SUFFRAGETTE DEMONSTRATION IN MODERN LONDON

They Attack Parliament by Land and Water—Police Make the Crowd Disperse—"Votes for Women." Their Cry—After Asquith

Modern London has never witnessed a more extraordinary spectacle than a recent demonstration by the Suffragettes. For three or four hours a vast multitude of men and women besieged the House of Commons. Five thousand policemen had their energies taxed to the utmost to protect the precincts of Westminster from the invasion. A small fleet of police boats was stationed on the Thames to ward off attacks by water. The land forces including all the mounted men of the metropolis, had the warmest time since the Trafalgar Square riots 20 years ago. It was the largest assemblage seen in parliament square within living memory. It was not a violent demonstration, but those who took part in it were so persistent that some rough work was unavoidable, and the air was filled from time to time with the shrieks and screams of women who were being crushed by the charges of police, afoot and mounted. There were many arrests. Those held numbered 29, all women. Two were charged with breaking windows in Premier Asquith's official residence in Downing street. The others are charged with obstructing the police.

This culmination of the militant Suffragette party's agitation was the outcome of Premier Asquith's suggestion that the women of England had not shown any intense desire for the suffrage. Mrs. Pankhurst's cohorts replied that they would prove to the contrary. They met at Carlton Hall today and sent a delegation, Mrs. Pankhurst at their head to see Premier Asquith. He refused to see them and sent them word to put their demands in writing. They returned to the hall with grim determination showing in their faces and hot words on their tongues. Mrs. Pankhurst declared that the hour had come to show their strength. For the Pankhursts, Laurence said, in an impassioned speech, that women had broken all records. In 1897 women presented the greatest petition parliament had ever known. On June 15th, this year they had the largest public meeting in Albert hall that had ever been held, and on June 21 they organized the most impressive demonstration that had ever appeared to any people or any government. She added that they would produce another record tonight.

They kept their word; they went to parliament square, not in procession for that would have been a breach of the old statute that subjected all participating to a penalty of three months' imprisonment. They joined the great mass of their sympathisers who were already converging on the square, but they found a forest of black helmets and battalions of mounted police awaiting them. The mob grew as by magic until it not only packed the great square, but filled Westminster bridge as far as Lambeth bank, blocked Whitehall to the Horse Guards, the army headquarters, packed the Victoria embankment and thronged Victoria St. for several blocks. As far as the eye could reach all the minor streets were simply dense masses of humanity. It was, in fact, a crowd stupendous and unparalleled among human assemblages, comprising as it did, a large proportion of women.

Suffragettes mingled with the crowd, trying to level it with their propaganda, but the question of votes for women seemed to be the last thing the majority were concerned about. They were attracted by the prospects of a scrimmage. Now and then, however, the suffragettes were Australia, India, South Africa and Japan sent nearly all their bishops. Among the bishops was Assistant Bishop Cluville, a full blooded negro, who has many native clergymen under his jurisdiction in the jungles of the dark continent. The United States had by far the largest representation.

Among the subjects slated for discussion were the relations of the church to modern thought, science, philosophy, democracy and social and economic questions. Religious education in schools, supply and training of clergy, foreign missions, reunion and intercommunion, prayer book adaptation, marriage problems, divorce, "race suicide," faith healing and Christian science are among the problems discussed.

WOMEN AND GIRLS HELD BY ANÆMIA

Unless the Blood is Made Rich and Red Health Cannot Be Restored.

Throughout Canada there are thousands of growing girls and women held in the deadly clutches of anaemia. Slowly but surely a deadly pallor settles on their faces; their eyes grow dull; their appetite flicks; their steps languid. Daily they are being robbed of all vitality and brightness. Their sufferings grow more acute if neglected, until the signs of early consumption become apparent. If your wife or daughter or sister complains of weakness, pain in the sides, headache or backaches; if her appetite and temper are uncertain and she is low spirited and anaemic has her in its deadly hold. What she needs is new rich red blood. Give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People without loss of time, for they actually make new red blood. They make girls and women well and happy, impart an appetite and brightness of perfect, regular health.

Miss Carrie McGrath, 26 Fenwick St., Halifax, N.S., says: "I believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life. Three years ago I suffered from anaemia in a severe form. I was all run down and as pale as a sheet. I could scarcely eat anything, and what I did take did not seem to nourish me. My hands and feet were much swollen and the least exertion would leave me breathless and my heart beating violently. I seemed to have pains and aches all over. I was so weak I could not even sweep a floor. At different times I was under the care of three doctors, but did not get any better. One doctor said I had dropsy and that my blood had all turned to water. My friends thought I was in a decline and that I had but a short time to live. I was completely discouraged myself, when one day a lady friend called to see me, and told me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured her daughter of anaemia and urged me to try them. I decided to try them, and in the course of a few weeks felt somewhat better. I met the doctor one day and he remarked how much better I was looking. I told him it was not his medicine but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that were helping me, and he told me I had better keep on taking them. I continued to do so until I had taken another half dozen boxes, when my health was perfectly restored. I am more than grateful for what these pills have done for me and strongly recommend them to all weak girls."

Thousands of men and women, now well and strong, praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for having cured anaemia, general weakness, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous disorders, paralysis, and the ailments of girlhood and womanhood. These pills do this by making new red blood which feeds the starved nerves, drives out disease and strengthens every organ in the body. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

D. R. Wilkie General Manager of the Imperial Bank Speaks in a Hopeful Strain

In moving the adoption of the annual report at the meeting of the shareholders of the Imperial Bank, D. R. Wilkie, general manager, spoke as follows, in part:

The bank note circulation of the Dominion as on the 30th of April, 1908 was $66,713,000 as compared with $72,841,000 on the same day of last year. This is the direct result of the crop failure throughout the northwest provinces, and is not to be wondered at, the grain output in the three western provinces in the year 1907 being nearly fifty millions of bushels less than the yield of 1906. Our very latest reports from the northwest indicate the existence of the best weather conditions and the probability of a very large yield for 1908, which will, we believe, compensate for disappointments of 1907.

The acreage under crop in the three western provinces in 1908 was 7,900,000 acres, in 1907 it was 8,300,000 acres. In 1908 the acreage is estimated at 9,500,000, but the yield of last year was only 165,000,000 bushels as compared with 212,300,000 bushels in 1906. Fortunately the price of grain was much higher in 1907 than in 1906, but notwithstanding this there was a falling off in the net cash receipts from the crop of about $30,000,000. These figures refer only to grain and do not provide for the reduction in the value of cattle exportation during the year, which I am informed amounted to nearly two million of dollars.

The reduction in value of the western grain crops has been in some measure compensated for by the increase in the output of minerals throughout the Dominion, which has grown in value from seventy-nine millions in 1906 to eighty-six million in 1907. The shipments from the Cobalt district alone have increased in value from $136,000 in 1904 to over $6,300,000 in 1907.

There has been a falling away in the deposits in all the banks of Canada during the year, equal in the aggregate to about 4 per cent. of the amount on deposit in 1907. The reduction in our deposits did not reach that proportion, and, moreover, was occasioned mainly by the liquidation of deposits at the credit of provincial governments required for development purposes. On the other hand, there has been an actual increase of several thousands in the number of our deposit customers. There has been a reduction in the average balance at the credit of each individual depositor traceable to the disappointing harvest in the northwest, (with which we are so closely identified), to strikes, lockouts and other labor troubles, and to the cheapness of securities, which induced depositors to increase their fixed investments. The increase of over 7,000, the bulk of whom were savings depositors is, on the other hand, very promising and will bear fruit under normal conditions.

In the year 1901 the native-born of Canada represented 86 per cent. of the total population of the country; those born in Great Britain and its possessions represented 8 per cent. of the total; the proportion of foreign-born, including United States Americans, was about 6 per cent. The total number of those born outside the British empire has increased very largely during the past three years, but we have the satisfaction of knowing that the proportion of British and Canadian born has held its own. It is estimated by the census office at Ottawa that on March 31, 1908, the total population of Canada was then 6,865,500, as compared with 5,371,000 in 1901.

An analysis of the number of persons convicted of offences and crimes throughout the country indicates that a very large proportion of the crimes have been committed by those born outside of the Dominion. This may be the result of enforced or encouraged emigration of criminals to Canada at the instigation of the foreign governments, and perhaps even of British justices, but even then the frequency of crime amongst the immigrants is out of all proportion to their numbers. Greater care and supervision should be, and I understand is being, exercised in excluding from the Dominion the undesirable of other countries.

During the year 1906 there were 8,092 persons convicted of crime in the Dominion of whom fully 28 per cent., if not 35 per cent. (the birthplace of 15 per cent. is not given, but a large proportion of these were probably outsiders) were born outside of Canada, the percentage of those born outside of the Dominion being only 14 per cent. of the total population.

It may be interesting to state that the population of the northwest provinces increased from 419,512 in 1901 to 808,863 in 1906; of the latter 70,21 were British, including Canadian.

There is every indication of a magnificent harvest throughout the northwest, nothing could be of greater service to us and to every Canadian banking institution, and we hope that when we meet you next year to demonstrate that we have not only been willing through our own resources to avail ourselves of the opportunities to take on a full share of the increased trade which must follow upon agricultural prosperity. Our most recent information is from Winnipeg, dated only yesterday, and to the following effect: "9,500,000 acres under crop this year. Crop prospects are most favorable."

Minard's Liniment cures Diphtheria.

Bitter discontent has broken out among the men of the Royal Scots Greys at the isolation to which they have been condemned at Bulford camp on Salisbury plain, and the discipline of the regiment has suffered. There have been an unusual number of court martials for petty military offences and a large number of charges of intoxication.

To draw attention to the beauty and utility of that emblem of British respectability, the tall silk hat, there was a parade at the Franco-British exhibition on July 4, organized by the Journeymen Silk Hatters Trade Union. Every man taking part in it wore a silk hat of perfect shape.
