The duel by throwing a Mill's Grenade spent $1,000, his entire years sale ary as undersheriff, to charter a special train in which to escort the homicide quartet in style to Marquette prison.

With the undersheriff are Robert Oakman, Sheriff Stein and George Toakman, Sheriff Stein and George Toakman, and Mr.

The first wave met with a stout resistance from the German defenders, and Pte. Jensen, growing impatient at the delay, dashed forward boldly without waiting for the rest of the line.

He reached and passed through the first wave, shouting at the same time to his comrades to come on.

Consequences.

He must have presented rather a terrifying appearance as he stood there at the door of the dug-out. He had one bomb in his hand, and was engaged in pulling out the safety pin of another with his teeth. At any rate the Germans inside were very soon persuaded that discretion was the more profitable policy, and they filed
