

Scrofula in the Neck

The following is from Mrs. J. W. Thibault, wife of the Mayor of McKeessport, Penn.:

"My little boy Willie, now six years old, two years ago had a bunch under one ear which the doctor said was Scrofula. As it continued to grow he finally had it removed by the use of the Sarsaparilla. We again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla with most excellent results and he has had no further trouble. His cure is due to Hood's Sarsaparilla."

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—With the loss yesterday of two wickets for 51 runs the Irishmen started in to bat again this morning in their first inning of the third and deciding match with All-Philadelphia. The Philadelphia men then went in, but the loss of four wickets for eleven runs demoralized them, and when stumps were drawn for the day six men were out for only 47 runs.

CORBETT IN CLAY.

The Fistic Champion in an Artist's Atelier.

Where He Is Raised to the Rank of a Model.

How the Pugilist Posed for Pretty Miss Beveridge While the "Did" the Doughty Californian in Mud.

[From the New York World.]

A slender girl, with hair like Tithon gold, stood in a room at Coleman House yesterday afternoon with her eyes full of enthusiasm and her hands full of mud. Near by sat Jim Corbett, the champion fighter of the world, bare to the waist, with all the wealth of his lion-like muscles outlined clearly against a dark background. The young woman was Miss Kulline Beveridge, the girl sculptress, who, only 24 hours before, had modeled the bust of ex-President Cleveland. The same pink fingers that had dallied with the clay counterpart of the ex-Præsidential moustache were now toying with the gladiator's nose.

Mr. Corbett arrived in town, fresh from Buffalo, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and repaired at once to the Coleman House. Pretty Mrs. Corbett was there to greet him, and so was Mr. Brady, his manager. When Mr. Brady told the champion that Miss Beveridge was awaiting him in an adjoining room with a bucket of mud, Jim smiled a sort of sly smile and said nothing.

Visions of spinsters and blue goggles floated through his mind, and he heaved a ten-fathom sigh. Then in a hoarse, desperate voice he said:

"Come on; let's have the thing over with."

"All right," replied Brady; "take your shirt off."

"What?" howled Corbett. Then plunging himself down in a chair with a heavy thump, he said decidedly: "Not on your life."

A long argument followed and Brady got the best of it. The big fighter hauled off his shirt with an air of a suffering lamb under the shears. Then he put on a white tennis coat, buttoned it closely over his chest, and stalked manly-like into the hall, followed by Mr. Brady. It was evident that Miss Beveridge had selected her temporary studio with a view to convenience. It was next door to the champion pugilist's apartments.

"Come in," said a small voice in response to Manager Brady's knock. Corbett's face was wrinkled in a frown as he strode into the room, but it faded in a jiffy.

"Miss Beveridge, permit me to present Mr. Corbett," said Manager Brady. Then Jim poked out his hand in a frank way, but Miss Beveridge laughed and drew back.

"I am happy to meet you, Mr. Corbett," said she, "but I cannot shake hands with you. See?"

She held up two of the most charmingly disreputable hands that can be imagined. Those who have dabbled in the mud-pie industry in their youth can imagine them. Miss Beveridge was bashful and so was Mr. Corbett; but another lady was present who healed the breach of difference by a charming allusion to the weather. Then everybody felt thoroughly at home.

Miss Beveridge wore a plain, black gown, devoid of ornaments, and a Gainsborough hat. She seemed not to know she was being photographed, and she was not at all aware of the fact that her companion came to the rescue.

"Just be seated on the sofa, Mr. Corbett," said she. "Look as natural as possible and talk to Miss Beveridge while she immortalizes you in mud."

Corbett laughed good-naturedly and sat down, but he still kept his coat on.

Then the young girl hauled out an immense putty-colored clay object and placed it on a high box. The pugilist regarded it with evident doubt and some traces of astonishment. It looked for all the world like one of those things worn over the heads of submarine divers.

"We are all very proud of you, Mr. Corbett," said Miss Beveridge, by way of a maidenly overture. "I am from California myself, and I take especial interest in noted Californians."

Then the two fell to talking in the good old-fashioned way, and Corbett forgot that he was posing; but Miss Beveridge did not. While she talked and laughed her nimble fingers flew over the clay, pushing and twisting and "springing" it around in every direction. Now and then she would look at the pugilist's tightly-buttoned coat in a doubtful way. Then she would pucker her lips, and the mud would fly with redoubled effect.

Pretty soon, out of the plastic chaos, emerged a nose. It was not much of a nose for symmetry, but it was great in the matter of size. Next came a vague imitation of an eye. Then a piece of clay, slipped on either side of the unhappy dummy, gave fair representation to two pugilistic ears. Gradually out of general nothingness, emerged the head of a man 175 years of age with only one eye. A swift gauge of the long dexterous thumb and the other eye was there. So the slender sculptress worked, flitting around the pedestal as swiftly as a bird. Very seldom did she cease laughing and talking. Slowly the mass of clay took on the lineaments of a recognizable face. Nose, eyes, mouth, ears and chin were all there, rough, hewn but artistic. Then suddenly Miss Beveridge turned around and looked appealingly at her companion. Once more the good-natured woman came to the girl's assistance.

"Mr. Corbett, will you kindly loosen your coat? No, that will not do—more you. You see we want to get the exact contour of the muscles of your neck and chest. Really, you must."

"Oh, pull off your coat, Jim," interrupted Manager Brady.

"Yes, that's it," continued the lady. "You are in art now, you know."

Corbett rose slowly to his feet, took off his tennis coat methodically, and stood sculptress' soul spring into her eyes. She left the clay model, clasped her hands and walked around the fighter as one would when examining a magnificent thoroughbred. To the sculptress the man before her was a piece of marble. Suddenly Corbett walked around in front of the clay for the first time.

"I have only one request to make," said he, after eying the work critically. "For heaven's sake don't make me look so old."

Miss Beveridge explained that the rough tones of the features were necessary and that they would all be worked out with the knife when the clay hardened. It was dusk when the sculptress stepped work.

"I am sorry not to be able to shake your hand," said she in parting. "It is not often that a girl of my age is so highly honored in two successive days. Yesterday I had for a model an ex-President of the United States, to-day I have his fellow-American, the champion pugilist of the world."

Then the girl-artist said good-bye and went back to her friend.

Corbett met his wife at the door of their apartments.

"My name is mud," was all he said.

A Wordy War

Indulged in at the Board of Education's Session.

Misunderstanding in the Matter of Holidays.

Proposal to Add Cooking to the Collegiate Curriculum—Smead-Dowd System of Heating for Princess Avenue School Adopted.

J. S. Dewar, the chairman, explained at a recent meeting of the Board of Education last evening that before the Western Fair was held he had notified the inspector to authorize the principals to close their schools on Thursday and Friday to allow the pupils to attend the Fair.

Mr. Allister, chairman of No. 1 committee, he said, afterwards sent a boy around to notify the principals to close the schools on Wednesday and Thursday. He wished an explanation from Mr. Allister, and also to know who was chairman of the Board of Education.

Mr. Allister explained that the days set aside by the committee were Wednesday and Thursday, and that on this ground he notified the principals to close their schools on these days.

It would appear that only one principal (Mr. McQueen) obeyed Mr. Dewar's order, while the principals of eleven public schools and the Collegiate Institute disregarded it.

Mr. Dewar explained that he had had legal advice, and also from the Deputy Minister of Education at Toronto that his action was correct.

Mr. Anderson moved that the chairman of No. 1 committee be censured for his action.

Mr. Craig moved that the chairman of the board be sustained, but also that Mr. Allister be exonerated, as he acted in accordance with a motion passed by No. 1 committee.

Mr. Dewar had ordered the city treasurer not to pay the salaries for September to the disobedient principals until after the matter had been settled.

Inspector Carson was at Rectory street school when Mr. Allister's written order came to the principals. On the Friday of fair week there were three pupils at this school; he could not tell how many teachers.

R. J. Blackwell thought that the teachers and principal of this school should be docked two days' pay and also be fined.

Mr. Love thought that all the members of No. 1 committee should be censured and not the chairman only. He would sustain Mr. Dewar in his action.

Mr. McElhannon moved and Mr. Tanton seconded a long motion censuring Mr. Allister on upholding Mr. Dewar.

Mr. Cook moved that Mr. Dewar be sustained and also that Mr. Allister be upheld, as he had only carried out the order of No. 1 committee. Mr. Brady seconded.

Mr. Dewar said that Mr. Allister and others had concocted the plan of changing the days either in or in front of Mr. Allister's store. Mr. Allister, had also said, interviewed a number of the principals.

Mr. Dewar explained that he wished to give the teachers object lesson and he thought that it had been a good one. If it had not they might get another in the future.

Mr. Allister gave an emphatic denial to the allegations made by Mr. Dewar.

Mr. Blackwell took decided exception to Mr. Allister's statement of Mr. Dewar that the principals had taken Wednesday and Thursday so that they would get Friday in addition. He had no idea that he and Mr. Allister were at "logger-heads" over the matter.

Mr. Cook's motion carried, all but Messrs. Allister, Stephenson and Dewar voting yea.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mrs. Baxter asked that her daughter be removed from Hamilton road to the Rectory street school. Referred to No. 1 committee and the inspector.

Ald. Gathshore wrote suggesting that as an addition was to be built to the Collegiate Institute that the board take into consideration the advisability of providing accommodation for instruction in cooking. This was a necessary feature of a girl's education and the expense would not be great.

No. 1.

Dr. Hutchinson, medical health officer, stated that there were still two children affected with epilepsy and one idiot attending the Askin street school. The city solicitor expressed his opinion that epilepsy was not a contagious disease and that therefore the two afflicted pupils could not be prevented from attending school unless the Public Schools' Act be amended.

Miss D. D. Robertson's resignation as teacher was accepted, and S. P. Reynolds' application for six maps for King street school was referred to No. 2.

Mrs. Minnie O. and Bertha C. Graham, Clarence street, applied for positions on the teaching staff. Miss Cora Brown, Hamilton, applied for the position of kindergarten director, and Miss Ada M. Flewellyn, Hamilton, asked for a position as kindergarten teacher. All referred to No. 1.

REPORTS.

Inspector Carson reported 4,150 pupils on the public school and 347 on the kindergarten school's roll during September; average attendance, 3,670 and 290 respectively.

Principal Merchant reported 474 pupils on the roll during September; average attendance, 411. He also suggested that tenders be called for a new batch of announcements, as last year's supply had been almost exhausted. Adopted.

J. B. Cook, chairman of No. 2 committee, reported, recommending: 1. That the tender of Jones Bros. for erection of addition of Princess avenue school at $8,292, be accepted. 2. That the engineer be requested to reduce the cost of Quebec street and Worthington road schools within the estimates and call for new tenders. 3. That Mr. Watson's tender for kindling wood, at $2.50 per cord, be accepted. 4. That tenders be called for building Rectory street kindergarten school. 5. That the plans for Talbot street school be accepted and tenders be called for hot air heating. 6. That the plans for the addition to the Collegiate Institute be accepted and tenders called for the erection. Adopted.

Mr. Allister reported for No. 1 committee, recommending: 1. That night schools be opened at Rectory street, Colborne street and King street schools, and that Messrs. S. Baker, Edwards and Reynolds be the teachers and Mr. Atkinson the assistant, the former at $1.50 a night, and the latter at $1 per night. 2. That thirteen new maps of the city be procured. 3. That Dr. H. F. McDonald be appointed board physician. 4. That Miss Crowley's salary be $325 a year. 5. That a kindergarten school be provided north of the C.P.R. track. 6. That No. 2 committee be instructed to provide rooms for Talbot street and Lorne avenue schools and that the inspector provide substitutes until the new schools are opened. 7. That no person be allowed to attend kindergarten lectures who does not assist the director.

Clause 3 was referred back to No. 1 committee to consider the advisability of appointing a physician. Clause 4 was referred back for further information as to her experience. Clause 5 was also referred back. Clause 6 was amended as far as Talbot street school was concerned, so that an additional teacher will be placed with Miss Lynch to teach in her room during the forenoon and in the kindergarten room in the afternoon. Clause 7 was amended so that assistants who had put in the full term required but had failed at the examination would be allowed to attend the lectures.

R. J. Blackwell moved that No. 1 committee report on the employment of kindergarten assistants for Misses Mackenzie and Henderson. Carried.

Dr. Campbell and Mr. Turner moved that the Smead-Dowd system of heating be used at Princess avenue school and that $1,875 be transferred from the general account to Princess avenue school account.

R. J. Blackwell moved in amendment that the tender of Wm. Stevely & Son at $860 be accepted.

Mr. Cook moved a second amendment that the tender of Wyatt, Son & Chambers at $1,084 be accepted.

Dr. Campbell's motion carried by a vote of 9 to 7. Yeas—Messrs. McRobert, Turner, Love, Dr. Campbell, D. W. Blackwell, Brady, Stephenson, Jeffery and Tanton. Nays—Messrs. Cook, Dr. Wilson, R. J. Blackwell, Allister, Anderson, McElhannon, Craig and Alexander.

Mr. Stephenson gave notice of motion to increase the salary of R. A. Gray, municipal master at the Collegiate Institute, to $1,250.

Mr. Jeffery moved that the officers of the Teachers' Association be requested to hold their meeting on the Friday following Thanksgiving Day. Carried.

Dr. Wilson gave notice of motion to have five public schools for the accommodation of pupils who had passed the entrance examination.

The committee adjourned at 11:55. Messrs. Dewar (chairman), Jeffery, Stephenson, Alexander, Anderson, Brady, McElhannon, Craig, D. W. Blackwell, Love, R. J. Blackwell, Dr. Wilson, Cook, McRobert, Dr. Campbell, Tanton, Turner, and Alexander, Principals, Merchants, Inspector Carson and Secretary Abbott attended the meeting.

Among gentlemen in Europe there is a revival of the almost lost art of spinning, and it is now becoming quite a fashionable occupation.

"August Flower"

There is a gentleman at Malden-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., named Captain A. G. Pareis, who has written us a letter in which it is evident that he has made up his mind concerning some things, and this is what he says:

"I have used your preparation called August Flower in my family for seven or eight years. It is constantly in my house, and we consider it the best remedy for Indigestion, and Constipation we know. My wife is troubled with Dyspepsia, and at times suffers very much after eating. The August Flower, however, relieves the difficulty. My wife frequently says to me when I am going to town, 'We are out of town, and I think you had better get another bottle.' I am also troubled with Indigestion, and whenever I am, I take one or two spoonfuls before eating, for a day or two, and all trouble is removed."
