Had Rough Voyage. The schr. Dorothy Baird, Capt. Keeping, arrived to Jas. Baird, Ltd., to-day from Pernambuco after a run of 29 days. The first part of the voyage fairly fine weather was experienced until the 10th inst., when, as the ship was 200 miles north of Bermuda, gales blowing from all points of the compass and lasting for days were met and a cross sea made much trouble for the vessel. Almost daily the ship was hove to for hours at a time, and on Tuesday and Friday of last week she had to run for several hours under bare poles. The vessel met the slob ice 50 miles west of Cape Race and ran through it until port was reached.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

I haven't forgotten that this column is to be occasionally dedicated to talking something about unique occupations for women. I'm simply waiting for some of you people to tell me of unusual occupations of which you know. In the meantime I have a suggestion along that line to make.

It isn't anything that anyone I know of ever did. It's just something that I think could be done.

Why couldn't some woman with an eye for clothes and fashions and some artistic sense start a "sartorial bureau"?

I don't believe one woman in ten gets anywhere near the possible value out of the money she puts into her clothes.

By "possible value" I mean the full value in attractiveness, suitability, style and wearing qualities that could be gotten out of that money by someone who really understood the art of clothes.

The business of this "sartorial bureau" would be to supply such women advice, and when desired, actual oversight in clothes buying.

Perhaps an illustration will make my meaning plainer.

Miss H. is a stenographer who has a very good salary and who spends about $200 a year upon her clothes. That ought to purchase her a pretty wardrobe but she is a woman without that sort of sixth sense which some women have—the clothes sense—and she does not have time to study up styles and lines and colors and materials, and consequently she never seems to get just the "right" things, and is seldom as well dressed as Miss L. who has about half as much money to spend but much more time and taste. So Miss H. goes to the sartorial bureau. She goes at the beginning of the season and announces that she has $150 to spend on her winter wardrobe.

Now the sartorial bureau, according to my idea of it in its completeness, consists of a good executive head with a staff of women, some of whom have artistic ability, some of whom are particularly well versed in styles, and two or three who thoroughly understand materials and the art of shopping.

Miss H. is received by the executive head who plans the spending of the money in a general way. She is then handed over to the artistic woman who tells her what colors and lines she should use and finally consults with the authority in styles who goes over fashion books with her and suggests becoming styles.

For all this advice she pays a portion of the amount to be spent, say about four per cent.

If after this she desires the services of a shopper these are supplied at so much an hour.

Perhaps her whole bill from the bureau is seven dollars and at this expense she makes sure of a winter's wardrobe infinitely more stylish, more becoming, and more thoroughly "right" than she has ever had before.

Of course I realize that such a staff could not be maintained until a large business had been built up, but I think the business could be started by a woman who had taste and a good amount of that sixth sense, and who combined to a certain extent all the necessary capabilities.

Of course the larger part of her customers would be women who had a good deal more money to spend than Miss H., but I cited her case more to show the value of such a bureau to women of even moderate means.

Is it such an impossible scheme? I wonder.

Despair and Dependancy. No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the dependancy endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism. IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Advice—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers, a handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Fads and Fashions.

Heavy cords are used as trimmings. French knots are very fashionable. Gold dust is often sprinkled in the hair.

Beaded effects continue in good style. Fringe is prominent on silk street costumes. Ribbon bows will be trimming for large flat hats.

The newest real shell hairpins are quite small and light. The newest blouses are made of voile and marquisette. Among the season's place cards are the chateaucer effects.

Evening dresses may now show the crown of the shoulder. Colored linens are much in evidence for morning wear.

The long, seamless shoulder remains in excellent vogue. Chemisettes are now of colored chiffon, made perfectly plain.

The satin cape-coat lined with brilliant green velvet is a novelty.

The bolero is appearing in conjunction with cloth and cotton dresses. Both rough and fine straws will be used, and combinations will be frequent.

New and smart is the bar-shaped top to hairpins. A barrette comes to match. Washable soutache in all shades is used on many models for children's dresses.

The openwork, known as English embroidery, is seen on many of the new materials. It may be set down as a foregone conclusion that the reign of white continues with splendid vigor.

Men's white gloves, embroidered on the back with rows of heavy black stitching, are again the vogue. Among the newest gimpes are those of colored chiffon cloth with white or black net, especially the latter.

Men sometime wear white pique collars with evening clothes to match the fashionable white pique shirts.

Many of the new laces show a combination of filet and point de Venis. This last lace is extremely fashionable.

Collarless necks are used for lingerie dresses and blouses, and for certain of the silk gowns for daytime wear.

EVERY WOMAN SHOULD READ THIS LETTER

And Take Mrs. Ripley's Advice

Lots of women are suffering tortures with their backs, when they need not do so. Mrs. Ripley had such frightful pains in her back that she could not do her housework. She tells how she cured herself. WILLIAMSBURG, EAST. "I cannot refrain from writing you about the benefits I have received from taking GIN-PILLS. I suffered dreadfully with my back and have suffered with it for twenty years. I tried everything but got no relief, until I bought GIN-PILLS. I have taken six boxes of GIN-PILLS and now I have not the sign of an ache or pain in my back. I am now 48 years of age and feel as well as I ever did in my life. There is nothing that can harm a woman by taking GIN-PILLS for curing Pain in the Back to which women are subject."

Hurrah for Sir Robert Bond.

Dear Sir,—Anyone having the welfare of the country at heart could not but have been pleased, aye, delighted, at the way in which the Right Hon. Sir Robert Bond explained to the House the evils attached to the present forms of the Cold Storage Bill.

How succinctly he put, laid before, and requested the Premier to accept his amendment, which amendment was in effect that the lessees of the Cold Storage Contract should not sell any bait fishes to any fisherman except those being bona fide residents and domiciled in the Colony, and that no bait fishes should be exported except to be used as food. The necessity of this amendment must be apparent to every fisherman of this Colony, for if the bait fishes can be exported and sold to Canadian or American fishermen, where, then, is the good of our Bait Act? The Americans or any other fishermen can procure bait from these cold storage people, come on our shores, fish with the bait so procured and laugh at our Newfoundland fishermen, who can do nothing but "blow their fingers" and look at the strangers overhauling and unloading the fish from the trawls sailed only a few hours previously from the bait caught by possibly one of the same fishermen then looking in, sold to the cold storage people or a foreigner to take the cod and other fishes from the water under the very eyes of our Newfoundland fishermen. The Premier should have slowly before jeopardizing the very means of living now held by our fishermen. The Right Hon. Sir Robert Bond has offered to the Government of the day good, sound, practical advice, which if refused will in my opinion bring discredit on those now in power and but add another spoke to the wheel now slowly but surely turning towards the defeat of those who vulgarly but vainly attempt to belittle one of the best friends the country ever had, viz., the Right Hon. Sir Robert Bond.

Yours, FISHERMAN.

Newfoundlander Making Good. The Halifax Herald of February 14 says the following about John C. Hagen, a St. John's boy, and son of the late Capt. Hagen, who ran the mail service in the S. S. Tiger in the sixties and seventies: "John C. Hagen, chief clerk of the Halifax and Bermuda Cable Company, has received a well merited vacation, and leaves to-morrow for Jamaica via Boston and New York. Mr. Hagen has been appointed Superintendent for the Company at Kingston, Jamaica, a very responsible position, but one which he will, no doubt, fill with credit to himself and profit to the Company. During the 12 years that he has been at the Halifax office he won a large measure of esteem in business circles and has been generally popular. While congratulating him on his appointment his friends will regret that his new duties will call him away from Halifax, Mrs. Hagen, his wife, also has many friends in this city who will part from her with regret."

The subject of the above notice is a son of Mr. J. J. Hagen, telegraph operator, St. Pierre, and grandson of the late Capt. John Hagen, formerly of the S. S. Tiger coastal service. Mrs. M. F. Lawlor, Mrs. W. B. Fitzgerald and Mrs. W. J. Harris, this city, are his aunts.

Stella Maris Sailed. The S. S. Stella Maris, Capt. W. Winsor, left St. John's at 3 p.m. on Wednesday for Fogo, taking mails and the following passengers: F. Lockyer, J. Parry and Mrs. Winsor. She arrived at Bay de Verde at 8.15 yesterday morning and left at 8.30 for Trinity.
