A Song of Hope.
When the frost binds the streamlet's flow,
And the whistling wind is low,
When white is the plain,
And the surges of the main,
There is green grass under the snow.
O winter of sadness and woe!
Though art come, but thou yet shalt go.
There are buds for the flowers,
And blossoms for the bowers,
And green grass under the snow.
Do the storm winds wildly blow?
The hours are they dreary and slow?
O sad heart, wait,
Thou shalt see it soon or late,
When green grass under the snow,
And the albatross has a bright wing glow,
There is joy for the sorrow,
There is blessing for the sorrow,
There is green grass under the snow.

A Moratorium
The Nova Scotia Legislature which is now in session should give some thought and attention to the financial condition of the people of the province. The fact that the province had a deficit last year itself, totalling the very respectable amount of $200,000, should make the legislature sympathetic with individuals who in some action is not taken by the Murray government are in danger of losing the savings of a life time. We could cite a number of examples that have gone under our notice but one will suffice to illustrate our point. Eight years ago one of our industrial mechanics borrowed several thousand dollars from a loan company and gave as security a mortgage on a parcel of real estate.

The Admiral's Ghost.
I tell you a tale tonight
Which a seaman told to me
With eyes that gleamed in the lantern light.
And a voice that was as the sea,
Which could stir the stars
To twinkling up in the sky,
And the old wind poked and moaned in the spar,
And the same old waves went by,
Singing the same old song.
As ages and ages ago,
While he from his blood in that deep sea night
With the things he seemed to know.
A bare foot pattered on deck;
Ropes creaked;—then all grew still,
And he pointed his finger straight in my face.
And growled, as a sea dog will:
"Doesn't know who Nelson was?
That pore little shrivelling form,
With the patch on his eye and the pinnacled nose,
And a soul like a North Sea storm?
'Ask of the Devonshire men!
They know and they'll tell you true;
He wasn't the pore little chawed-up chap
That Hardy thought he knew."
"He wasn't the man you think!
His patch was a darn disgraceful!
For he knew that they'd find him out,
If you see,
If they looked him in both his eyes.
He was twice as big as he seemed;
But his clothes were cunningly made,
He'd both of his hairy hands all right!
The sleeve was a trick of the trade.
You've heard of sparrows, no doubt;
Well, there's more in the matter than that!
But he wasn't the patch and he wasn't
And he wasn't the Laced cooked hat."
"Nelson was just a Ghost!
You may laugh! but the Devonshire men,
They know that he'd come when England called,
And they know he'll come again.
I'll tell you the way it was
(For none of the landmen know),
And tell if you right, you must go astern
Two hundred years or so.

Loan companies are not expected to have souls. They are corporations and hence the soul is a minus quantity, but they are not the only offenders, men with money out on mortgage, realize that this period of stress through which we are passing is a good time to pinch the borrower and close out mortgages. Only last week an old citizen of this town who trained and educated a family in Amherst of which he can be decidedly proud, came to our office and asked us if we knew where he could borrow sixteen hundred dollars. He has a house which is mortgaged to that amount. In normal times the property is easily worth twice the amount but nobody wants it today and the chances are good that it will fall into the hands of the man who holds the mortgage. In a few months from now our local politicians will be going over the country and province telling the 'dear' workmen how much they think of them, what good friends they are to them and a whole lot of other guff which they don't mean, but for which they expect the people to fall. Today with the House of Assembly in session they have an opportunity to do something for the wage earners and home builders who are out of work and have not the wherewithal to meet their payments. Will our labor loving representatives at Halifax place Nova Scotia in line with the other provinces or will they allow the home builders to be crushed out of existence between the mill stone of lack of employment and mortgage holders. Let us add that there is a bright side as well as a dark side that shows the throbb of humanity in the hearts of men well to do. We know of men holding mortgages who are not pressing for their interest but who have made advances to the borrowers to tide them over the period of depression. Our references are only for those who are taking advantage of conditions to practice a legal method of highway robbery and it is the duty of the legislature to give the borrower a chance to get his second breath.—E. X.

That's what he said; and he did;
An' his pinates, listenin' round;
With their crimson doublets and jewelled swords
That flashed as the sun went down.
They sewed him up in his shroud,
With a round hot top and salt sea
To sink him under the sharp salt sea
Where all good seamen go.
They lowered him down in the deep,
And there in the sunset light,
They boomed a broadside over his grave,
As manna to say, "Good night."
They sailed away in the dark
To the dear little isle they knew;
And they hung his drum by the old sea wall
The same as he told them to.

Two hundred years went by,
And the guns began to roar,
And England was fighting hard for her life,
As ever she fought of yore.
"It's only my dead that counts,"
She said as she says today;
It isn't the ship and it isn't the guns
'I'll sweep Trafalgar Bay.
'D' you guess who Nelson was?
You may laugh, but it's true as true!
There was more in that pore little chawed-up chap,
Than ever his best friend knew.
"The fun was creptin' afloat,
In the dark, to our white-cliffed isle;
They were ready to leap at England's throat,
When—Oh, you may smile, you may smile,
But—ask of the Devonshire men;
For they heard in the dead of night
The roll of a drum, and they saw him pass
On a ship all shining white.
"He stretched out his dead, cold face,
And he sailed in the grand old way!
The fishes had taken an eye and his arm,
But he swept Trafalgar's Bay.
"Nelson—was Francis Drake!
Or, what matters the uniform,
Oh, the patch on your eye or your pinnacled nose,
If your soul's like a North Sea storm!"

Uric Acid Suffering.
Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms masses, the joints and muscles receive their share. In any case the spine and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills.

A woman missionary in China was taking tea with a mandarin's eight wives. The Chinese ladies examined her clothing, her hair, her teeth, and so on, but her best especially amazed them.
"Why," cried one, "you can walk and run as well as a man."
"Yes, to be sure," said the missionary.
"Can you ride a horse and swim, too?"
"Yes."
"Then you must be as strong as a man!"
"I am."
"And you wouldn't let a man beat you—not even if he was your husband—would you?"
Indeed, I wouldn't, said the missionary.
The mandarin's eight wives looked at one another, nodding their heads. Then the oldest said softly:
"Now I understand why the foreign devil never has more than one wife. He is afraid."
"How many kinds of flowers are there?" asked the teacher in botany lesson.
Three pupils held up their hands.
"Well, lairdie, how many kinds of flowers are there?"
"Three, teacher; wild, tame and collicie."

Tourist Tide Is Turning to Nova Scotia.
Nova Scotia has never had a better opportunity to attract the tourist than she will have this coming summer. Travel will not be safe in any of the European countries or, at least, it will not be pleasant for some time to come, and notwithstanding the Panama Pacific Exposition, a small effort on the part of the people in Nova Scotia will secure all the tourists the province can well take care of. Here in Florida tourists are a great help to all the people of the state in various ways. Some invest in land others in business others who are not financially able to invest in enterprises, usually go home spending good money for the state and its people; they encourage others to make the trip, some of whom always make investments of some kind. Then the average tourist spends lots of money, buying any and everything that catches his eye, for a luxury, and really they are the life of most of the hotels. It matters not what the tourist spends his money for. It means that there is that much money in circulation within the state from outside sources and it benefits all the people more or less.

"I wish," said Freddie plaintively, "I wish I was Billy Smith."
"Why, Freddie!" said his astonished mother, "Billy Smith has none of the nice things you have. He doesn't get any pocket money and he isn't as big as you, and he's not nearly so strong. His father never buys him presents, or—"
"I know all about that, mamma," said Freddie, but—
"And think what nice books you have. And you never have to go out in the cold and wet to carry papers, and—"
"I know," grumbled Freddie, annoyed by his mother's strange lack of understanding. "But Billy kin wiggle his ears."
