HUMOROUS INCIDENTS

Good-Natured Arguments Enliven Evening's Wait for Dominion Reports.

Some good-natured arguments took place while the huge crowd waited in front of The Advertiser office for the later election returns Monday night. Most of the orators were strong in their support of Laurier, and the im-promptu talks were punctuated by frequent cheering for Laurier and Gib-

Always the most popular bulletin service in London, The Advertiser was last night beseiged with telephone calls, both local and long distance, by hundreds and even thousands. The hundreds and even thousands. The cold was such that the crowd waiting for the special bulletins was not as large as it has been under more favorable weather conditions, but at that it was immense.

"The refiners have distributed very fairly, and as a result we have not suffered to the same extent as the citizens of Detroit and of other American cities. The wholesale and retail grocers have co-operated to avert a sugar famine by refusing large orders from a panicky element of the city. There will likely be a further drop in sugar prices about the middle of January, when a portion of the new sugar crop is expected to arrive."

HEAVY HAY SALES RECORDED LOCALLY

Thirty Loads Appear on the Market Today.

The activity of district farmers was devoted to the election Monday with the consequence that few turned out on the local market for the disposal of their produce. According to officials of the square, farmers are holding their produce until Thursday's and Saturday's market, when the Christmas demand will be at its height. Vegetables, as usual, were not offered, the weather being not yet mild enough to warrant the sale of vegetables on the square. The demand for hay was brisk Monday, but only three loads appeared. Now that the excitement of the election is over farmers are bringing their loads of fodder on the market in old-time quantities. More than thinty loads were disposed of today, and more is expected on the sale of today and more is expected on the sale of today and more is expected on the sale of the sale of
