Dear Sirs:

I am interested in obtaining all the information I can on early agriculture in this province and I believe that apart from the cultivation of crops by the Hudson Bay Company some at least must have been done by the Indians. I am wondering, therefore, if you could give me the dates that Indian reservations were first established in B.C. whether practically all the reservations were established at the one time, or whether there has been a gradual evolution in this state of affairs. I would also appreciate very much if you have the information on hand if you would let me know what crops were planted on the different reservations and anything in relation thereto.

Yours very truly,

J. J. Woods
