Notes and Comments.

The Balkans are again in a blaze and a most sanguinary struggle is in progress. This time the war is fratricidal. But a few short months ago they were brothers in arms waging war against the Turks, now they are at death grips with one another. The efforts of the Powers to preserve peace have proved as futile as their efforts to prevent the war of the Allies with Turkey. Apparently the only course left now to the Powers is to preserve peace among themselves.

In view of the struggle in the Far East, it is perhaps no bad thing after all that money is tight. The stringency of money will probably have the effect of curtailing the war. After all war is the most costly of all extravagances and cannot be prolonged without money. Napoleon used to say, an army crawled on its stomach, and the fate of the Turkish army illustrated the truth of the saying. The Turkish commissariat broke down and the Turkish army collapsed, and the battles in the open resulted in a real debacle for Turkey.

We observe that the correspondent of the Standard of Empire is booming Sir Edward extensively. On May 14th, he sent a cable to the effect that the visits of Sir Edward Morris is spoken of as "sagacious" and he is depicted as "probably the most popular Prime Minister the Colony has ever had."

This article from which we have picked these expressions is not given as a St. John's contribution, but there is a strong likeness in the boom of Sir Edward. The appropriateness of the epithets may be judged from the fact that no Prime Minister in recent times has been called upon, as Sir Edward Morris was, by large numbers of petitions, numerous signed, to go to the country, twelve months before he wished to go, because the people were alarmed at the extravagant expenditure of his administration. So much for his popularity.

In the London Standard of April 24th, we find a similar booming of Sir Edward Morris. His leadership is now hard getting ready. It has been suggested that the receipts of Monday's football match between H.M.S. Cumberland and the City be donated towards the Regatta Fund.

The C.L.B. amateurs will have their first practice on Monday next. The Herald will not take part in the press race, as too much time is taken up with practice.

Had Long Tramp.

Two men, belonging to the city, who had signed articles to prosecute the fishing voyage at St. Joseph's desert, a few days ago and walked to Holyrood, a distance of more than 60 miles. They joined an incoming train for St. John's but were not sooner landed here when they were captured by constable Tobin who had a warrant for their arrest. The deserters got a month in jail each for breaking their contract. The practice of deserting the fishery is being indulged in this year as much as ever with a consequent expense and inconvenience to shippers, particularly to outport people. Happily in most cases the deserters are caught and the punishment they richly deserve meted out to them by the law.

The Regatta.

The regatta committee meets tonight to make further preparations for the big event. The collectors are now hard getting ready. It has been suggested that the receipts of Monday's football match between H.M.S. Cumberland and the City be donated towards the Regatta Fund.

The C.L.B. amateurs will have their first practice on Monday next. The Herald will not take part in the press race, as too much time is taken up with practice.

Killed by Horse.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.
From passengers who came in from Kelligrews to-day we learn that in the accident which occurred at Bell Island on Friday afternoon the victim was a lad named Patrick O'Flaherty, of Avondale, aged 8 years, who, while on the way to the beach with a string of caplin, startled a horse which was grazing on the side of the public road and the animal kicked out, one of the hoofs striking the lad in the region of the heart. When he was picked up the lad was apparently lifeless, and on Dr. Ames being summoned, death was pronounced due to the shock sustained by the kick from the animal. The remains were taken to Avondale by the steamer on Monday for interment.

The Pitcher Case.

Mr. Brian Dunfield, on behalf of Mr. Herbert Pitcher, informs us that it is not correct, as we stated, that Mr. Herbert Pitcher "seized a heavy flat-iron and striking his brother with great force in the head inflicted two severe cuts," and that the affair "came near ending in the death of Frederick Pitcher." He takes exception also to the statement in our police court report of Tuesday that "a lad for assaulting and wounding his brother with a flat-iron was remanded." This latter statement was taken from the police charge. Mr. Dunfield tells us his client's case is as follows: Mr. Frederick Pitcher, somewhat under the influence of drink, entered the house where Herbert Pitcher lives and a dispute arose. Mr. Frederick Pitcher was the aggressor and in the course of the quarrel, Mr. Frederick Pitcher fell and his head came into contact with an iron stand, used as a stand for a flat-iron, and a wound was inflicted, which Dr. Stafford states is consistent with a fall against the stand, but not with a striking with a flat-iron. The police case was called up on Tuesday and postponed in order that Mr. Herbert Pitcher might take out a cross summons. Meanwhile the parties settled their difference and the police withdrew the charge against Mr. Herbert Pitcher, which they found to be without foundation. We obtained our information from what we took as reliable quarters and from the charge sheet. We regret, however, we were misled and gave publicity to information which now proves unreliable.

The Glorious 4th.

Now let the whistles shriek, spellbinders speak, this is the Fourth! Day of all days the best! Let us rejoice with zest, we of the golden West—East, South and North! Healed every rambling sore, open from Canon Smith, which we are as one; brothers are we who late glared with the eyes of hate; state scowls no more at state—all that is done. Brothers are we to-day, whether in blue or gray we are arrayed; comrades, throughout the land, traveling hand in hand, watching the village band, and the parade! Comrades in hearts and souls stand, while the music rolls, eating ice cream; hearing the speaker state how we have paid the freight; knowing that ancient hate is a bad dream. Comrades and brothers true, equals in gray or blue, while the worlds wag; walking down the years, not with our swords or spears; looking through happy tears up at the flag! So let the whistles shriek, let the bells ring! This is the greatest land—both past and future grand! Play "Dixie." O you band! All rise and sing!
