A SHEEP ATE SHOES.

Vegetarian Boots, Invented to re place Leather Ones, Have Disadvantages.

The Wearer of a Pair lay Down to Sleep in Regent's Park but was Awaken ed by a Peculiar Sensation in his Feet.

Vegetarian shoe leather is the intest fad for those who decry the slaughter of living creatures used for food. But according to the London Telegraph the new shoes have their disadvantages, and cites the following instance as narrated by their wearer. He says that a kind gentleman gave him a pair of these articles, which he found very comfortable. Yesterday afternoon, while quietly resting himself in Regent's Park, he fell asleep under the shade of a tree. How long the siesta lasted he does not quite know, but he was awakened by a peculiar sensation in his feet, and, to his intense amazement found two sheep quietly nibbling at his new boots and enjoying the feast immensely. About Half the uppers had gone. The sheep evidently thought they had come across a new and delicious vegetable, and forsook the ordinary grass in its favor. When the wearer was able to shake the animals foff he returned home in a pair of sandals, and writes that in future he will, when amid pastoral surroundings, wear ordinary leather.
The others are too tempting to herbivorous animals.

THE STOCK BULL.

Great Care must Always be Taken in his Selection

If a Breeder is Going to Keep up a uni form Standard of Excellence.

If a breeder is determined to keep up a uniform standard of excellence in his herd and, if possible, improve it, says Clement Stephenson, no more important subject can occupy his attention than the selection of a stock bull Many a moderate herd has been great ly improved and increased in value by the use of a real good bull, and many a good herd has been spoiled and reduced in value by a moderate one. In selecting a bull we have first individual merit to consider and then pedigree, but no amount of the latter will compensate for deficiency in the former. He must be true to the best type of his particular breed, sound and robust in constitution and well grown for his age. By well grown I don't mean high on his legs, but wide, deep and long, standing on short and well set legs. Particular attention should be paid to his hocks, for many a good bull is rendered useless by bad hocks. He should have a good muscular (flesh) development in the right places, straight top and bottom line, with broad, deep chest and good fore ribs. His eye and general conduct should denote good temper and the man, and, if he is old enough, see what his stock is like and, if possible, have a look at his sire and dam—in fact, all his family connections that are in the herd. The next thing is pedigree. Not only see that it contains no impurity; but that the recorded ancestors were, as far as known, good animals; if prize winners, all the better. Find out, if you can, whether they were regular, good breeders and lived to a good old age, for nothing is more hereditary, If everything is satisfactory, don't begrudge the price, and if after a trial his stock is satisfactory don't be tempted by price to part with him. Sheep Men Buy Ranges.

Reports from Wyoming state that two organizations of sheep men, one in Uinta county and one in Carbon county, have recently purchased large tracts of lands from the Union Pacific railroad, aggregating over 300,000 acres. These lands are in sections and practically insure the owner's use of intervening government lands, thus giving them control of enormous grazing facilities. The idea is to divide the tracts into summer, spring, fall and winter ranges for exclusive occupancy by members of the organizations, under strict regulations against overstocking and other practices tending toward depreciation of pasturage values. This seems to be a step in the right direction, certainly much wiser than trying to maintain alleged rights by physical force. Some risk of future inconvenience, however, is assumed in the absence of knowledge of what may be done with government lands. If rival herders of either sheep or cattle should purchase and stock these, trouble will be likely to ensue .-Breeder's Gazette.

Hundred Dollar Rams. That sheep men all over the country are sharing the general good times is attested by the high price they are paying for good breeding stock. One hundred dollar rams are getting to be almost as common as "leaves in Vallombross."-Sheen Breeder.

A TIMELY WARNING. 'Mamma-Maud and Clara, leave the room. Your father has mislaid his glasses!

There is no joy in this world equal to the happiness of motherhood. A woman's health is her dearest possessession. Good looks, good times, hap-piness, love and its continuance, depend on her health. Almost all of the sickness of women is traceable directly or indirectly to some derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Troubles of this kind are often neglected because a very natural and proper modesty keeps women away from physicians, whose insistence upon examination and local treatment is generally as useful as it is common. SHEEP PROSPECTS.

The man at present without sheep

who is not getting hold of a few or the man with sheep who is not extending his operations, intensifying his management or reducing it to a scientific basis is not living up to his privileges, says J. McCraiq in The American Sheep Breeder. Prospects never were better for sheep business. The general tendency of public choice in favor of sweet, juicy, palatable meats is putting the sheep business on a lasting and solid basis. Sheep raising is thought by many to be a kind of primitive industry suited to poor lands and undeveleped agricultural conditions. Many who raise sheep on good lands look on them as a sort of corner product or adventitious gain that demands no skill in management and little expenditure of labor at any time of the year. It is true that sheep will do better than any other kind of stock on the minimum of care. They will yield a profit on ordinary or even poor pasture alone, but they are, on the other hand, most susceptible to generous treatment. Three hundred sheep to the sourre mile on the expensive and highly cultivated lands of England does not look as though sheep were to be relegated to poor countries or poor pastures. Nei ther dees it look as though the taste for mutton belongs to countries in a primitive state of industrialism or of progress. There is every encouragement for a prospective shepherd to start now. Wool and mutton are both good and are both short of the requirements of the country. There is a strong commercial impetus which will affect labor, the demand for labor; hence population and foodstuffs for that population. Present prices are not boom prices, but are such as will enable the beginner to get a stand of stock at a price that will make it impossible for it to die in his debt.

Sheepmen do not stand much chance for a boom, as their stock multiplies so rapidly that there cannot be any long continued failure of supply. There is not much room for the boomster or speculator in the sheep business, but there is always plenty of room for the steady, consistent and confident manager who is looking for an adequate and satisfactory return for a moderate investment of capital and care. The sheep business offers a good thing rather than a big thing, and a good thing that is safe. If you haven't been in the business before, take a part of your available capital and begin now. If you have not bred sheep before, start easy and buy ordinary ewes, but figure on improving your ewe flock in the future by getting a good ram. The grand principle of success is to raise each year youngsters that are better than their ancestors of the ewe flock, and this is most economically done through the use of superior males. If it were not possible to vary your flock according to the character of the coupling, there would be no such thing as skill in breeding. Bank on a good sire, whether your flock is common or se-you have been breeding before you are acquainted with the individuals of your flock. You know the attentive mothers, the good milkers, the heavy shearers. You know the ones that breed singles and those that bring twins. Finally you know which ones answer to the accepted type and to your ideal. You know the coarse head, the heavy ear, the cloudy wool and dark skin. Hold on to the ones of tried breeding qualities and that conform to your ideal and let the others go to some less ambitious shepherd who has yet to learn the expensive lessons of old experience. A hard old mistress she is.

preeder of Berkshires, says: "I have had hog cholera in my herd eight times in 20 years, have made practical study of the disease and have tried a great many different remedies. have slaughtered animals after they had recovered, but could find no trace of the disease. I have bred sows after recovering from the disease. I think sows should not be bred for at least two months after fully recovering. At least 75 per cent of the sows proved to be breeders that had the disease. It affected mature sows less than it did younger ones. I regard any hog that has had cholera and fully recovered as immune from further attacks. I believe one of the best measures for breeders and farmers to adopt to stamp out the disease is to breed it out with the proper sanitary management. When holera strikes a herd, it weeds out the weak ones first. Those that have great constitutional vigor are able to resist the disease. Sows that have resisted and recovered will breed stronger and more vigorous pigs. We have 22 sows in our herd that have had the cholera and fully recovered, and they years.

"We have one sow 7 years old. She had the cholera badly six years ago, when I year old. She fully recovered and farrowed four litters of ten pigs each and raised them in two years and she has raised two litters each year since and never had less than nine pigs in a litter until this spring, when she had only six. She has gone through the cholera twice since and did not take it. Her pigs have been very strong and vigorous. We have had several other sows that did nearly as well. I regard a sow that has had the disease and fully recovered, if it has left her a breeder, as very valuable. I never knew a hog that had the genuine cholera and fully recovered ever to take it the second time."
