CURE YOURSELF!

A REMARKABLE BOY

When the Tree Well He Was Still Sitting Farmer Bogles was a veracious old dodger. If there was anything he delighted in, it was to secure the atten-tion of some one while he spun a yarn about the wonderful cuteness of his boy Tom, says a contributor to Ledger Monthly. Tom was his idol-his hero on every occasion; and never would the old fellow let his hero suffer for want of a good romancer.

"Ah!" said Bogles one day, as he had fairly fixed his auditor; "Tom is the most remarkable boy you ever set eyes on; he's like his old dad; you can't no more beat him than you can a woodchuck. You recollect that choice apple tree that stood down under the hillside, beside the stump fence? Well, I was mighty savin' o' them apples, I can tell you. I forbid Tom touchin' 'em, as they brought a high price in the market, and every one told; but he would get 'em in spite o' me. was his way, you know, and all I possessed couldn't stop him. One day I caught the young scapegrace up in the tree, stuffin' his sack with fruit, and I determined this time to punish

"'Thomas, my son,' said I, 'your father's callin' you. Come down.' "I thought I'd be sort o' persuasive, so it would fetch him; but he smelt a rat, and didn't budge an inch.

"'I can't, dad,' said he; 'these pesky apples are in the way."
"Tom,' I continued, sternly, for my dander begun to rise, 'come down this minute, or I'll cut the tree, and let you

"You see, my poor limbs wouldn's permit my shinnin' up after the boy. so I had to take other means. 'Oh, no, you won't dad,' said Tom;

only think how you'd mourn if you couldn't sell the apples to stuff the old toad skin.' "That was too much-to have my own boy accuse me of sech parsimunny. So, what does I to but git the axe and cut away at the bottom o' the " 'Tom-Thomas,' I cried, as the tree was about half cut off, will you come down now and save yourself?

'Never mind, dad,' said he, 'I ain't spilin.' "It was no use; I couldn't bring him that way; and so I chopped away at the tree until it begun to sway, and fell to the ground." "What! And crushed your own boy?" ejaculated his horrified listener.

"Not by a long chalk," replied Bogles, winking knowingly. "You couldn't come it over Tom in any sech way. What had he done but crawled out on a limb, and while I was choppin' at the bottom of the tree, he had been cuttin' off the limb with his jackknife; and when the tree fell, there he was still up there on the limb."

Too Easy.

"Dear Sue," he whispered, "do you think if I married you your father rould ever forgive us?"

"I'm sure he would, dear," she asserted softly. "And would he give us a house of our own?" "I know he would, dearest." "And would he give us enough to live sumptuously on?"

"I'm sure of it, Harry." "And would he take me into the firm?" "Certainly he would."

"And let me run the business to suit myself?" "Of course he would, darling." She snuggled to his bosom, but he put her aside coldly. "I can never marry you," he said hoarsely. "Your father is too eager to get you off his hands." Her Electric Spark.

"Millie!" The young lineman twirled his hat in his hands in an agitated manner and spoke in a voice that seemed to have a tradency to get away from him.

"Millie, the fact is, I-I-there's something I've been wanting to tell you for a long time, but I can't seem to fetch it. When you look at me like that, you know, it breaks me all up. I've been coming here so long that I oughtn't to be afraid, I reckon, but-but you know how it is-or maybe you don't either. I thought you're a little the livest wire I ever-I didn't think it would be so hard when 1--

Here he came to a dead stop. "Millie!" he exclaimed, in desperation, "I'm short-circuited! I've burned out a fuse!"

"Jerry, are you trying to ask me to marry you?"

"Y-ves!" "Why, of course I will, you foolish legian. "Then why don't it keep off the rain," was the triumphant rejoinder.

"It's not dark enough yet," she whis-

Thought have to be Amputated Walked with Crutch. Almost Wild with Pain.

Physician Said "Never could be Cured." Tries CUTICURA. Sleep after First Application. Cured in Eight Weeks.

I was afflicted with a terrible sore leg, caused by a cut. It became so inflamed that it was thought it would have to be amputated. My physician said that "it could never be cured, that it would remain a running sore on account of the poisonous state of my blood." When I got out of bed I could hardly stand the pain, and had to get along with a crutch. I tried all kinds of blood and other medicines without success, my leg getting worse until it became a solid sore from my knee to instep. Utterly discouraged and almost wild with pain, I gave up in despair, making up my mind that death would be a sweet relief. Casually picking up an oid paper, I noticed the description of a man who had been cured by CUTICURA remedies, afflicted like myself. I immediately procured the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA SOAP, and CUTICURA (ointment). The first application of CUTICURA a (ointment), after carefully washing my leg with warm water and plenty of the CUTICURA SOAP, gave me so much relief that I was able to sleep over half of the night, and after the third day I rected well every night. I went on improving, and in exactly eight weeks from the time I began the use of CUTICURA remedies I was able to return to my trade (carpentering), well and sound.

The temperance press is emphasizing the danger to the home in the use of "medicines" which are loaded with whiskey or alcohol. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and "Favorite Prescription" contain no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant, and are equally free from opi-um, cocaine and other narcotics. Chicago Husband's Threats Alarmed His Wife to Death.

The Man Slew Himself In His Jail Cell With a Common Pin.

Chicago, Sept. 19 .- Mrs. Florence Buehler died at the county hospital last evening because her husband, Ernest Buehler, frightened her. He threatened to kill her. She was so terrified that she fell unconscious into the street, where they were walking at the time.

Afterward Buehler was locked up in the police station, where he became despondent and committed suicide by punching the artery in his wrist with a pin. The police found him lying on the floor exhausted from the loss of blood and took him to the county jail hospital. He again attempted his life nospital. He again attempted his life in the same manner and died.

Several months ago Mr. and Mrs.
Buehler quarrelled. She filed a bill for divorce, but later, repenting, withdrew the suit, and they continued living together. Two weeks ago, when they again quarrelled, Buehler threatened to kill her. Mrs. Buehler escaped from the house and started down town to see her lawyer. She was again at-tacked on th estreet by her husband, who brandished a revolver and made threats to take her life. Mrs. Buehler then fell unconscious. She was taken to the county hospital, where she remained until her death, For a time it seemed as if she might recover, although it was evident that the fright had given her a severe shock. A few days ago she was told of her husband's suicide, and from that time her condition grew worse enny-in-the-Slot Weighing Machine Con firms the Time of a Policeman's Watch. A peculiar and laughable coincidence occurred at Peebles Corner early one morning during the past week. A man with a mellow jag happened along a few minutes before 2 A. M. and after leaning against a telephone pole for a few moments gravely lurched over and peered at the dial of a penny-in-the-slot weighing machine that stood in front of the drug store at the corner. "Trying-hic-t' see what time it is!" he gravely explained to Officer Jake Holzlin, of the seventh district, who stood at the corner.

"Well, you'll have to drop a penny in the slot and stand on the platform if you want to ascertain the time by that machine," said the officer, joking-The bejaggered individual felt in his pocket, brought forth a penny and, gravely mounting the machine, dropped the cent in the slot, and the hand spun around the dial. At that instant Sergeant Grimm appeared on the scene and asked the man with the jag what he was doing. "Findin' out th'-hic-time!" the answer. "It is just 1:56 o'clock," said the sergeant consulting his watch. "Your watch is-hic-right to a-hic -second," answered the man on the scales and this machine says it is 1:56 o'clock, which is four minutes of -hic-2." And the individual with the mellow jag, who weighed just 156 pounds, jag and all, descended solemnly from the scales and congratulated Sergeant Grimm upon the excellence of his timepiece.-Chincinnati Enquirer.

Cholly Fish-This April weather is so changeable that one is never safe without an umbrella.

Sorry for Different Reasons One laudable change in England is that a contempt for commerce, which once flourished in the higher social classes, is now everywhere discouraged. James Payn says that sixty years ago the gilded aristocracy looked down on every one who derived his income from such a source, save bankers, whom they dared not despise Young men thought themselves heroic in preferring a profession, with probable penury, to an assured competence with their hands soiled by trade. This absurd prejudice is now as much ridiculed by young men as by the old. One aristocratic youth lately became engaged to the ward of a gentleman belonging to the old school who thought it necessary to apologize for a certain blot on her scutcheon. "I have to confess, my dear sir," said he, "that her family has been quite recently connected with trade." "I am sorry-" began the young man gravely. "So am I," put in the old gentle-man, testily. "But it can't be helped." "I was about to say," continued the oung man, "I am sorry that you should have thought me such a stupendous donkey as to care two-pence about it."-Youth's Companion.
