How long have we had ice in Edmonton? About a month. How much practising has been done? None. Has there even been any serious attempt at training. We doubt it very much indeed. The preon that getting early dates means getting the cup may work

The history of bockey, as of every other game; evidences the fact that, other things being equal, it is the well trained and well practised team which comes out on top every time. Be the players of what calibre they may, practise is an essential element of success. No one plays hockey by instinct. There is no need of dwelling on this point. It is universally admitted. Edmonton has one great advantage in hockey over the east in the early opening of the season. Is advantage to be thrown away carelessly because attention is fastened on the chess board moves of the Stanley Cup trustees? It looks like it.
