as surely as mechanical or professional skill.

In this age of a complex civilization the ability to convey ideas with precision is no small equipment. But greater than this is the augmented potentiality of thought. New words enlarge the mental horizon. To speak clearly is to think clearly. The intellect in stretching its boundaries of thought must increase its power of expression by an enlarged vocabulary. A dictionary is therefore a necessity more than ever before. It should be at one's elbow, whether at home, in the office, school, shop or study. For these reasons we have taken great pleasure in placing a good dictionary, such as The New Universities Dictionary, within reach of everyone of our readers. Stevenson of Normal School Recommends Fine Passages of Prose and Poetry.

At the meeting of the Ontario Educational Society at Toronto yesterday, an address on "The Improvement of the Memory" was given by A. Stevenson of the London Normal School, in which he said:

"In the case of the normal adolescent and adult, improvement in ability to remember is mainly a matter of improvement in the method of getting hold of the facts in the first place. Clear, forcible, graphic presentation of the facts is fundamental as a preliminary condition of retention and recall.

Parks Supt. Smith Gave Fine Address Before Horticultural Society.

Vegetable growing and other aspects of horticultural work were the subjects with which Parks Superintendent R. V. Smith dealt in an address to the Horticultural Society last night in the publibrary. There was a good attend-llc library. There was a good account ance.

Carrots, he said, should be planted three-quarters of an inch deep in rows twelve inches apart. They could be planted up to the beginning of June for a winter crop. He recommended planting cauliflower in cold frames and transplanting it. He advised planting corn three plants to a hill, the hills being two feet apart. Cucumbers he advised planting six to the hill one and a half inches deep, and allowing three of them to mature. Beans, he said should be planted two inches and a hair inches deep, and allowing three of them to mature. Beans, he said, should be planted two inches apart in rows twelve inches apart. He dealt also with beets, cabbage, lettuce, onions, parsnips, peas, tomatoes and potatoes.

Following his talk on vegetable growing he outlined the care of several varieties of flowers. Dealing with gladioli he recommended the America for pink, Peace for nearly white, Princeps for rich crimson and Halley for salmon-pink. He outlined at length various varieties of roses which do well in this section of the county, and treated also the growing of nasturtiums, morning glories, sweet peas and asters.
