

Every Farmer

Who has handled a scythe knows the difference between a poor one and a good one. The keen edge of a well-tempered blade reduces the labor of the old-time method of mowing to a wonderful extent, while the ragged edge of a blade made too hard or too soft is an unending source of annoyance and makes the work doubly hard. Your horses will know the difference, even if you do not observe it, between with soft centre, hard edge, well ground sections, made of the best imported Sheffield Steel, and the ordinary cheap-made knife sold by competitors—its chief recommendation being that it is cheap.
