When furs are laid aside in the spring after a hard winter's wear they should be freed from dust and placed at once where they will be out of danger from moths, fire or burglars.

The average store has no facilities for the proper care of furs, and the attempt to take care of them at home is always troublesome and usually injurious to the garments. Furs entrusted to our

MAGISTRATES' FEES

The enquiry into the charges of offioodcock of Newmarket was resumed before and adjourned sine die by Judge Winchester yesterday. Evidence was rivalry has existed between Woodcock and Col. Lloyd, also a magistrate.

Queer conduct in the matter of fines was brought to light. Joel LaChappelle said he had been fined $10 and costs ($22.30) for assault by Woodcock, while Miss Olive Coates, the complainant, denied receiving $1.50 witness fees, the Woodcock had sworn she had been paid. Miss May Coates said the same, and her father said he had applied in

Constable Peter Trivett told of two boys paying $9 for injuring two girls, 88 going to a doctor and $1 to

"That was one of Magistrate Lloyd's cases," commented his honor. "I mention it because I heard a complaint that Mr. Woodcock has been taking Mr.

Mr. Woodcock explained that it had been arranged.

Constable Trivett was asked if a letter was true which he had written, and which went on to say concerning Col. Lloyd that "in many cases he is so intoxicated he does not know what he is doing." Witness said it was. Col. Lloyd, who was present, said nothing.

Robert Marshall said he had received no witness fees in a case tried before Lloyd in 1905, tho the defendant, Edwards, said he had paid into court $27.75. Lloyd had denied receiving any. Marshall had written Judge Winchester and had also mentioned two other cases, but as a witness he knew nothing of them. He admitted that Beverley Woodcock, a son of the magistrate, had written the letter for him.

had written the letter for him.

Col. Lloyd a Witness.

Col. Lloyd was asked to explain why he had charged $2 in a case when the tariff was $1.70. He thought he was entitled to it, and also, referring to the trial of four Italian disorderlies on Sunday, said the ends of justice could be just as well served then. The quartet were let go, but had been charged about $15 "to square matters for a broken plate glass and the rest."

A letter from Magistrate Woodcock to the attorney-general's department was read, which said that Col. Lloyd was "a disgrace to the bench; he can't even make out the papers for a conviction."

County Constable Bourlier had charged $2 for serving papers six miles off, but hasn't got the money.

W. J. 'Hodge had been fined $5 by Woodcock, but paid only $2.50. Joseph Wooding, in a letter, said that as County Constable John Savage had come to him on a Sunday night for $6 to square an offence, threatening that if not paid it would be $12. Next day he came again for the $6, and said if it wasn't paid it would be $1 an hour up till midnight, and if it went till Menday he would be sent to jail. His wife had paid. Savage said he could not remember the incident.

Bail Bond Fees. Magistrate Ellis of Toronto Junction said all fees were paid to the county excepting bail bond fees. These were $1.25, the same as charged by Magistrate Kingsford in the city.

"Do you mean to say that is done in Toronto?" enquired the judge. "If thirty or forty poor Chinamen come before Magistrate Kingsford and he allows them out on heil to see the second to the allows them out on bail he collects $1.25 from each?" Magistrate Ellis said he had been so 'Well, I haven't examined your acwell, I haven't examined your ac-counts yet," said the judge. "That will do for to-day. You are allowed only 25c for each bail bond." Magistrate Kingsford explained later 25c for each bail bond."

Magistrate Kingsford explained later that he charged $1.25 for bail bonds only when he had to visit the jail or a police station.
