The Old Elm Tree. Oh ! the old eim tree is standing now, Where it stood so long ago, When it its shadow we children played Till the sun in the west grew low. And its branches reach as far and high. And the sky above is as clear, But under it now no children play, In the golden day of the year.

The sundeame creep thro' the rustling leaves That fall on the moss-grown seat, And tail grace waves where in other year It was trouden by children's feet. And the bees hum ratily in the shade, Through the long bright summer's day, and the soft wind murmurs with lonely sound Where the children used to play.

They all are gone from their children's home, And have wandered far away ; Of all that band of the dear old time, There is not one left to-day. They are parted now by many a mile, And waves and mountains high ; Through the golden gates of the sky.

And many a year has gone. And many a summer's sun Has persed adown the golden west, When the long bright day was done And many an autumn wind has blown, And many a winter past,
O'er hill and vale, its shroud of snow, Since the children met there last.

And the weary years will still roll on With their sumentoe and their pain : But there in the shade of the old elm tree They will never all meet again. But there is a heaven of quiet rest, And its portais are open wide ; And one by one as the angels call, They will meet on the other side.

But he treated God, and was strengthened. In trying to leap a wide ravine, he lost his footing—there was a cound of breaking earth—he fell heavily, and knew no more. When recovered from his stupor, he found himself in a barren ravine between two inaccessible mountains, and the sun chining upon their sides, dearsied him, for it was day. He reflected for a moment upon his probable fate, thought of the anxiety of his family, and resolved to make one last effort. He crept into a crevice in the mountain to acreen his eyes from the excessive light, until he chould have his plans matured, when, to his inexpressible joy, he found it extended further. As been in use through Nova Scotia for twenty and dy years, and in England for many years previous to its introduction here. Its sales have steadily increased from the beginning—a convincing proof of its efficacy and of the esteem in which it is held. For Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Difficulty in Breathing, Incipient Consumption of the Pulmonary Complaints, it may safely be warranted. Read the following, suggesting the evil of delaying in a climate such as ours, to attend to Colds and Conghs:—The Census reports tells us that Consumption carried off, in 1860-61, one hundred and seven persons within the County of Halifax, and seven hundred and sixty-seven from the whole Province. The total number of deaths from all causes, during the same period, was 4679. Thus Consumption takes to itself the credit of having alam one-sizes of those who died during the year—more than any other disease can, except limited. And how deer Consumers of SEIRCHS. having alam one-sizes of those who died during the year-more than any ether disease can, except Diptheria. And how does Consumption axise? Whence does it spring? Why, in neglect of that cold you caught either when you went out in damp weather without a suitable protection for your feet, or when you came home from that social gathering and did not take care to wrap yourself up sufficiently, saying, "Oh, I'm young!" or "I'm hearty!" or "I'm hearty!" and a score of ex-
