

Brown Won Auto Race

Penalty Kick Won Game

Yale Beat Princeton

Brown in Benz Car Wins Grand Prize

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 12.—The New York boy who, four years ago, ran away from home to become a driver of a racing auto, today won the grand prize race, the blue ribbon event of auto contests. Speeding faster and farther than man ever went before in an auto road race, this young man, David Bruce Brown, won by barely more than a second at the end of 41.2 miles. He flashed across the electric timing wire 1.42 seconds ahead of Victor Hemery, the Frenchman. His time was 5:53:6.77, and he made a new American record of 70.55 miles an hour.

Both Brown and Hemery drove Benz cars, so that the foreign machines triumphed over the American-made racers. "Wild Bob" Burman, driving the maddest race of his career in an American car, the Marquette, finished third, getting not only third money, but an additional thousand dollars for the first American driver to finish in an American car.

Before the race, it was said that the American team planned to set a pace in the early stages which would burn the tires off the big foreign machines. Apparently the Americans tried this trick, and it nearly succeeded, for most of the foreigners either were stalled or wrecked before the finish. But the foreigners were too numerous. Two of their cars, the winning Benz machines, still remained on the track at the end of the race. All the other finishers were American cars.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

Ferro was shot into the top branches of a 20 foot willow which caught him and broke his fall. He ran to the car beside which Wagner was lying. The driver got up with the aid of his mechanic and walked to the German club nearby. Later he was taken to a hospital where it was reported he was not seriously hurt.

Fifteen cars started in the race. Fully 50,000 spectators saw the race about 25,000 of them at the grandstands and the others lining the track in a fringe about 12 miles long. One portion of the track, running through swamps, was inaccessible to spectators.

The militia with loaded rifles kept every foot of the course clear for an hour before the race until 30 minutes after the finish.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

Ferro was shot into the top branches of a 20 foot willow which caught him and broke his fall. He ran to the car beside which Wagner was lying. The driver got up with the aid of his mechanic and walked to the German club nearby. Later he was taken to a hospital where it was reported he was not seriously hurt.

Fifteen cars started in the race. Fully 50,000 spectators saw the race about 25,000 of them at the grandstands and the others lining the track in a fringe about 12 miles long. One portion of the track, running through swamps, was inaccessible to spectators.

The militia with loaded rifles kept every foot of the course clear for an hour before the race until 30 minutes after the finish.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

Ferro was shot into the top branches of a 20 foot willow which caught him and broke his fall. He ran to the car beside which Wagner was lying. The driver got up with the aid of his mechanic and walked to the German club nearby. Later he was taken to a hospital where it was reported he was not seriously hurt.

Fifteen cars started in the race. Fully 50,000 spectators saw the race about 25,000 of them at the grandstands and the others lining the track in a fringe about 12 miles long. One portion of the track, running through swamps, was inaccessible to spectators.

The militia with loaded rifles kept every foot of the course clear for an hour before the race until 30 minutes after the finish.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

Ferro was shot into the top branches of a 20 foot willow which caught him and broke his fall. He ran to the car beside which Wagner was lying. The driver got up with the aid of his mechanic and walked to the German club nearby. Later he was taken to a hospital where it was reported he was not seriously hurt.

Fifteen cars started in the race. Fully 50,000 spectators saw the race about 25,000 of them at the grandstands and the others lining the track in a fringe about 12 miles long. One portion of the track, running through swamps, was inaccessible to spectators.

The militia with loaded rifles kept every foot of the course clear for an hour before the race until 30 minutes after the finish.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

Ferro was shot into the top branches of a 20 foot willow which caught him and broke his fall. He ran to the car beside which Wagner was lying. The driver got up with the aid of his mechanic and walked to the German club nearby. Later he was taken to a hospital where it was reported he was not seriously hurt.

Fifteen cars started in the race. Fully 50,000 spectators saw the race about 25,000 of them at the grandstands and the others lining the track in a fringe about 12 miles long. One portion of the track, running through swamps, was inaccessible to spectators.

The militia with loaded rifles kept every foot of the course clear for an hour before the race until 30 minutes after the finish.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

Ferro was shot into the top branches of a 20 foot willow which caught him and broke his fall. He ran to the car beside which Wagner was lying. The driver got up with the aid of his mechanic and walked to the German club nearby. Later he was taken to a hospital where it was reported he was not seriously hurt.

Fifteen cars started in the race. Fully 50,000 spectators saw the race about 25,000 of them at the grandstands and the others lining the track in a fringe about 12 miles long. One portion of the track, running through swamps, was inaccessible to spectators.

The militia with loaded rifles kept every foot of the course clear for an hour before the race until 30 minutes after the finish.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

Ferro was shot into the top branches of a 20 foot willow which caught him and broke his fall. He ran to the car beside which Wagner was lying. The driver got up with the aid of his mechanic and walked to the German club nearby. Later he was taken to a hospital where it was reported he was not seriously hurt.

Fifteen cars started in the race. Fully 50,000 spectators saw the race about 25,000 of them at the grandstands and the others lining the track in a fringe about 12 miles long. One portion of the track, running through swamps, was inaccessible to spectators.

The militia with loaded rifles kept every foot of the course clear for an hour before the race until 30 minutes after the finish.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

Ferro was shot into the top branches of a 20 foot willow which caught him and broke his fall. He ran to the car beside which Wagner was lying. The driver got up with the aid of his mechanic and walked to the German club nearby. Later he was taken to a hospital where it was reported he was not seriously hurt.

Fifteen cars started in the race. Fully 50,000 spectators saw the race about 25,000 of them at the grandstands and the others lining the track in a fringe about 12 miles long. One portion of the track, running through swamps, was inaccessible to spectators.

The militia with loaded rifles kept every foot of the course clear for an hour before the race until 30 minutes after the finish.

Behind Burman were the demerit cars of some of the world's most famous drivers, who had failed to make their machines last through the terrific strain of 24 laps of curving roadways. These foreigners went to defeat fighting gamely, and in some instances recklessly.

Wagner Injured. Wagner in his Fiat, was one of the griftiest. His daring nearly cost him his life, and that of his mechanic, Louis Ferro. On the back straight, while coming down a small hill at top speed, Wagner lost control of the machine for the fraction of a second, one of his front wheels striking a stone culvert, smashing the wheel and throwing the car on its side for a slide of fifty feet into the trees bordering the speedway.

FREDERICTON AND ST. JOHN WELL MATCHED

Score 3-0 in Favor of Visitors in Hard-Fought Game on Saturday--High School Walks Over Carleton.

Three points acquired as a result of a pretty penalty kick from the 25 yard line, awarded for interference, gave the burly Fredericton team the victory over the Algonquins in a hard fought game on the Every Day Club grounds Saturday afternoon. Despite the advantage the visitors had in weight and practice, the teams proved to be very evenly matched, though as far as territory was concerned, the locals had the best of it. Several times the visitors were hard-pressed on their own line and only prevented a score by timely kicking and gains when the ball went into touch. Once the Indians would have scored a dribble if the forwards following had not mistaken the five yard for the touch line, and downed the ball only two feet short of the goal.

The game was marked by more or less severe injuries to St. John players. Sandy Thorne fared the worst, having his collar bone broken in a heavy tackle towards the end of the last half. H. Howard was kicked in the shin, and was out twice during the game. Smith had his shoulder wrenched just before the whistle blew for half time, but finished the game. MacKinnon's neck was given a bad twist. Owing, perhaps, to their seasoned condition and superior weight, the Fredericton men came through scathless.

A fair crowd assembled to see the game, played on a wet, slippery field, the clouds obscuring the sun overhead.

Play in Detail. Fredericton kicked off against the wind and sun, and following up sharply the ball into touch. The visitors gained steadily on the throw-ins, and played continued in Algonquin territory. The line was not in danger at this time, however, and aided by sharp work by quarters and some running by the halves, the Algonquin forwards began to shove the heavier Fredericton scrum. Play shifted to the opposite corner of the field, but Fredericton fought stubbornly. One the ball went over, but the man was forced into touch. The visitors gained in kicks and the ball went back to the Algonquin line. A score seemed imminent, but Smith relieved the situation by breaking through the Fredericton line twice on dribbles. He was hurt on the second, but the game was delayed for a few minutes. When play was resumed, the Algonquin pack carried the ball with a rush and got by Fredericton halves, Leonard following closely, dropped on the ball two feet short of the line, thinking he was over.

Just then the whistle blew and the locals lost their best chance of scoring.

Second Half. The Algonquins kicked off in the second and held the ball in Fredericton's territory for some minutes. Then passed to the platoon across the field and one of the Fredericton men got away on a dribble, Melrose interfered rather flagrantly and Deedes was given the chance to try a kick. With his wind in his eyes he had no difficulty in placing the ball between the posts. This proved the only score of the game. The Algonquins were pressed on their own line and Deeds got over, but Melrose also had his hands on the ball. Neither team had any chance of a score after this. The Indians gained ground but did not get the ball past the Fredericton 25 yard line. Sadler dropped off the Fredericton team when Thorne was hurt. One of the playful Fredericton men caught Howard by his injured leg out of the way of an approaching scrum, and was punished by a free kick being awarded St. John.

Play ceased with the ball in mid field.

Individual Players. The game throughout was not fast but every inch of ground was stubbornly contested, the forwards doing most of the work.

Turner proved a find at quarter playing a star game in getting the ball, but did not pass enough. Melrose made some pretty runs but was forced into touch before recovering.

For the Fredericton's Prof. Day gained much ground in the throw-ins from touch. Brooks and Babbitt seemed to be the men behind the clearing up, and frequently from behind the scrummage.

The teams were: St. John. Full Fredericton, Finley, Jones, Johnson

Halves. McKnight, Willis, Babbitt, Thorne, Jardine, Rutter

Quarters. Turner, Glynie, Simms, Sadler, McGowan, Brooks

Forwards. Day, Smith, Wandless, Stubbs, Stephens, Leonard, Deeds, Grayson, Clarke, Stewart, Colter, McLeod, Barker

High School, 14; Carleton, 0.

The junior game between High School and Carleton was snapper and much more interesting to the spectators. Plenty of clean passing, foot running and hard tackling made the game a spectacular one, and although one sided, the fact that Carleton was playing two men short must be taken into consideration.

High School players were also in perfect physical condition and mention that some of the West Side boys occupied the intervening period between halves in smoking cigarettes is sufficient comment on the general condition. The team manager who countenances this sort of thing can never expect anything but the small

Papke Holder of Ketchell's Title

BILLY PAPKE.

Bill Papke, now in Australia, is the middleweight champion of the world, succeeding the late Stanley Ketchell.

Sam Langford has no claim to the title. Sam hasn't been a middleweight for so long he can't remember when he fought at 158 pounds. Sammy couldn't make the weight now unless he saved off a leg. That lets out Joe Woodman's meal ticket.

Sailor Burke isn't a near champion. The sailor's disposition to dog when the going is uneven puts him outside the pale.

Willie Lewis would last just about long enough with Papke to get warmed up, providing the Keweenaw Thunderbolt really wanted to put him away.

In Pittsburgh they think wool of Frank Klaus, but Klaus has never done anything outside of Pittsburg, and his only claim to consideration is that he gave poor Ketchell a stiff battle for a few rounds.

Frank Mantell is a candidate, but he has a long route to travel before he will be nearly as bright a light as the Illinois boy. Jim Smith is another contender, who may some day be a top-notch, but not just yet for he is a top-notch.

When you look over the entries you can't see much besides Papke. The chances are the champion you must call him champion, you know will have to meet Mantell when he returns from Australia, and then an idea of just how good Mantell is will be known.

ATTEL SHADED BY F. CONLEY

New Orleans, La., Nov. 13.—Al Attel, featherweight champion, and Frankie Conley, holder of the bantamweight title, fought 15 fast rounds to a draw at the West Side Athletic Club today. Conley did all of the leading and had a shade the better of Attel in almost every round, up to the 13th. Both were strong and aggressive at the finish.

end of a 140 score. The would-be football players of today must learn to cut out the coffee naps.

Play throughout the game was almost entirely in Carleton territory. Donnelly broke through the defense twice for two clean tries, but failed to convert in each instance. The High School captain scored once more in the second half and Harry who played over for the fourth try, converting it himself.

The teams were: High School Carleton. Full. High School, 14; Carleton, 0.

Halves. McKnight, Willis, Babbitt, Thorne, Jardine, Rutter

Quarters. Turner, Glynie, Simms, Sadler, McGowan, Brooks

Forwards. Day, Smith, Wandless, Stubbs, Stephens, Leonard, Deeds, Grayson, Clarke, Stewart, Colter, McLeod, Barker

High School, 14; Carleton, 0.

The junior game between High School and Carleton was snapper and much more interesting to the spectators. Plenty of clean passing, foot running and hard tackling made the game a spectacular one, and although one sided, the fact that Carleton was playing two men short must be taken into consideration.

High School players were also in perfect physical condition and mention that some of the West Side boys occupied the intervening period between halves in smoking cigarettes is sufficient comment on the general condition. The team manager who countenances this sort of thing can never expect anything but the small

High School, 14; Carleton, 0.

The junior game between High School and Carleton was snapper and much more interesting to the spectators. Plenty of clean passing, foot running and hard tackling made the game a spectacular one, and although one sided, the fact that Carleton was playing two men short must be taken into consideration.

High School players were also in perfect physical condition and mention that some of the West Side boys occupied the intervening period between halves in smoking cigarettes is sufficient comment on the general condition. The team manager who countenances this sort of thing can never expect anything but the small

High School, 14; Carleton, 0.

The junior game between High School and Carleton was snapper and much more interesting to the spectators. Plenty of clean passing, foot running and hard tackling made the game a spectacular one, and although one sided, the fact that Carleton was playing two men short must be taken into consideration.

Advertisement for Zooker Collars, featuring an image of a man in a suit and a collar. Text includes 'Zooker COLLARS', 'give you collar style, wear and comfort that come from tested materials, perfectly made.', and 'They Fit 2 for a Quarter'.

Advertisement for Nickel 'The Chink of Golden Gulch', featuring a biograph. Text includes 'NICKEL "The Chink of Golden Gulch"', 'A FINE WESTERN BIOGRAPH', and 'WHO'S WHO AND WHY?—Comedy'.

Advertisement for Yale Seventh in the List, featuring a list of names and scores. Text includes 'YALE SEVENTH IN THE LIST', 'Notwithstanding Defeat of Princeton the Blue is Not Ranked Among First Teams—Harvard Leads.', and a list of names and scores.

Advertisement for Tigers Lose to Argonauts, featuring a list of names and scores. Text includes 'TIGERS LOSE TO ARGONAUTS', 'Hamilton Champions Drop Last Game of Season to Mediocre Team—Ottawa Trims Montreal.', and a list of names and scores.

Advertisement for Red Cross Gin, featuring an image of a man holding a bottle of gin. Text includes 'RED CROSS GIN', 'MADE IN CANADA', and 'Will sustain your strength and help you to enjoy a ripe old age free from infirmities.'

YALE DEFEATS PRINCETON 5-3

Tigers Were Scored on for First Time This Year—Harvard Makes it 18-0 Against Dartmouth.

Princeton—Yale 5; Princeton 3. Cambridge—Harvard, 18; Dartmouth 0.

Philadelphia—Pennsylvania 0; Michigan 0.

Yale—Cornell 18; Chicago 0. Providence—Brown 50; Vermont 0. Syracuse—Colgate 11; Syracuse 0.

New Haven—Harvard freshmen 14; Yale freshmen 9.

Minnesota—Minnesota 28; University of Wisconsin 0.

Harford—Trinity 37; Haverford 0. Cleveland—Case 20; Kenyon 0.

Columbus—Ohio State University 6; Ohio Wesleyan 0.

Chicago—Illinois 27; Northwestern 0.

Saturday Princeton dropped out of the list of football teams whose goal lines have been kept clear this fall. Dartmouth was scored on for the third time this year, while no change took place in either Pennsylvania or Michigan.

Following is a record of the big teams this year:

Harvard. 22..... Bates 0

23..... Bowdoin 0

21..... Williams 0

17..... Amherst 0

12..... Brown 0

27..... West Point 5

18..... Dartmouth 0

153..... Yale. 23..... Wesleyan 0

12..... Syracuse 6

CONVIDO Port-the Pride of Portugal

Since 1670 Convido Port has led the world. Its rich flavor has never been equalled.

Sole Canadian Agent DORoblin Toronto

Low. Close. Bid. 14.46 54

55 60 62

50 53 54

69 71 72

84 14.76 78

84 86 87

14.82 84

79 80 81

54 51 56