A Londoner's Opinion of the World's Fair. The Centennial and Paris Exhibitions

Far Outclassed.

& Chat with Mr. A. B. Powell-His Idea of the Buildings, Greunds and of the Show in General Some Good Points for Intending Visitors.

Knowing that Mr. A. B. Powell, of this city, had returned after a three weeks' sejonrn at the World's Fair, an ADVERTISER reporter called on him a few days since with a view of obtaining his opinion of the great exposition. "You have been to the World's Fair, Mr. Powell," said the seribe.

to the World's Fair, Mr. Powell," said the scribe.

"Yes, I have been at Chicago, and have taken in the World's Fair with its surroundings. I must express my great satisfaction of what I saw. I don't wish to be at all egotistic, but think I am in a position to give an opinion as to how the great Chicago show compares with other shows of the kind that have been held in the world since 1875, as I saw the Centennial Exhibition and spent some two weeks in Philadelphia. In 1889 I spent some time in Paris, France, and viewed with much pleasure and admiration the great display of that world's fair. I have said that the World's Fair could not, nor would is begin to compare with the display at Paris."

"How do you think the Chicago show compares?"

"Now that I have seen the three I say was picked up there Tuesday, and the relations of what I saw. I don't wish to be at all egotistic, but think I am in a position to give an opilion as to how the great Chicago show compares with other shows of the kind that have been held in the world since 1875, as I saw the Centennial Exhibition and spent some two weeks in Philadelphia. In 1889 I spent some time in Paris, France, and viewed with much pleasure and admiration the great display of that world's fair. I have said that the World's Fair could not, nor would it begin to compare with the display at Paris," "How do you think the Chicago show compares?"
"Now that I have seen the three I say there is scarcely a comparison, because the Chicago World's Fair so far transecads the others in extent and completeness that a comparison would be odious. Let me say to you, sir, that the world has never known, and I doubt if it will ever again witness, such gigantic efforts on the part of any people to produce at such an immense cost such a wonderful cluster of such rare srehitectural beauty and skill as is shown in the buildings erected for the World's Columbian Expention."

"From this I should judge the cost of preparation must have been great," said the reporter.

"I should any the cost is great, simply snormous. Why, dr., the grading, stem will make over $18,500,000. When you add another $9,000,000 spent in main buildings, this will make over $18,500,000.
