

DEW DROPS

Vol. I.

TORONTO, JANUARY 23, 1897.

No. 4.

THE FARM-YARD.

Willie and Alice had a present of a box of toys at New Year's. It was better even than a Noah's Ark, because there was a cart and plough and trees and fences as well as animals. So they made a folding screen of cardboard and pasted on it pictures of a farm. They had great fun setting up the fences and fixing the trees in rows and putting the tiny pigs and sheep and cows and horses and carts just as they had seen them in the farm-yards. It was true that the cart was a great deal too big for the horse, and the sheep was ligger than the cow; but they didn't mind that. They thought it a sort of topsy-turvy fairyland where everything was upside down.

THE FARM-YARD.