The Eye-A HELPMATE

-OR-A TROUBLE-MAKER

In comparison with the gift of sight our other senses are unimportant indeed. And yet most of us will pay infinitely more attention to a sore finger than to tired, overstrained eyes.

Our eyes are at rest only when we are asleep. When all our other senses are in repose our eyes are ever busy, willing servants even when subjected to myriad forms of abuse-long hours at concentrated tasks, reading in a poor light, fine sewing, etc. All these abuses are endured with only occasional grumbling pains in the eyeball, headaches or dizziness -until complete rebellion that means untold suffering or total blindness.

Heed these warnings in time. Glasses will not help
