

BASEBALL BENEFIT

Games Saturday Netted
About $450

Beneficiary Still Suffering Very
Greatly With His Injured
Knee.

Dawson people are proverbially generous in a matter of charity and at the double barreled ball game Saturday evening for the benefit of "Constance" Dundas whose knee was so badly injured several weeks ago, though the weather was threatening and rain had fallen nearly all day enough people turned out to fill the grand stand to overflowing and leave thousands of people standing about the diamond unable to get seats. The games netted Dundas about $450 and was a testimonial bestowed upon an object or person more worthy. It is true that in his position as a member of the police force he has his medical attendance and maintenance free and his salary, miserable pitance that it is, goes on without interruption, but in the event of his being invalided he would be in a hard position with the probabilities of not being able to work for many months. Yesterday he suffered excruciating pain, but it is a little easier this morning.

The games were lively enough and the crowd thoroughly enjoyed both. Several of the teams had new players they were trying out, but the most of them are very much to the bad. All four teams in the league participated in the play, two games of five innings each being played, the Amaranths and Idyle Hours pairing off and the Civil Service and Gandolfos. The first named opened the ball and for three innings they played ball for old times' sake, neither side making a run.

The Amaranths were first to take the willow. Hobson popped up a high ball which Boyer nailed at the plate. Walcott hit for a single and went out at first on an assist of pitcher, Douse took a walk on a dead ball and James went out a la Walcott. The Idylers sent three men to bat in their half and they went over like nine pins. Krelling fanned, Henderson retired on a fly to Walcott in center field, Boyer went out at first on an assist by second.

In both halves of the second but three men faced the box. In the first half McLarty and Foichat fanned and Hickey died at the initial cushion on the assist of pitcher. The three men for the Idylers went out in precisely the same manner. Smith and Lowery fanned and Forrest expired at first on the assist of pitcher.

In the third again did only three men face the pitcher for each side. Kellogg hit to pitcher and went out at first, Hobson did the same thing except that his hit reached second who made the assist and Steinkamp retired on a fly to Lamont. When the Idylers came in Lamont drove a single down the line which was fielded by James, Foichat covering first. Klumb hit to Foichat in the box and went out at first and Wilson was put out at first, unassisted, his hit rolling close to the initial bag.

The only scores made was in the fourth inning, the Amaranths making two in the first half and the Idylers three in the latter. Walcott placed a splendid hit in left field and scored on the two bagger of Douse who followed him, the latter reaching home on a passed ball. James hit to third and went out at first on the assist. A try was made for a double play to second, but it was a little slow. McLarty and Foichat both fanned. In the latter half, Krelling, Henderson and Boyer each crossed the plate. Krelling made first on an error of short, stole second and did the same thing with third. Henderson drove a single through second that was too warm for the baseman to go after. Boyer hit to third and again costly errors were committed. Krelling went home on the hit and Henderson did likewise with the assistance of a couple of passed balls. Boyer came home on a wild pitch. Smith and Lowery pounded air and Forrest went out at first on the assist of short.

Only one half of the fifth was played as the Amaranths failed to score in their turn and the Idylers had a lead of one. Hickey hit to left field and on the error of Lowery made first and stole second. Kellogg and Steinkamp fanned and Hobson went out on a fly to pitcher. The following is the score by innings and the lineup:

Amaranth-Hobson, short; Walcott, center field; Douse, catcher;

Nick Burley umpired the game and showed himself fully as conversant of the fine points as he is of that of right hooks and left swings.

When the Civil Service and Gandolfos came together they started out almost in the same brilliant manner their predecessors did, only one score being made in the first two innings. But later how they did fall down. At the conclusion the score was 10 to 8 with the latter half of the fifth to play. If the full nine innings had been played the tally sheet would have looked more like that of a cricket game than a baseball score. The teams in the first bout played all round those of the last.

The Gans were first at the bat. Doyle hit for a single to the left pasture, stole second and scored on a wild pitch. Then Brazier woke up and fanned out Albert Forrest, Stevens and Traube in succession. In the latter half Winters made first on an error of second and died a moment later at second on a forced run. Bennett expired on a foul to Doyle and Hatch fanned.

Both sides took goose eggs in the second. Rock and Duncan both went out at first on the assist of second and Montgomery retired on a fly to the same point; the three outs being made by Doyle and with his assistance. When the Service came in Culligan took the willow and hit safe to left field, going out at second on the assist of third. Long made a splendid catch of a high foul from Sullivan's bat and McAuliff after hitting safe and stealing second went out at third on attempting to purloin that bag also. Peabody in the meantime had received his base on a dead ball, dying there when McAuliff went out.

The slaughter of the Service began in the third and when the Gans had finished the score was 6 to 0. Ugh! LeCappellain, Long and Doyle scored in quick succession and were followed by Forrest who went out at first on the assist of pitcher. Then Stevens and Traube added one each to the score and Rock came to the plate. He hit safe and managed to reach third where he stuck as though nailed down. Duncan was next up and the bags were full. He brought two men in and advanced Rock to third. The latter should also have scored but a team of oxen could not have moved him off the bag. Duncan attempted to run him off but he would not move, with the result that before he could get back he was put out at second. Montgomery fanned. In the latter half of the third the Service got back at their opponents, piling up four and in their next inning they more than rubbed it in, adding another half dozen. Harrison was the first up sending a liner to third which though muffled was fired to first in time to score an out. Then Brazier hit for two bags and scored as did also Winters. Bennett fanned, Heath hit a peach to center field and scored on Culligan's drive to the left garden. The latter stole second and made home in a scramble occasioned by being hit by the ball while running. Sullivan expired at first on an assist of pitcher.

In the fourth the Gans could score but once. LeCappellain fanned, Long circled the bags in safety and Doyle went out at home on a magnificent throw of Harrison from far out in center field. Forrest got as far as third and died on Stevens dropping a fly to Harrison. In their half the Service, as stated, piled up six. McAuliff was first up but he only reached first. Then Peabody, Harrison, Brazier, Winters, Bennett and Heath all scored one after the other. Culligan fanned a safe hit to right field and Captain Stevens of the Gans concluded they had gotten on to Traube's curves and changed pitchers in the middle of the inning, he going into the box and "Slim" taking first. Culligan was left on the bases, Sullivan going out at first on the assist of second and McAuliff pounding air.

The Gans scored but once in the fifth, though six men went to the bat. Traube drove a long fly to Harrison which was caught after a sensational run. Rock took a walk, made second and went out at third on a forced play. Duncan came up with his usual happy smile, hit safe and scored on Montgomery's hit. The latter and LeCappellain were both left on bases when Long drove a single to short and expired at first. The latter half of the fifth was not played as the Service had runs to spare. The following is the lineup and the score by innings:

Civil Service-Bennett, catcher; Brazier, pitcher; Winters, right field; Harrison, center field; Heath, second base; Sullivan, third base; McAuliff, first base; Peabody, short; Culligan, left field.

1 2 3 4 5
Gandolfos 1 0 5 1 3 - 8
Civil Service 0 0 1 6 0 - 10
Tomorrow evening will occur the first game of the latter half of the league championship series. It will be between the Civil Service and the Gandolfos.
