[Special to The Advertiser.]
St. Louis, April 29.—After trying for two days, and missing out each time by two days, and missing out each time by a margin of one run that might have been averted, the Tigers finally blanked the Browns on their home lot today, the score being 5 to 0. The performance was particularly pleasing to the Bengals, because the trick was turned by a recruit pitcher, Stroud, who was making his first appearance in Detroit togs.

Stroud performed more like Mullin or Donovan than like a recruit showing his manager for the first time. Just five hits were gathered from his delivery. Once or twice the Browns got where there was a possible run in sight, but the youngster simply tightened up and set them down simply tightened up and set them dow without damage to himself. Score:

"Langford was by no means the only party to the holding. Several times, especially in the first two rounds, Ketthel hesitated and then held back swings that might have caused damage. For four rounds the men did hit it up pretty fast and the spectator who only occasionally sees a boxing contest, had no idea but what it was a desperately waged battle. "For several days preceding the alleged fight, the sports in the know smiled wearily when the subject of the go was brought up. Their advance tips of prearranged battle seem to have been lived up to by the participants Wednesday night.

Next—A Fight on the Coast.

"That the ultimate purpose of the fighters in meeting in a six-round mill was to whet the appetite of the fight fans for a longer battle on the coast, is the consensus of opinion in the local sporting world tonight. It is generally believed that in a week or ten days the two fighters will get together and announce to the word that they have agreed to knock each other's block off in a 45to knock each other's block off in a 45-round mill to be held out on the coast. "The fight fans here are sick and tired of all these near battles, and the boxing game is in bad repute here as a result of so many flasco matches. It looks like the old, old story of killing the goose that lays the golden egg."

San Francisco, April 30. - Tommy McCarthy, the lightweight pugilist of this city, who was knocked out and his skull fractured in the sixteenth round of his fight with Owen Moran. of England, at Dreamland Rink here, last night, died of his injuries at St. Mary's Hospital early today.

For over an hour the boy was under the knife in the operating room of the hospital, but all efforts to save his life proved unavailing. He died without regaining consciousness.

McCarthy's skull was fractured at the base of the brain from the impact with the mat after Moran had sent him to the floor with a heavy over-hand swing to the jaw. Owen Moran and his seconds, Jeff Perry and Jimmy Carroll, and Mc-Carthy's brothers, William and Johnny, who acted as his seconds, with Bernard Treanor, were all placed under arrest. It is said that McCarthy had gone stale in training and that he was in poor shape to meet the spark should be fairly advanced to insure quick engine response, and the throttle lever placed to correspond approximately to the speed of horses and ordinary traffic—say eight miles an hour. With a minimum use of the clutches or brakes the accelerator will then provide for all the variations in speed required. With a moderately flexible engine, this method gives quick acceleration and permits one, without irksome labor of hands or feet over all possible means of control, to avail oneself of free passages, and at the same time to be ready to join the line of traffic when necessary. The tento avail oneself of free passages, and at the same time to be ready to join the line of traffic when necessary. The ten-dency to "slide-slip"—one of the greatest dangers of driving in traffic on a 'greasy pavement''—is materially reduced by making use of the clutch and brake only making use of the clutch and brake only occasionally. On the open highway a driver cannot be blamed for speeding so long as he keeps perfect control of his machine. The limit is fixed wholly by the machine.
