THE CANADIAN APPLE. The Fruit Growers' Association of apples in the markets of the Eastern States and Great Britain. Mr. F. W. Glen in a letter to the Santan recovery. Glen in a letter to the Secretary of the Association, published in The Canadian Horticulturist, gives some valuable hints as to how the sale of our apples can be largely increased in the United States. We believe it is a fact, as stated by Mr. Glen, that Canada produces a better apple than any other section of this continent. With us take a trip down the St. Lawrence and dinary kind of a fruit, but as a matrior to the best varieties of the apple kingdom. The Canadian apple ought of course already very well known in Great Britain, but its qualities are Canadian apple trade should be run visit his relatives in Montreal. fed stall cattle in Great Britain. The highly of the railway accomm cheese and cattle net the producers not more than fifteen million dollars, while it is claimed the apples will net at least twenty millions, and cost less to produce. Success in the business depends upon selection, packing, quality, condition and appearance when exposed for sale. If it is a fact, as we believe it is, that no country can produce a better apple than Canada, then the cream of the world's business in apples is ours if we will only cultivate it. Canadian apples retain their firmness, brisk acid flavor, crispness and appetizing quality longer than those grown in warmer countries. We ungrown in warmer countries. We undoubtedly have the climate. What our fruit growers should devote their attention to is the cultivation to the cult distant shores. For thirty years German lawyers and statesmen have been engaged in the herculean task of preparing Civil Code, to prevail throughout the whole Empire. The Code has been finally adopted but it will not come into force till 1900. At the present time each different kingdom and principality in the Empire has its own local and provincial legal system. The object of the Code is to introduce uniformity in legal proceedings throughout the Empire, including the Rhine Provinces, which are now under the French Code. The work has been enormous, and it has been practically done three times over, the third commission having been composed of German judges and lawyers skilled in the actual administration of the law. Kemp's Mercantile Gazette, London, referring to the new German Code, urges the codification of the civil laws of Great Britain. It reommends, first of all, reducing the CUINANE BROTHERS ercial law to a code, and subsequently extending the work, so as to include the whole civil law. To have a concise statement of what the law of the land is in regard to mercantile transactions would be of incalculable advantage to business men. The codibasis. A great deal of the uncertainty

World points to the inconsistency of Canadian public men who advocate the establishment of a fast Atlantic service, while they invariably take the steamships from New York, when making the voyage across the Atlantic. There was which consumes two or three whole days more than other routes, which are also superior in other respects. However, there is no reason why many Canadians who go to Europe via New York should not select the St. Lawrence route. Passengers receive better value for their passage money, and a matter of a couple of days at sea is a minor consideration with those who are merely taking a holiday.

The best route by all odds from American are the ball and the total the soundness of the principles upon which the association is founded. There was a time in the history of this institution when its successful establishment seemed problematical, but, thanks to energetic and wise management, it has overcome all obstacles and can now be regarded as being beyond the experimental stage and firmly established as one of our successful and secure-ly-established financial institutions, well deserving the confidence of the general investing public and especially to those whose moderate means demand an institution based on the lines. those who are merely taking a holiday.

Something very special.

We've notched a mark that the July sales must reach. Friday is the last day of July. We must sell $1750 worth of shoes to-morrow to reach that mark. That mark must be reached. It's the many makes the much. Little prices make quick buyers. It will require quick buying. So down go the prices another notch for Friday. If the mark is reached we celebrate by an equally grand effort for Saturday.

If you can't come Friday be sure to come Saturday. But come Friday if you possibly can.

Editor World: I read with regret in Saturday's Globe that the Grand Trunk Co. intend removing 300 men from the shops in this city, which means the loss of 1500 persons from our population. This will seriously hurt the West end of the city. In the meanwhile, the Mayor and Council are occupied in buying a fire hall site or trying to sack officials around the Hall and looking out for votes and newspaper patronage. Anglo-Canadian Explained How She Performs, But Jury Room. New York, July 29.-Miss Hope Booth, New York, July 29.—Miss Hope Booth, the Canadian girl, and her manager, John W. Hamilton of the American Theatre Roof Garden, were early at the District Attorney's office yesterday, ready to demonstrate to the grand jury that the tableau in which Miss Booth poses was not the shocking exhibition inspector Harley declared it to be. Miss Booth wore a gay plaid waist, dainty straw hat and black silk skirt, and carried under her arm a small pasteboard box, which contained two suits of the "clothes" she wears on the stage.

Before going into the grand jury room, Miss Booth emphatically informed her manager that under no circumstances would she appear before the jurors in her fleshings. Mining Exchange, (LIMITED.) (Incorporated by Dominion Charter.)

Inspector Harley, Sergeant Russell and Acting Captain Welsing were each examined by Acting District Attorney McIntyre, who was present at the request of the jurors, and then a Dr. Meyers was allowed to testify for the fair defendant. The doctor declared that the inspector was mistaken in his vivid description of what he had seen.

Miss Booth was then called in, and her attorney, Maurice Meyer, was also allowed to be present. Miss Booth described her pose, daintily raising her skirts a trifle to show the position of her feet, and then exhibited to the jurors the tights she wears here and the ones she wore in London and Paris. She pointed out that in consideration of the sensitiveness of the American public in matters of this kind she had had her tights made much thicker than the ones she wore abroad.

The jurors examined the gauzy raiment with much interest; also a photograph of Miss Booth doing her pose, and after discussing the question for some minutes, decided that the performance was perfectly moral and proper, and dismissed the complaint.
