Versailles railway, Goulbourn, Franktown, &c.: preparations

TERRIBLE EARTHQUAKE IN CHILI. | Further News by the "Asia."

An awful earthquake, which nearly swallowed up Valparaiso, occurred on the 3rd of April last. The first shock, which was the severest one, and which caused the falling of many buildings, and the destruction of much property, occurred about six o'clock on the morning of the 2nd, but occasional shocks, of greater or less severity, were felt for the succeeding ten days, doing more of less and managed by committees, elected appacially for that purpose by the fate-payers, after the purpose of the purpose by the fate-payers, after the purpose of the purpose by the fate-payers, after the purpose of the purpose by the fate-payers, after the purpose of the purpose of

The motion of the earth was observed to be of less violence in some parts than others, not a hundred yards distant, so much so, that old and decayed houses stood the shock better, in some parts, than newly and strongly erected edifices; and those houses in the structure of which most timber has been employed, remained almost sound.

During the eventful fifteen seconds, the houses rocked to and fro like so many vessels at sea.

local rates and managed by committees, elected specially for that purpose by the rate-payers, after much discussion was defeated by a vote of 49 to 139. The object of transportation to Van Dieman's Land has also occupied the attention of the Government. The inhabitants of that colony, is appears, are as excited in regard to this constant transmission of taint amongst them, as the Cape of Good Hope colonists were a short time since. From the consus in 1848, it appeared that three-fourths of the adult population were, or had been convicts. The discontent had manifested itself in various petitions to Parliament, emanating from the clergy, the merchants, and the leading free the clergy, the merchants, and the leading free people in the colony; and even the women of Van Dieman's Land have lately memorialized the Queen on the subject. Many respectable persons have left the colony, and a feeling of deadly hostility is said to be rising between the free and the convict colonists. There is little doubt that the griovance of the colonists will soon be removed IRELAND. Emigration from Ulster.—The Fermanagh Reporter thus refers to the progress of emigration in the North of Ireland:—"From every part of the country the people are flying, as if before the surging sweep of another deluge. Every day the different conveyances that pass through Enniskillen are loaded with exiles—those who are breaking their loaded with exiles—those who are breaking their hearts to save their lives. Whole families are moving away together under the desperate incantation of 'No hope here.' What will become of the country when those able to stay are going—the strength and hope of the land departing, and those remaining, so many of them, burdens on the country? And when this wish to fly is so strong in Ulster, what must be the feeling in the dark parts of Ireland, that are full of the habitations of cruelty? There must be an end to this flying, and where will the end be? where will the end be ?"

FRANCE. In Paris, the revision of the Constitution creates a great deal of agitation, but, with the exception of the Legitimists, who declare openly for the restoration of the Monarchy, and whose cry is en avant, all the others appear to hesitate.

The most remarkable change which has taken place in the political atmosphere of France is the bold stand taken by the Legitimists in favor of the cause of Henry V. There is no longer any concealment about the matter. They frankly proclaim that they look to a restoration of the monarchy, that they look to a restoration of the monarchy, and that in seeking for a total revision of the Constitution, their object is to alter its republican spirit, and to pave the way for the re-establishment of the ancient line of kings. M. de Falloux, in a remarkable speech in the club of the Rue de Rivoli, goes further, for he abjures all adjournment, boasts of the unhoped for success of the party during the last three years—of the education law—of the expedition to Rome—and of the reconciliation of parties who had been enemies for eighteen years—all measures so favorable to the cause, that he brings them forward as showing that the hand of Providence is on their side; and having thus strongly expressed his feelings and having thus strongly expressed his feelings and his hopes, he concludes by declaring that all plans

Frightful Accident at Seville.—In the Madrid Epoca of the 15th inst., quotes a letter from Seville, announcing that a frightful catastrophe had occurred in the garden of the Duke de Montpensier, at Alcala del Rio. The prince had caused a steam engine to be placed in it for its irrigation, and the 10th inst. was fixed for its trial. His Royal Highness could not assist at the operation as he intended, having been obliged to repair on as he intended, having been obliged to repair on that day to Villamaurique. As the boiler to be used for the experiment was not new, it was agreed that it should be slowly heated, but, either from neglect or imprudence on the part of the engineer, the boiler exploded, and overthrew the building, burying under its ruins sixty or seventy persons, assisting at the experiment as operatives or mere spectators. M. Latour, secretary of the burke or hearing of the secident, immediately hearing of the accident, immediately repaired to the spot, accompanied by the physician in attendance at the palace.

On their arrival eight dead bodies, and sixteen wounded had been
