Barker has taken the body to bury it beside the dead man's wife at Plainwell, near Grand Rapids, Michigan. With the body of his friend encased in several thicknesses of tarpaulin and strapped to a board, Barker started out alone on the long trail of more than 150 miles into civilization. He covered the distance in eleven days by cance, dog-team and toboggan. After part of the journey had been accomplished he took an Indian in company. Their route lay through absolute wilderness, and sometimes they had to cut down trees to get the body through. They were in the far north prospecting for gold.
