SELECTIONS

A MODERN LAWYER.

The Enormous Amount of Work He Gets Through Daily.

I know, says a writer in the World's Work, a prominent New York corporation lawyer who is out of bed at 5 o'clock in the morning and after taking exercise is ready for breakfast at 6:30.

He is at his office in Wall street at 8 o'clock. His secretary and his stenographer await him. Dictation begins at once of the rough outline of a brief to be prepared. He follows this with dictating memoranda for his clerks, specifying certain questions of law and of fact which he desires looked into during the day.

At 9 o'clock he reads and answers important letters which his secretary has sorted out for his attention. At 9:30 he is ready for consultations with clients. From that time until 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon he is in continuous attendance, either before courts (generally of appellate jurisdiction), at meetings of boards of directors or in consultation.

At perhaps 4:30 o'clock the lawyer is ready to receive reports from his clerks. They are required to report solely upon the point entrusted to them. Little or nothing is left to their judgment or discretion. It is merely desired to know what the law and the cases are upon some particular point. They are expected to report accurately, concisely and quickly. This miscellaneous work continues until perhaps 6:30 o'clock, when the day's labor downtown is at an end.

Some lawyers even make use of the time consumed in going home. During the summer months William Nelson Cromwell spends his nights on the New Jersey coast. He goes down by boat each afternoon, but a large state-room on that vessel is equipped with desk and typewriter and stenographer, that full use may be made of the precious hour devoted to the trip. During the winter he will probably be ready for dinner at 7:30 o'clock. An office boy has gone ahead of him, carrying a green bag full of books and papers which are to be considered during the evening.

The Marine Bride.

"The marine bride," one of the best known characters in the streets of Berlin, is dead. She was usually to be seen on Unter den Linden, between Friedrichstrasse and the Brandenburger Thor. She was a worn looking woman, about fifty-five, shabbily dressed, although of good family, and always carried a heavy bag. Every Berliner knew her, and no one molested the poor, demented creature. Her story is tragic. Many years ago she was betrothed to a navy surgeon, and shortly after her engagement she received news that he was drowned at sea. The day of the fatal news she has wandered along Unter den Linden, believing that her betrothed would return to Berlin, driving through the Brandenburger Thor. In the heavy bag she carried what she believed was a suit of clothes, for which her lover would exchange his sea stained garments.

John Sharp Williams and Tom Reed.

There is no better story teller in Congress than the Hon. John Sharp Williams, the leader of the minority.

One of the stories told by Mr. Williams concerned the late Speaker Thomas B. Reed.

"One day," said Mr. Williams, "I met Mr. Reed coming out of the cloakroom and he said to me in that peculiar drawl of his, 'Williams, whatever makes you such a bitter partisan?'"

"Well, Mr. Speaker, that's pretty good coming from you, isn't it?" I replied.

"Never mind me," he replied, "but you are such a bitter partisan?"

"Well, I'll tell you, I said, 'You know I never saw a Republican until I was thirty-eight years old, and I can't get used to them somehow.'"

"He looked at me reproachfully and walked away without another word,"—Baltimore Sun.

Australia's New Premier.

In a note upon Mr. Watson, the new Australian premier, the Outlook of London says: "A composer by trade, he, like many of his craft in Australia, became a prominent trade union leader in Sydney some twelve years ago. He is still in the prime of life, a sober minded, self contained, determined man, one who recognizes clearly what he and his class want and what they believe they can achieve by constitutional means. He is deemed a quiet, reserved business man, with a certain talent for intrigue in the sense that he knows perfectly well how to drive a hard political bargain with a harassed ministry and has never failed to insist upon its execution to the letter. On the other hand, even his political opponents acknowledge that he acts up to his promises."

Wanted It to Show.

John S. Sargent while he was painting the portrait of James Whitcomb Riley in Philadelphia narrated some of the vicissitudes of a portrait painter's life. "Once, I remember," he said, "I did a half length of a rich Londoner. The man was a coarse, high colored type. He made rather a good subject. When the portrait was done he stood off and studied it very closely. 'Well,' said I, 'Well, said he, 'It's excellent, only,' he added, 'you have left out one very essential feature.' 'Excuse me, but,' I faltered, 'I thought you wouldn't care to have the ear—or wart reproduced.' 'Hang it,' he said, 'I'm talking about the diamond pin, not the wart!'"

WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS CLARA GRAECEN.

The Bright Young Clerk of the Treasury Department.

There are a number of women employed in various positions of responsibility in the different departments in the national capital, but perhaps the most remarkable position held by any woman under the government is occupied by Miss Clara Graecen, who is the law clerk of the treasury at Washington.

A mere girl, slight of figure, with fluffy blond hair, one would never imagine that she could be an expert writer of legal opinions for one of the executive departments. Yet such is her business, and she obtained her place purely through merit and superior ability. It pays $2,000 a year and is the only position of the kind under the government that was ever held by a woman. Miss Graecen went to Washington from Kalamazoo, Mich., some eight years ago. Though still in her teens, she was a proficient stenographer and, by passing highest in a competitive examination, secured employment as a typewriter in the treasury. Before long she earned for herself the reputation of the most rapid shorthand writer in the department. Her evenings she spent in studying law, and after awhile some of the cases that came into the comptroller's office were referred to her for decision. She showed such lucidity and legal accuracy in the preparation of such papers that when, a few years ago, the place of law clerk fell vacant, it was given to Miss Graecen by Secretary Gage.

The Meat Chopper.

Have a meat chopper in your kitchen and use it freely. Anything that has to be chopped can be passed through it with good results.

By passing cheese through the machine it can be prepared for a rabbit in about one-fourth of the time required for grating it. This is especially recommended for cheese that is a trifle stale, for it comes out in fine, light flakes, with no hint of its apparent age. The machine prepared cheese is the best for sprinkling spaghetti, since it is free from the lumps which are apt to be found in cheese which has been grated or chopped in a bowl with a knife.

There was a time when vegetable soup on the day's menu meant hours of preparation and cooking. With the use of the machine in preparing the vegetables time and fuel are saved, and the result is superior in flavor and appearance to the soup made in the old laborious way. While the meat is cooking over a slow fire to extract all the juices the vegetables are pared, then placed in cold water. Each kind is chopped by itself, using the different knives for the various degrees of fineness desirable for the kind of vegetables used. Cabbage should be chopped with the coarsest knife, whether it is to be used in soup or boiled by itself; and served with a cream dressing. Carrots, onions, parsnips, turnips, etc., should be chopped with the medium sized knife or the smallest of the blades, for the finer they are chopped the less time required for cooking. When the soup is made these vegetables may be strained out and used with chopped meat for vegetable hash or served in the soup itself, since the particles are sufficiently dainty to please the most fastidious.—Woman's Home Companion.

International Bible Lesson for Tomorrow—Obadiah and Elijah—I Kings 18, 1-18.

Golden Text—"I thy servant, fear the Lord from my youth."

We have in this lesson the study of two different types of religious character like Fearful and Faithful in Pilgrims' Progress. They are both men of God and doing His work, but in very different ways. Ungodly men like Ahab know right well they are best served by God, fearing conscientious servants, so Obadiah is in charge of wicked king's household. Joseph, Daniel, Nehemiah, Ezra, Mordecai and the Saints in Caesar's household are men of God; not I but thou and faithful servants are used by the grace of a God of love to promote the welfare of the ungodly masters for time and eternity if they will only repent. Though God withheld the rain He did not restrain His grace from Ahab and Jezebel, who so heartily hated Elijah, the man of God. God's time had arrived to send the long-wished-for rain, and He sends Elijah from his hiding place, who, meeting Obadiah, would notify the King, through his faithful servant of the prophets' arrival, but not until Elijah assures Obadiah with a solemn oath that he would meet Ahab that Obadiah would not fail. His conduct has brought trouble on themselves and others, to blame and accuse the innocent. See how boldly the King charged Elijah, but Ahab has met his match; not I but thou and thy father's house are the troublemakers in disobeying God and following Balaam. Nothing creates more trouble to any church or state than the impatience and sense of their authority. Look out for a big battle in our next lesson between one man inspired by the Holy Spirit of God and four hundred and fifty poor, deluded priests of Babel, who accept Elijah's challenge.
