Church Times:—‘We cannot speak too highly of the workmanship displayed in the new editions. They are printed in Brevier type, but it is so bold and black-faced that it looks larger and is a boon to weak eyes.’

Record:—‘It is only by a use of the Oxford paper that a Bible in type of this size can be brought, as it is here, into a handy form.’

Life of Faith:—‘This is a Bible which thousands will be eager to have. It is small and light; but a new type is used which makes the text more legible than in any other edition we have ever seen.’

Baptist Times:—‘Apart from the beauty of the editions, their chief merits are their convenient size, their lightness, and their perfect legibility. They are at once easy to read and easy to carry or to hold. . . . We know of no more beautiful or convenient editions than these.’

Methodist Recorder:—‘A Bible which will be an unspeakable boon to thousands.’

Glasgow Herald:—‘The volumes owe their lightness and their convenient size to the use of the exquisitely fine and yet perfectly opaque Oxford India Paper, which, moreover, renders possible the employment of a bold Brevier type of a specially heavy character. The ease with which the pages can be read will be pleasantly appreciated by those whose sight is not of the strongest.’

Aberdeen Journal:—‘They ought to be welcomed by all—and the number is legion—who complain of “small print” Bibles.’
