O. Henry Stories

IX.—A Double Dyed Deceiver.

By O. HENRY

It's time you were making good on your promise. You're not playing up to me square. You've been the prodigal son for four weeks now, and you could have had venal for every penny. Mr. Kid, do you think it's right to leave me out so long on a husk diet? What's the trouble? Don't you get your filial eyes on anything that looks like a gold fish if you'd wanted it? Well, you don't. Everybody knows that you don't. Everybody knows like me you don't. Everybody knows that you don't. Everybody knows that you don't. Everybody knows that you don't.

Why, sure," said the Kid, admiring his diamond, "there's plenty of money up there. I'm no judge of collateral value, but I will undertake for you to say that I've seen the rise of $50,000 at a time in that tin grub box that my adopted father calls his safe. And he lets me carry the key sometimes just to show me that he knows I'm the real little Francisco that strayed from the herd a long time ago."

"Well, what are you waiting for?" asked Thacker angrily. "Don't you forget that I can upset your apple cart any day I want to. If old Urique knew you were an impostor, what sort of things would happen to you? Oh, you don't know this country. Mr. Texas Kid. The laws here have got mustard spread between 'em. These people here stretch you out like a frog that had been stepped on and give you about fifty sticks at every corner of the place. And they wear every going to stay just as they are. They're about right now."

"What do you mean?" asked Thacker, rattling the bottom of his glass on his desk.

"The scheme of," said the Kid. "And whenever you've the pleasure of speaking to me address me as Don Francisco Urique. I'll guarantee I'll answer to it. We'll let Colonel Urique keep his money. His little tin box is as good as the time locker in the First National bank of Laredo as far as you and me are concerned."

"You're going to throw me down, then, are you?" said the Kid cheerfully.

"Throw you down. That's it. And now I'll tell you why. The first night I was up at the colonel's house they introduced me to a bedroom. No blankets on the floor—a real room, with a bed and things in it. And before I was asleep in comes this artificial brother of mine and tucks in the covers. 'Fanchito,' she says, 'my little best one, God has brought you back to me. I bless his name forever.' It was that or some truck like that she said. And down comes a drop or two of rain and hits me on the nose. And all that stuck by me, Mr. Thacker. And it's been that way ever since. And it's got to stay that way. Don't you think that it's for what's in it for me, either, that I say so. If you have any such ideas keep 'em to yourself. I haven't had much truck with women in my life and no mothers to speak of, but here's a lady that we've got to keep fooled. Once she stood it; twice she won't. I'm a low down wolf, and the devil may have sent me on this trail instead of God, but I'll travel it to the end. And now, don't forget that I'm Don Francisco Urique whenever you happen to mention my name."

"I'll expose you today, you—your double dyed traitor," stammered Thacker.

The Kid arose and without violence took Thacker by the throat with a hand of steel and shoved him slowly onto a corner. Then he drew from under his left arm his pearl handled .45 and poked the cold muzzle of it against the constable's mouth.

"I told you why I come here," he said, with his old freezing smile. "If I leave here you'll be the reason. Never forget it, pardner. Now, what is my name?"

"Er—Don Francisco Urique!" gasped Thacker.

From outside came a sound of wheels and the shouting of some one and the sharp thwacks of a wooden whiptock upon the backs of fat horses.

The Kid put up his gun and walked toward the door. But he turned again and came back to the trembling Thacker and held up his left hand with its back toward the constable.

"There's one more reason," he said slowly, "why things have got to stand as they are. The fellow I killed in Laredo had one of them same pictures on his left hand."

Outside the ancient landau of Don Santos Urique rumbled to the door. The coachman ceased his bellowing. Senora Urique, in a voluminous gay gown of white lace and flying ribbons, leaned forward with a happy look in her great soft eyes.

"Are you within, dear son?" she called in the rippling Castilian.

"Madre mia, yo vengo (mother, I come)," answered the young Don Francisco.

Exercise Will Cure Insomnia

Any One Can Take It, and It Is Very Simple Indeed

Vienna, Aug. 4.—A well known Austrian physician, Dr. Ebstein, claims the discovery of a physical exercise that will cure insomnia. As explained in the "Physical and Diet Therapeutics Journal," the cure consists of the simple process of grasping with both hands the head board of a bed, and of straining the muscles until the arm and shoulder muscles are fatigued.

Sleeplessness in most cases is caused by irregular blood circulation in the brain. Dr. Ebstein explains that the reason for this is that the slight difference in altitude between the head and the heart when one is lying down by raising the arms and straining upward, the physician claims, the flow of the blood to the head is increased, while at the same time a certain degree of fatigue aids in getting to sleep.

Chief Magistrate of Stratford Dead

Served When a Cadet on Same Ship as Duke of Connaught

Stratford, Aug. 4.—Stratford citizens came down town yesterday morning to learn that Mayor E. K. Barnsdale was dead. His Worship passed away in a Buffalo hospital on Wednesday evening at 11 o'clock, and news of his demise shocked and grieved all who learned of it, as the late Mayor was genuinely popular.

Mayor Barnsdale became ill in the late winter, and it was then feared that he would not recover, but with the coming of warm weather hope was again raised that the city's chief magistrate would regain his wonted strength. For the past two weeks he has been at his summer home in Port Erie, and on Monday last underwent a serious operation, from which he never rallied.

The late Mayor Barnsdale was born near London, Eng., and was 67 years old. Of these 67 years 45 of them were spent in Stratford. He first located at Whitty, but came to Stratford in 1871, and in 1873 he came to this city, where he has since resided.

An experience in his boyhood days that the late Mayor recounted with just pride was his apprenticeship as a naval cadet on the same ship as the Duke of Connaught, a Britisher to the hilt, he was always ready to take part in patriotic work and often expressed the wish that his years were less numerous, so that he could take his place in the ranks.

As a business man Mayor Barnsdale was very successful. The late Mayor's civic record is unequalled, serving on school boards for 24 years, water commissioner, and for many years in the city council, and in 1915 became Mayor.

As a fraternal lodge man he was likewise prominent.

His widow, two sons, Mr. James Barnsdale, Winnipeg, and Mr. A. C. Barnsdale, Stratford and two daughters, the Misses Hattie and Lillian of this city, survive.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL ELOPES.

Orphan Escapes From Montreal Convent to Join Sweetheart

Montreal, Aug. 4.—A 14-year-old girl has eloped from a Montreal convent with a young man supposed by the sisters to be a near relative of the missing miss. A warrant has been sworn out for the girl's arrest in the juvenile court on a charge of abduction. The girl's parents being dead, the 14-year-old girl was placed in the convent, she had a regular sister though her relative. The other morning the front door of the convent was open and the girl gone.

GREAT BRITAIN OBSERVES WAR ANNIVERSARY

London, Aug. 4.—(New York Herald cable)—The Morning Post Rome correspondent says, "There is a similarity almost amounting to monotony in the articles of all the Italian newspapers dealing with the second anniversary of the war that now because the Allies have completed their preparation and are especially co-ordinated in action against Germany power is visibly beginning to decline. I am tempted to compare the positions two years ago and now."

Italian People Enthusiastic

"There have been immense changes within the monarchy since July, 1914, and the country is enthusiastic. The people thought that Serbia and possibly Russia would be the only two nations whom the united might and military preparedness of the Central Powers was to fight. They felt that France did not count and that England certainly never would enter the war, for England would reap the benefit at the end without sacrificing a single man of her army or navy. There was no doubt that Germany would finish the war in a few months."

At First was Overconfident

"This was the general opinion impressed on everyone by Germany's systematic methods. Within three months disengagement followed and ever since then Italy, has borne the burden and curse resulting from overconfidence. Germany's successes in 1915 made it possible for the war to continue the struggle and obtain money, otherwise the war would have ended."

Did Not Count on England

"The greatest miscalculation was that England would not enter this war. This brought disaster, and will finally settle the issue. The German atrocities in Belgium brought disillusionment. The Hungarians are always chivalrous in war or peace, and never has a nation suffered more from war."

Harry Monroe, for thirty-five years connected with the Pacific Garden Mission at 67 West Van Buren street, Chicago, and for twenty years its superintendent, is dead. He converted Billy Sunday.
