Meanwhile, it seems Mr. Ellerhausen had gone to Edinburg, presumably with a view to interest lawyers were employed to scrutinize, and if possible verify Flagg's title to the princely estate. They came to America, went to Virginia, and returned to New

The abstracts of titles were found to be all criminal intentions and declares himself the victim of Suydam, whose arrest he has actually procured on the charge of obtaining $1500 from him on false pretences. In no case was any property found to be in Flagg's name, while Suydam was merely his lawyer. They are evidently confederates in the modern line of real estate swindling. Yet no action by Cunningham for the recovery of his cash is reported. Suydam had been twice arrested for real estate crookedness in Chicago and in 1879 he was arrested in New York on a warrant sworn out in the former city, but secured his release on a technicality. We on the alert to increase their power and influence and always trying to encroach on tario; for he is not a genuine liberal, or of liberal instincts; he has, on the contrary, liberals in many ways. For instance Hon. C. F. Fraser and Ald. Peter Ryan have done veoman service for the liberal party and if there is to be any headship of the catholic liberals it is men like them to whom their co-religionists would naturally look. But as we have often said before we don't want any politicians in this country who also trade in their religion and in the belief-and votes-of their co-religionists. while our pregent legal system continues to deny all personal rights to minors, depriv-ing them of all locus standi in the realm of law, thus enforcing implicit obedience even to the most irrational and unrighteous demands on the part of parents, guardians, or others placed temporarily in authority over them, the guilt of seduction of a minor by one of mature years will probably rest chiefly on the seducer who is of age, whether such seducer be a man or woman. Probably neither the house of commons nor the Globe have yet sunk to so low a depth of morality as to urge epenly that the moral law of virtue or chastity is not the same for both sexes. Such law, if framed. same for both sexes. Such law, if framed, in the utterances of those who support it. It must therefore be regarded as that worst of all legislation—class legislation. It is further a marvelously fine legal distinction to substantiate that a woman of the age of seventeen years and three hundred and sixty-four days, or a man of twenty years and three hundred and sixty-four days, have sary to make seduction "criminal" as an offence against equal freedom-while two organs; the methodist, presbyterian or anglican papers have no politics in their columns. The catholic church has yet that we will, as a nation, grant equal legal rights to children and minors, it might be well at least that law should coufine its attention to preserving and maintaining equal freedom to those to whom it against any "rights" at all, and cease once a forever to legislate in the realm of morals enacting how men and momen must will and think—to what they shall,
