There was just one reason why the Widow Bidwell refused the matrimonial offer tendered her by Editor Flint of the Weekly Clarion and Fergus County Advertiser. Editor Flint had owned and edited the Clarion for many years. When he finally made up his When he finally made up his mind to marry the Widow Bidwell, there was no doubt that he would be a success as a Benedict. He struck a snag, however. The widow had been obliged to turn to dressmaking since her husband's death, and she did not rank with the Four Hundred of the village, but she was a lover of poetry and she had dreams of poets. While this kept her grocery bill down, it in-

He had laid his fortyyear-old heart at a woman's feet, and she had spurned it. He either wanted to commit suicide or secure revenge, and after figuring up that the Clarion plant was worth about $4,000 he decided to hang on to earth. The first in-stallment of his revenge was shown in Don't think that Bu-Ju is not effective because it does not "tearthings loose." his next issue, when he said: "We take pleasure in informing our readers that a brother of the Widow Bidwell, who writes beautiful verse under the name of Flossie, has just died and left her a fortune estimated at $100,000. She has our heartiest con-gratulations."

Of course the public read the Item, and of course the widow read it. There wasn't a word of truth in it, but when people came and showered their congratulations she couldn't bring herself to deny the story. She was even thankful to the Clarion for publishing the canard. The issue of the following week pursued the matter further.

"We understand," it said, "that the fortune left to the Widow Bidwell by her deceased brother in the west will go $50,000 better than at first reported. There are reports afloat that she will remove to New York city as soon as she comes into possession and buy a dence on Fifth avenue. Her poem this week is the best thing in the pa

There were more congratulations and the widow got deeper into the toils. It was so nice to be patted on the back and soft soaped that she couldn't bring herself to deny the re-

Shaw to defend him. The trial is fixed for Friday next, at 10 o'clock. "Rev." A. E. Henderson, who was formerly secretary-treasurer and who is in Chicago, will return to help his brother fight the case. His ostensible occupation was selling Rohemian oats to farmers at $5 a bushel and sailing mighty close to prison as a swindler, but he had the hair and face and eyes of a poet. Even the fat and healthy editor had to admit that. The caller wanted to insert a small ad. and ask about the Widow Bidwell. He had seen the notices in the Clarion about her legacy, and be wanted a few pointers. Editor Flint praised the woman who had jumped on his bleeding heart. Aye, he spoke in highest terms of her, and even told Mr. Harold De Lisle how he could get an introduction to her.

Then the third issue said:
"We had a pleasant call the other day from Mr. Harold De Lisle, who has just made a million dollars out of Pennsylvania oil. We understand that No man's credit ever becomes so days. bad that he can't borrow trouble.

necting his name with that of a rich and prominent widow on Chestnut street.

Mr. De Lisle was duly introduced to the Widow Bidwell. She had no sooner set eyes on him than her heart began to palpitate. The poet had come. He looked and dressed the part. He also acted it. Nothing was said of her dressmaking on the one hand nor of his oat business on the other. They talked of sonnets and poems and idyls and the widow was not in the hotel dining room to note the quantity of corned beef and cabbage he got away with at dinner. There was a fourth notice in the Clarion. The spurned editor hadn't much to do with auction bills just then, and he had time to keep track of affairs on Chestnut street. He had been told that Mr. Harold De Lisle was only a traveling agent for a gang of eastern swindlers, but he wasn't going to say so. On the contrary, what he said was:

"The wealthy and distinguished Mr. De Lisle is still with us, and if he has not won the heart of a Reed City lady then rumor has gone far astray. The wedding will probably be a quiet affair, and bride and groom may make a honey moon trip to Europe."

The Bohemian oats man who looked like a poet and the widow dressmaker who really wrote rhymes were not exactly frank with each other. He never asked the name of her brother or what disease he died of. He never asked if that fortune had come or when it might be expected.

On her part, she didn't ask in what part of the Keystone State his oil well was situated or what national bank he honored with his deposits. They read the Clarion and trusted in each other.

There were more farmers waiting to buy Bohemian oats and find a crop of weeds, but still Harold De Lisle lingered. There were dresses that customers were waiting for, but still the widow's sewing machine was silent. The languidness and lethargy of looking like a poet and being a poet beat sliding down ifil all hollow. The fifth "puff" in the Clarion was a send-off.

"The event of the season occurred a the Methodist church two days since," it read. "As we have all along pre-dicted, we have lost our fairest flower. In other words, Mr. Harold De Lisle prevailed upon the charming Widow Bidwell to give him her hand and heart, and the Rev. Mr. Peters made them man and wife in a very impressive cer emony. The happy couple left for Chicago immediately after, but may return next week to prepare for the jaunt

Ten days later the bride returned and at once notified all old customers that business was to be resumed at the old stand.

Ten days later in a distant state the bridegroom was talking up Bob oats. They had come to an understanding about money matters. They had understood that each had played the confidence game on the other and that they hadn't $300 between them. Editor Flint of the Clarion and Fergus County Advertiser sat down and wrote an auction bill for Farmer Jones and told him what the price for 200 copies would be, and as he found himself setting it up he found himself say-

"Oh, I don't know. I don't seem to have so much ache under my vest as I did. I shouldn't wonder if I recovered from the blow in time."

Sailor's Story of Jungle Surgery. "There wuz this here black Kamerun savage, naked as an animal," said the sailor, "and there wuz this explorer in his pretty suit of white drillin', and there wuz a Kamerun medicine man with a headdress o' human bones. They stood under a palm tree. I sot on a log and watched 'em. The medicine man put the right arms of the savage and the explorer close together and then, flourishin' a dull lookin' knife, he nicks a vein in the white arm and then an artery in the black arm. The blood come a-gushin' and a-gushin' out of the black arm, and the medicine man scooped it up in the holler of his hand and rubbed it into the nicked white arm. He must 'a' rubbed in a pint before he closed the wound. Transfossion o' blood is what they call it. They say it saves a white man from jungle fever and from all the evils of the miasma of the hot swamps, of the damp heat, the rottin' vegetation. They say Stan-ley had black blood transfoosed into his'n eight times. That is how he stood Africa. I know it's a common thing for African explorers to go through the transfoosin' process. And I'll tell you a funny thing about it. It makes the hair thicker and darker and it darkens the skin a couple of shades."

Oldest Body of Human Being The oldest body of any human be-ing reposes in the Egyptian gallery of the British museum. It is the body of a man who was buried in a shallow grave hollowed out of the sandstone on the west bank of the Nile in upper Egypt. This man must have hunted along the banks of the Nile before the time of the earliest mummied king which the museum possesses, before the time of Menes, who was supposed to have ruled Egypt at least 5000 B. C. There were previous to that time two prehistoric races, one the conquerors and the other quered, from which sprang the Egyptian race of the earliest dynasties. is with these remote stocks that this man had to do. Considering the condition in which he was found, it is evident that he was associated with a late period of the new stone age of Egypt. He was buried in a characteristic neolithic grave, with his neo-lithic pots and instruments of flint about him. There is of course no in-Pennsylvania oil. We understand that he may remain in our village for some days. Indeed, Dame Rumor is conlanguage.—American Antiquarian.

Household Roads Lead to Kitchen Work NINE-TENTHS of kitchen labor and worry is caused by ill-working cook stoves and ranges; by ranges that draw poorly; that have such complicated drafts that only a skilled mechanic can manage them; whose grates are so constructed that it is a strong man's work to shake them down; ranges which work well when the wind is in a certain direction, but act like a fiend at other times; ranges whose work is so unreliable that the housekeeper is in a constant nerve-racking worry lest the meals be late or the baking spoiled.

The Pandora range is built to make work easy, a child can shake it down; its drafts are so simple that one learns them in a minute; its heat is kept in the range so effectively that you can do a big baking and hardly know there is a fire in it two feet away; it keeps the kitchen cool; it saves you worry; it saves you time and money; it saves you backaches and headaches, because it is so easy to manage and so reliable.

The Pandora makes kitchen work easy.
