J. S. Flaglor this morning installed John C. Leonard as postmaster in the Carleton branch office. This will relieve the two men from the St. John office who have been doing the work, and in whose absence the staff in the general office has been two men short. One man, however, will be left with Mr. Leonard for a short time longer.

Michael Kelly, an habitual drunkard, endeavored to escape being fined by denying the usual charge. Special Officer Olive testified that Kelly was intoxicated and used profanity on Reed's Point yesterday afternoon.

The journey to the South End lock-up was beset with many vicissitudes as Kelly proved very refractory and several bystanders declined to assist the special policeman.

In court Kelly claimed he was solved.
