

The wounds he bears

The scars he wears

Have left him now unfit

But how is he going to earn his living,

The man who has done his bit?

Will you do your part and help him on?

Or will you be one of that kind

That stay at home and by the fireside sit

And say I do not mind

For the man who has done his bit?