He has killed two men in the discharge of his duties, and three prisoners a few months ago beat his head with pieces of ron, fractured his skull at the base and nearly killed him."

Attacked by Prisoners.

"I was in a carriage coming into Toronto with three desperate burglars. Being prohibited from searching them, I didn't know that they were fixed for me, and had planned to lay me out. When we reached a lonely spot in the road they attacked me, It was a desperate struggle, and I tell you frankly that I never expected to get out $1000, and More to Follow.

Royal Mourning Wreaths From His Father's Tomb Get Into the Hands of Speculators.

Berlin, Dec. 11 .- A despatch to The Tageblatt from St. Petersburg says that on the occasion of his latest visit to his father's tomb in the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, the Czar noticed that the wreaths de-

Paul, the Czar noticed that the wreaths deposited by the royal representatives at the funeral were piled in confusion and covered with dust. He thereupon directed Court M'n's er l'aion Fredericks, who accompanded him, to see that that the wreaths were put in order.

Eventually, through a misunderstanding on the part of Baron Fredericks or his subordinates, the wreaths were removed and sold to a St. Petersburg tradesman. When Baron Fredericks learned of this fact he was dismayed. He reported the matter to the Czar, who was indignant and ordered that at least the ribbons from the wreaths bearing royal monograms should be recovered whatever the cost.

The buyer meanwhile had sold a majority of the wreaths and ribbons to foreign collectors for many thousands of roubles. The purchasers have since 'een addressed separately and privately, with the result that nearly all the ribbons have been recovered, but with enormous trouble and at great expense.
