

LODGES.

WELLINGTON Lodge.
No. 46, A. F. & A. M.
G. R. C. meets on the first Monday of every month, in the Masonic Hall, Fifth St., at 7:30 p.m. Visiting brethren heartily welcomed.

ALEX. GREGORY, Sec'y.
A. E. JEWETT, W. M.

LEGAL.

THOMAS SCULLARD—Barrister and Solicitor, Victoria Block, Chatham, Ont.

SMITH, HERBERT D.—County Clerk, Chatham, Ont. Office, Harrison Hall, Chatham,
Ont.

E. B. O'LYNN—Barrister, Solicitor, etc., Conveyancer, Notary Public, Office, King Street, opposite Merchants' Bank, Chatham, Ont.

WALKER & REEVE—Barristers, Solicitors, etc., Chatham, Ont. Offices over Chatham Loan & Savings Co. Money to lend on mortgages. John A. Walker, M. G.
John Reeve.

WILSON, PIKE & GUNDY—Barristers, Solicitors of the Supreme Court, Notaries Public, etc. Money to loan on mortgages. Office, Fifth Street, opposite Merchants' Bank, Chatham, Ont.

Houston, Stone & Scane—Barristers, Solicitors, Conveyancers, Notaries Public, etc. Private funds to loan at lowest current rates. Offices, upstairs in Sheldrick Block, opposite H. Macdonald's store, 21, Houston, Fred. Stone, W. W. Scane.

STANDARD BANK OF CANADA

HEAD OFFICE, TORONTO.
Branches and agents at all principal points in Canada, U. S. and Great Britain. Drafts issued and notes discounted. Savings Bank Department deposits (which may be withdrawn without delay) received and interest allowed thereon at the highest current rates.

W. T. SHANNON,
Manager Chatham Branch.

BANK OF MONTREAL

ESTABLISHED 1817.
Capital (all paid up) $1,000,000 Reserve $10,000,000 Drafts bought and sold. Collections made on favorable terms. Interest allowed on deposits at current rates in Savings Bank Department, or on deposit receipts.

GEO. MASSEY,
Manager Chatham Branch.

MONEY TO LOAN.

MONEY TO LEND
ON LAND MORTGAGES
ON CHATTEL MORTGAGES
ON NOTES
To pay on demand. To buy property on easy terms. To advance money on any security.

J. W. WHITE,
Barrister,
Opp. Grand Opera House, Chatham.

Money to Loan

ON MORTGAGES
4-12 and 15 per cent.
Liberal Terms and privileges to Borrowers. Apply to LEWIS & RICHARDS

FARM FOR SALE

I have for sale 100 acres, more or less, of part lot 16, concession 5, in the Township of Dover, east of Baldwin street, owned by William H.
Rinko.

I also have money to loan at the lowest rate of interest.

HENRY DAGNEAD.

"The YELLOWSTONE

NATIONAL PARK

Is something absolutely unique in this world.
President Roosevelt.
The popular route to this delightful spot is via Union Pacific to Montana, thence by stage to all points in the park.

The trip from Montana, by the splendid Concord Coach of the Montana & Yellowstone Stage Co., through scenery hardly inferior to the park itself.

Very low rates during June, July, August and September.
Inquire of

F. B. ONATE, G. A.,
123 Woodward Ave.,
DETROIT, MICH.

RUBBER

STAMPS

ARE PROMPTLY
FURNISHED
THE ADVANCE

ICE

Severe Chest Coughs
And Painful Coughs

Demand Prompt and Active Treatment.

The great danger in troubles of this class is "delay." Don't neglect a Cough or Cold, it can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected—Bronchitis, Pneumonia, Asthma, Catarrh and Consumption will surely follow the neglect to cure.
The first dose of

DR. WOOD'S
NORWAY PINE SYRUP

will ease the cough, soothe the inflamed throat and loosen the phlegm.

Mrs. Joseph Paradis, Blackwell, Ont., writes:—I had such a bad cold I could hardly breathe. I noticed Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup advertised, so had my husband get me two bottles—I had only used one before I was cured. I recommended it to a friend, and two bottles cured her after other remedies had failed—we both keep it in the house now and would not be without it. It is the best cough medicine I have ever taken.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

In Leicester, England.
The municipality of Leicester, England, having made a financial success in maintaining public gas, electricity and water plants, is now installing a street car system to cover, when completed, about forty-two miles. Five sets of documents will radiate from a central point, and the fare on either line to the end of the route will be 2 cents.
The profits derived from municipal ownership go to reduce taxes or to benefit the public in other ways.

$100 REWARD $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Cetarrah Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity.
Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Cetarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have gone to great pains to perfect a cure which they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure.
Send for list of testimonials to Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold at all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constitution.

A Dreadful Disappointment.

"They say he was disappointed in love."

"Yes. Her father failed in business just a week before the day set for the wedding."

The Bliss of Riches.

"Money," said the wise man, "does not bring happiness."

"Oh, yes, it does," said the still wiser man, "if you have just enough of it."

WHAT CAUSES SNORING.

When asleep, people that snore breathe through the mouth instead of the nostrils, which are choked with catarrh. Just use "Catarrh Cure" before retiring and you'll quickly cure the cause of snoring.
By healing the membranes, Catarrh Cure makes a complete cure in every case; it cleans the nostrils, stops the discharge and prevents drooping in the throat in a few minutes. Nothing so pleasant or certain to cure snoring, catarrh or colds as Catarrh Cure—that's worth remembering.

An unfilled promise is apt to come back in a way not at all pleasant.

In some of the Swiss valleys the inhabitants are all afflicted with goiter, a "thick neck." Instead of regarding this as a deformity they seem to think it a natural feature of physical development, and tourists passing through the valleys are sometimes teased by the grotesque inhabitants, because they are without this offensive swelling. Thus a form of disease may become so common that it is regarded as a natural and necessary condition of life. It is in a way, large extent, with what are called diseases of women. Every woman suffers more or less from irregularity, ulceration, debilitating drains, or female weakness, and this suffering is as common and so universal that many women accept it as a condition natural and necessary to their sex.
But it is a condition as unnatural as it is unnecessary. The use of Dr.
"Favorite Prescription" makes weak themselves the delicate womanly functions, and regulates the womanly functions, so that woman is practically delivered from the pain and misery which eat up ten years of her life—between the ages of fifteen and forty-five.
"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well.

There is a streak of selfishness in every man, but some manage to keep it under subjection.

OUR OUTWARD SEEMING

ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT SAYS THE CANADIAN IS AN AMERICAN.

This is Galt and Wernwood to Englishmen. Visiting Canada—Canadians. With All Simplicity, Deny the Soft Impression—Good Enough to Say, However, That Despite Yankeeisms the Canadian Is a Good Fellow.

The excellent series of Canadian articles lately completed in The Birmingham Post will have carried your readers across the great "Dominion"—from the St. Lawrence to the Pacific slope—as in a moving picture. We have had but before us, in a succession of vivid pictures, the strenuous life of the city and the settlement. We have had a detailed portrait of "Jake Canuck," of the plains, rough and ready, full of pluck, energy, self-reliance, optimism and grit, the finest of the world. But one feels that the Canadian town dweller has been somewhat crowded out of the canvas.

Although very beautiful externally, the Parliament building at Ottawa is badly laid out inside. Most of the inconveniences, including the antiquated system of ventilation, the cracks in the walls, the bad acoustics of the Green Chamber, the members could put up with it if they only had room to turn around.
Everybody complains of narrow quarters, writes the special correspondent of The Toronto Star. The building, with two hundred and thirty-four members, each of whom would like to have a cosy corner to think in and write letters in, has hundred rooms for the business and recreation of the House. The Senate, with eighty-four members, has the same number of rooms, and the lack of accommodation does not press there so hard. Even with more than its fair share of the Legislative building the Senate finds reason, however, to regret that it should be confining, cramped, and confined, sometimes solved by the difficulty of turning an official out and taking room. For instance, Black Rod, who used to have apartments in the building, has been evicted, and now he has to find a place for light, heat, and rent.

The Senate can do anything and nobody is offended, or if they are, it doesn't do them any good, for the Senate is high above the judgment of ordinary persons. In the Commons, however, they are more tender of people's feelings, and the hundred rooms have to go a long way.
If the House could take the hundred rooms and make a reasonable distribution of them much of the presented inconvenience could be avoided.
It would be possible for all the officials of the House to be properly provided and to have a large number of rooms for the accommodation of the members. But the chief thing that is considered on the "Commons" side is that nothing or nobody shall be disturbed, that no vested right shall be impugned, and no long-standing privilege questioned. No doubt that the members of Parliament should be better treated than they do in the way of rooms.
No one will admit that No. 16 and No. 8 are too noisy for a writing room, and that there should be provision made for the members to correspondence privately without having to leave the building to do it.
But the fact of the matter is that the members must remain crowded until somebody comes along who will leave the building to do it.

The officials are good fellows enough, modest and not overweening in their private capacity, but officially they feel very big and need lots of space to spread. They know that the members of Parliament should be better treated than they do in the way of rooms.

To all outward seeming the Canadian is an American. In his dress, his manners, and his speech, he is in his sports, his slang and his twang, the Canuck affects the Yankee, and in everything, except his political allegiance, inclines to the States rather than to Britain. All this, of course, is gall and wormwood to the Englishman visiting Canada. I am aware that the Canadian himself would deny the impactment, and in all sincerity, too;
the fact being that he is not fully conscious of the extent of his own Americanization. In the matter of accent, for example, he cannot understand being mistaken for an American. Canadians, in particular, wax wroth at being called Americans; they cannot imagine how they can be any question about a thing so obvious. And obvious it may be to themselves. Americans and Canadians can doubtless tell each other apart. But to the average Britisher the accents of the two peoples are as undistinguishable as the dialects of Yorkshire and Lancashire are to the Londoner. Your special correspondent, in one of his articles, said that Americans and Canadians were sufficiently near neighbors to be learned to cordially dislike each other.
That may be so. But constant contact has had its inevitable effect, and the younger colonist is a copy of his big cousin from over the border. That would not prevent his fighting him, however, if the need arose, for Canada is as loyal as the sea is salt.

In spite of his Yankeeisms—because of them, in some aspects—our Canadian is a "good fellow." He would be a still better one did he expectatless. Beside the qualities of sternness mentioned above, he has very many likeable points; he is generally cheerful, open-hearted and friendly. He is almost invariably cordial in his welcome of an Englishman—that is, if he is taken from the right side. This means that the English visitor must take the Canadian at his own valuation, which is not a low one. He is cock-sure that the Dominion is the keystone of the Empire, and that the Canadian contingent turns the scale of fortune in the Boer war. His Englishman will not cavil at either thesis. The story goes of the Can-uck who heard of the death of Queen Victoria and the accession of King Edward. "The Prince of Wales come to the throne, d'ye say? Gosh! He must be well in with Laurier," was his comment. Overweening self-esteem and hypersensitiveness to criticism are the Canadian's most marked weaknesses. You are treading on thin ice this moment you begin to discuss his country with him. He is

SPECIALLY SENSITIVE ON THE SUBJECT OF
HIS CLIMATE. HE RESENTS THE POPULAR AND CERTAINLY ERRONEOUS BELIEF HELD IN EUROPE THAT CANADA IS A LAND OF
ALMOST ETERNAL SNOW. AND, FAILING TO UNDERSTAND THAT THESE PICTURED
WINTER SCENES APPEAL TO THE IMAGINATION
OF THE PEOPLE OF ENGLAND—WHERE
THERE IS NO WINTER TO SPEAK OF—HE WAXES WROTH WITH TOURISTS WHO TAKE HOME PHOTOS OF ICE PALACES, SNOW-
BOUND STREETS AND FROZEN WATERFALLS.
EVEN IN YOUR PRAISE OF THE LAND YOU MUST BE CAREFUL NOT TO SOUND TOO MUCH OF THE AMAZEMENT AT THE BIG
THINGS HE CAN SHOW YOU. IT IS FATAL
TO LET IT BE SEEN THAT THE REALITY FAR EXCEEDS YOUR PREVIOUS CONCEPTION.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English imagine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and confronted. Consequently he resents the Britisher going home laden with Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

BADLY LAID OUT.

Ottawa Parliament Buildings Face Everybody Into Cramped Quarters.

Although very beautiful externally,
the Parliament building at Ottawa
is badly laid out inside. Most of
the inconveniences, including the an-
tiquated system of ventilation, the
cracks in the walls, the bad acoustics
of the Green Chamber, the members could put up with it if they
only had room to turn around.
Everybody complains of narrow
quarters, writes the special correspondent of The Toronto Star. The
building, with two hundred and
thirty-four members, each of whom
would like to have a cosy corner to
think in and write letters in, has
hundred rooms for the business and
recreation of the House. The Senate,
with eighty-four members, has the
same number of rooms, and the lack
of accommodation does not press
there so hard. Even with more than
its fair share of the Legislative
building the Senate finds reason,
however, to regret that it should be
confining, cramped, and confined,
sometimes solved by the difficulty of
turning an official out and taking
room. For instance, Black Rod, who
used to have apartments in the
building, has been evicted, and now
he has to find a place for light, heat,
and rent.

The Senate can do anything and no-
body is offended, or if they are, it
doesn't do them any good, for the Senate is high above the judgment
of ordinary persons. In the Commons, however, they are more tend-
er of people's feelings, and the hundred rooms have to go a long way.
If the House could take the hundred
rooms and make a reasonable distribution of them much of the presented inconvenience could be avoided.
It would be possible for all the
officials of the House to be properly
provided and to have a large number
of rooms for the accommodation
of the members. But the chief thing
that is considered on the "Commons"
side is that nothing or nobody shall
be disturbed, that no vested right
shall be impugned, and no long-
standing privilege questioned. No doubt that the members of Parliament should be better treated
than they do in the way of rooms.
No one will admit that No. 16
and No. 8 are too noisy for a writing room, and that there should be
provision made for the members to
correspondence privately without having to leave the building to do it.
But the fact of the matter is that
the members must remain crowded
until somebody comes along who will
leave the building to do it.

The officials are good fellows
enough, modest and not overween-
ing in their private capacity, but official-
ly they feel very big and need lots of
space to spread. They know that the members of Parliament should be
better treated than they do in the way
of rooms.

To all outward seeming the Canadian is an American. In his dress,
his manners, and his speech, he is
in his sports, his slang and his
twang, the Canuck affects the Yan-
kee, and in everything, except his
political allegiance, inclines to the States rather than to Britain. All
this, of course, is gall and worm-
wood to the Englishman visiting Canada. I am aware that the Canadian himself would deny the im-
pactment, and in all sincerity, too;
the fact being that he is not fully conscious of the extent of his own Americanization. In the matter of accent,
for example, he cannot understand
being mistaken for an American. Can-
adians, in particular, wax
wroth at being called Americans; they
cannot imagine how they can be
any question about a thing so
obvious. And obvious it may be to themselves. Americans and Canadians can doubtless tell each other
apart. But to the average Britisher
the accents of the two peoples are
as undistinguishable as the dialects
of Yorkshire and Lancashire are to
the Londoner. Your special correspondent, in one of his articles, said
that Americans and Canadians were
sufficiently near neighbors to be
learned to cordially dislike each other.
That may be so. But constant
contact has had its inevitable effect,
and the younger colonist is a copy
of his big cousin from over the bor-
der. That would not prevent his
fighting him, however, if the need
arose, for Canada is as loyal as the
sea is salt.

In spite of his Yankeeisms—because
of them, in some aspects—our Canadian is a "good fellow." He would
be a still better one did he expectat-
less. Beside the qualities of
sternness mentioned above, he has
very many likeable points; he is
generally cheerful, open-hearted and
friendly. He is almost invariably
cordial in his welcome of an Englishman—that is, if he is taken
from the right side. This means that
the English visitor must take the Canadian at his own valuation,
which is not a low one. He is cock-
sure that the Dominion is the key-
stone of the Empire, and that the Canadian contingent turns the scale
of fortune in the Boer war. His
Englishman will not cavil at either
thesis. The story goes of the Can-
uck who heard of the death of Queen Victoria and the accession of King
Edward. "The Prince of Wales come
to the throne, d'ye say? Gosh! He
must be well in with Laurier," was
his comment. Overweening self-
esteem and hypersensitiveness to criticism are the Canadian's most marked weaknesses. You are treading on
thin ice this moment you begin to
discuss his country with him. He is especially sensitive on the subject of his climate. He resents the popular

and certainly erroneous belief held
in Europe that Canada is a land of
almost eternal snow. And, failing to
understand that these pictured
winter scenes appeal to the imagination
of the people of England—where
there is no winter to speak of—he
waxes wroth with tourists who take
home photos of ice palaces, snow-
bound streets and frozen waterfalls.
Even in your praise of the land you
must be careful not to sound too
much of the amazement at the big
things he can show you. It is fatal
to let it be seen that the reality far
exceeds your previous conception.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles
down the streets of Toronto and
confronted. Consequently he resents
the Britisher going home laden with
Indian curiosities as souvenirs of the Dominion.

Of course," says he—if he detects
this suggestion—"you English im-
agine Canada to be all backwoods
and log cabins, and expect to see
Red Indians tracking the paddles down