"He Giveth His Beloved Sleep." He sees when their footsteps falter, when their hearts grow weak and faint;
He marks when their strength is failing, and listens to each complaint;
He bids them rest for a season, for the pathway has grown too steep;
And, folded in their green pastures "He giveth His loved ones sleep."

Poetry.

Like weary and worn-out children that sigh Like weary and worn-out children that sigh for the daylight's close, He knows that they oft are longing for home and its sweet repose; So He calls them in from their labors ere the shadows around them creep, And, silently watching over them, "He giveth His loved ones sleep."

He giveth it, O so gently! as a mother will friend, to give you a little advice? hush to rest The babe that she softly pillows so tenderly on her breast. Forgotten are new the trials and sorrows that made them weep;
For, with many a soothing promise, "He giveth His loved ones sleep."

He giveth it! Friends the dearest can never He giveth it! Friends the dearest can never this boon bestow;
But He touches the drooping cyclids, and placid the features grow.

Their foes may gather around them, and storms may round them sweep,
But, guarding them safe from danger, "He giveth His loved ones sleep."

Raging Prairie Fires.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 25.—The most destructive prairie fires in the mistory of the state are now raging in Cherry, Thomas, Grant, Hoker and Sheridan counties. They started in Thomas county, in Snake Creek Valley, the day before yesterday, and fanned by a stiff breeze travelled westward into Cherry and Hoker counties with a speed and fury startling in the extreme. In these counties hundreds of thousands of cattle have been grazing, sent here from the southern portion of the state where the drought was heavy, and it is thought most of them were burned. Near Mullen, on the ranch of L. E. Lasher, four lives are reported lost, including Lasher himself. Several thousand tons of hay were burned. The less to the farmers and stock raisers is enormous.
