When Ironing is a Pleasure in Warm Weather

Get away from the old, tiresome, nerve-racking method of using stove heated irons which compel you to work in a hot kitchen and keep you running between the stove and the ironing board almost constantly. Adopt the easy, pleasant way which comes with the possession of which enable you to take the ironing to any room in the house, or even on the back porch, in very warm weather. Simply attach the cord to any light socket, turn on the current, and heat your iron. Canadian Beauty Electric Irons are handsome, durable and give you the MOST SERVICE FOR THE SMALLEST COST FOR CURRENT.

You'll find them in the HOUSEHOLD DEPARTMENT—SECOND FLOOR.

The C. P. R. passenger department announce that a change will be made in the suburban service on Sept. 18. Full particulars will be given at a later date.

FUNERAL ON SUNDAY

The funeral of Orlo Brown, who lost his life at Queen square, will be held, last evening, will be held on Sunday afternoon at half past two from his father's home, 52 Water street, west end.

TOOK AWAY 1000

The C. P. R. special which left here last night for western points took away 1000 harvesters, the largest number ever leaving this city on a second excursion train. Four cars contained women and children, while the remaining number were packed with laborers.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

The home of Miss Audrey M. McCormick was the scene of a happy gathering when many friends called on Wednesday evening and tendered her a party in honor of her birthday. Supper was served and games and dancing were enjoyed. Many presents were received testifying to her popularity. After a very pleasant evening the gathering broke up at 12:30.

MARKET CHANGES

The new scales and track system installed in the city market were put into operation this morning and are reported to be giving general satisfaction. The painting of the building has been almost completed and the stall holders are now touching up their wood work, with the result that the market presents a rather attractive appearance this morning.

ONE WAY STREETS

For the future North and South Market streets, which are the property of the city of St. John, will be one way streets and signs have been erected to control the traffic. Teams will be allowed to pass on North Market street from Charlotte down to German, while on traffic from German to Charlotte will go along South Market street.

STEAMER SANK

The steamer Albatross was completely burned at Beebe's Point, below Gagetown, on Thursday night. The vessel was moored there for the night and about 11:30 the captain, Donald Williams, was awakened by smoke from the engine room entering his cabin. He hurried in awakening the crew and all got safely off. The steamer burned to the water's edge and then sank. She is partially insured.

NOVELTY SHOWER

A novelty shower was held on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Graves, Duke street west, under the auspices of the Young People's Society of Ladlow street Baptist church, in honor of their president, Miss Erminie Cochrane. The shower was a success and the first meeting of the amalgamated congregation the amount necessary will be realized.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF JEWISH PLANS

The amalgamation of the two Jewish synagogues in St. John is now in the process of completion, it was announced yesterday, and a provisional committee of twenty members, appointed by the two congregations, are working on the transfer of property, the securing of a charter, and the raising of a fund to wipe out the existing debts on the two synagogues. It is expected that at the first meeting of the amalgamated congregation the amount necessary will be realized.

PLAN BRINGING CRESCENTS HERE

Baseball fans throughout the city will be interested to learn that the manager of St. Peter's baseball team is arranging to bring the Crescents, champions of Halifax City League, here in the near future for two games. He is also corresponding with other teams with a view to having them come here to play St. Peter's. A game was scheduled for last afternoon, but owing to the inclement weather and the condition of the grounds after the heavy rainfall it had to be called off.

THE LATE ROBERT A. LOGAN

A Frederickian despatch to The Times announced the death of Robert A. Logan at the home of Mrs. Emily Logan, North Devon, after a lingering illness, at the age of seventy-nine years. Mr. Logan was one of the best known men in New Brunswick, being for forty years a prominent bridge builder. For ten years he was inspector of the Canada Eastern Division of the C. N. R. and for nine years he was structural superintendent of bridges under the Conservative government and had 226 bridges in York county to look after, and his work was entirely satisfactory.

SAY COAL EMBARGO WILL BE MODIFIED

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 14.—The embargo on the export of coal recently declared by Hon. F. B. Carvell, fuel commissioner and chairman of the Dominion Railway Commission, is to be modified so as to permit at least some exporting from the province of Nova Scotia, according to statements of miners' union officials and operators last night.

One of Life's Little Comedies as Seen by a Plumbing Inspector

It falls to the lot of the plumbing inspector employed by the department of water and sewerage to witness many of the little comedies, and sometimes the tragedies, which go to make up domestic life in the families of the city and they could no doubt many tales unfold. Their round of duties takes them right into the bosom of the family where the story of life, not apparent from the street is woven.

One of these gentlemen had an experience this week which perhaps recalled vividly some of his own childhood days and caused him some amusement while it lasted. The incident occurred in the eastern end of the city. The inspector had entered a house and was proceeding down a pair of very dimly lighted steps to see if his department's orders regarding the protection of plumbing had been carried out. As he reached the cellar floor a hand was laid on his arm and a tiny voice piped out, "Got yer ticket?"

"That ticket?" the inspector.

"Yes, the Catcher-gammer kids," said the voice.

His eyes having become somewhat accustomed to the murky twilight, the inspector made a survey of his surroundings. The cellar was musty, "packed to the doors" with juvenile humanity. At the far side opposite the stairs two very unambitious candles flickered in front of what appeared to be a piece of dirty canvas hanging from the beams of the round floor.

"Cost ye two cents if ye want to stay," he of the piping voice announced. The two coppers were handed over and a limp piece of cardboard was pressed into the water man's hand.

"How much for a box seat?" inquired the visitor.

"Nickle," was the terse reply. Three more pennies followed their two companions. From the Stygian depths was mysteriously produced a soap box and the inspector took his "box" and sought his way to the street.

The canvas curtain was pulled aside and the show started. A girl of about fifteen years appeared on the stage of the improvised stage, dressed in boy's clothes and it became evident that she was "there" the place. A six-year-old youngster took upon himself the heavy duties of villain and of the thirteen or fourteen youngsters who appeared one after the other at least ten of them fell victims to a wooden tomahawk which he wielded with marvellous dexterity. At times the force of his blow went beyond his youthful control and the deaths of the players died rather noisy deaths.

The drama ran on without abatement for more than half an hour without any indication of an impending climax, and the water inspector crept silently up the stairs to the street. But stealth was not necessary—the childish population of the underground theatre were so enthralled in the scene which was being unfolded before them that not an eye saw his departure.

It was not until the representative of the water department reached the street that he realized that the mission on which he had come had slipped from his mind, but he was loath to return and disturb the performance. He did the only thing that was left for him to do—he procrastinated.

Distinctiveness In Home Furnishings

There is a widespread demand today for furniture that creates for the home that atmosphere of refinement—furniture that immediately impresses the visitor with the unusual charm and attractiveness of the home. No one wants a commonplace home. It's a home that bespeaks distinctiveness—that truly reflects one's personality, that everyone desires. And what else can so completely attain that desire, as sensible, distinctive furniture does!

Discrimination in selecting that quality of furniture to suit the demands for not only homes that are the last word in luxury, but for cozy, comfortable little cottages as well, has been an important influence for the repeated patronage that this store enjoys. Customers come in again and again, not always with the intention of buying but to see the beautiful new furnishings in the latest and most distinctive designs. And not to be disregarded, is the intrinsic worth of this better quality furniture—furniture that is built to endure and which you appreciate and enjoy in after years.
