INTERESTING LECTURE TO-NIGHT. It is hoped and expected that the attendance at Principal Caven's lecture to-night in St. Andrew's Church will be as large as the subject, handled by one possessing so keen a power of observation and so rare a faculty of imparting his knowledge to others, so well deserves. Those having the matter in hand have wisely placed the admission so low—only 15 cents—as to debar few from attending, not even large families. Sabbath school workers particularly should be present in numbers. "A Trip Through Palestine" to-night will interest you.

—A man engaged in repairing a certain line fence near the center of the city, yesterday made a discovery which promised to lead to startling revelations. The horribly mutilated remains of a human body were found buried a few feet below the surface of the ground. Considerable excitement was caused in the neighborhood, and various theories of foul play were to lead to startling revelations. The horribly mutilated remains of a human body were found buried a few feet below the surface of the ground. Considerable Six cars on sale: market active; all sold early at strong Mondey's values.

Sheep and Lambs—Thirty-three cars on sale: market opened strong and higher. A few loads of the best winter-clipped lambs sold at 186 38; a good load of wools brought $7 38, but with eastern reports of weak markets values eased off, and the close was about steady with Monday's values. Sheep were not in quite as good inquiry as lambs: one load of choice brought $85.25, and an extra fine lot of 117 by weight, nearly all wethers, brought $85.0.

Hogs—Market opened with 8 cars on sale, 2 of which were Canadas. Values were 100 bet ter on anything of the choicequality. Packers' grades and the best Yorkers, light and heavy sold generally at $8 for hogs of 15 to 200 hof the hogs on sale. Later 7 more care used in from Canada, and the market cased set, the advance being lost, late sales of the best Canadas being made at $7 90 to $7 95.

Mr. S. R. Callaway, prevident of the Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas Railway, is at present on a visit to scenes of former labors in this Province. He is a native of Toronto, and is one of the numerous Canadians who have succeeded in winning fame and fortune in the United States. He was originally an employe of the old Great Western Railway, and was secretary to the late W. K. Muir. He is now president and has entire control of one of the largest railway system in the States. His brother, W. R. Callaway, is the well-known district passenger agent of the C. P. R. After the Carshops.

The Police Court.

At this morning's Police Court William Pate, the boy charged with ransacking Randall's coal and wood office, plended guilty, and was remanded until Tuesday for sentence. This same boy is now on suspended sentence for the theft of a watch from the Sulphur Springs bath house. Wm. C. Jordan was sent for trial yesterday on a charge of assaulting P. C. Addison in the discharge of his duly. He was bailed out then, and shortly afterwards he was again in the toils, charged with being drunk and disorderly. His venom took the same turn this time as it did when he got into the former trouble, and he commenced abusing P. C. Addison. It cost him $5 or ten days. Edward Fellow and Joseph Symmonds were to have appeared on a charge of assaulting Walter Phillip. They did not show up at the court, and the service of the summons was proved. Warrants will be issued for their apprehension if they have not get out of town. Three drunks were discharged. The Police Court.

The Last Service.

Services were conducted by Rev. Canon Davis in the St. James' Episcopal school house last night as a farewell to the old building, which is to be destroyed. The canon preached from Genesis, xxviii., part of verse 16: "Surely the Lord is in this place." After an interesting historical sketch of the Episcopal Church in South London, the preacher went on to talk about the building they were holding service in. It was put up and opened for divine service on Nov. 30, 1873. He (the preacher) officiated for the first time on Jan. 11th, 1874, and entered fully on the work of the perish March 24, 1874. The number of communicants on Easter Sunday, April 5, 1874. was 17; the congregation increased, and 74 partook of the holy communion Oct. 9. 1877. The new church was opened Nov. 18, 1877. God had signally blessed the work, and there were many still connected with it who were rejoiced to see the prosperous way which God had led them. The benediction brought the last service in St. James' school house to a close. The work of tearing down will be commenced on Monday. The Last Service.

—It is reported that the Grand Trunk will shortly put on a fast train for Chicago, which will leave Montreal at 7 o'clock in the morning and arrive in London about 10 the same evening.

—Constable Wm. Faircloth arrested a peddler named D. Goldblatt, near Thorndale, the other day on a charge of peddling without a license. He was taken before Squire Garner and a fine of $10 imposed.

ELOPERS STOP THE TRAIN.

Runaway Couple Hold Up the Ix-press—Passengers Take their Part and Appease the Angry Conductor.

New York, [April 27.—The southern express over the Pennsylvania line was stopped about 50 miles south of Washington yesterday by a runaway couple anxious to get to Washington to be married. The train leaves Richmond about 9 a.m., and makes no stop between Richmond and Washington. The train was behind time and was running at a very high rate of speed.

when the train was about two and a half blessed the work, and there were many still connected with it who were rejuced to see the prosperous way which God had led them. The benediction brought the last service in St. James' school house to a close. The work of tearing down will be commenced on Monday.

The French-Canadian Exodus.

MONTREAL, April 27.—A few days ago the Government organs contained a special dispatch from Sherbrooke stating that four special train loads of French-Canadian had returned to that city from the New England States in disgust at their experience there, and that they intended to settle down again in Canada. It now appears that there were described by the conductive of the couple walked into the train and took as settle down again in Canada. As soon as the train had stopped the conductor had rushed forward to the engine, sengers and they began to get show a game.

As soon as the train had stopped the conductor had rushed forward to the engine, and he now came back in a fuming rage. Twenty of the passengers who loitered around the conductor explained that the engineer had stopped the train because he saw the two young people in the middle of the track waving one a red bandam and the other a white handkerchief. When the engineer pulled up the couple said nothing, but pointed up the track and walked by him. The engineer sent the fireman some distance ahead, but he could find no sign of danger.

"Get right out of here. What do you mean by stopping this train anyway?" shouted the angry conductor whose train had been further delayed.

"My name is Charles Samson and this is shouted the angry conductor whose train had been further delayed.

"My name is Charles Samson and this is Miss Jennie Dinwiddie," said the young farmer, "and we are just going to Washington to link up. I ain't never been on your train before, Cap'n, and now I am here I am going to stay, an' you have just got me to lick. We had to get away from Jennie's old man some way, and the quickest way I knowed of was to stop this here train and get on board. I ain't trying to beat you, and here's your money to pay for our ride."

The conductor called his brakemen, and, the brawny young farmer squared himself for a fight. The girl burst into tears, Then a motherly-looking old lady, said fit was a shame, and took the young girl in her arms and told the conductor he was (a bad man. The passengers began to plead with the conductor to allow the young people to go on to Washington and be married. At first the conductor refused. All the passengers began to take the side of married. At first the conductor refused. All the passengers began to take the side of the runaway couple, and the conductor reluctantly gave in, and at last his face broadened into a smile as he reached ut and pulled the bell cord to signal the engineer to go ahead.

Satisfied that they were well on their was to be married, the young girl dried he tears and began to laugh, and the youn farmer told his fellow passengers how he had come to run away.

farmer told his fellow passengers how he had come to run away.

"Her father is a well-to-do farmer," he said, "and didn't want her to marry because he thought her too young, and he lowed that I was too young, too, and might get to drinking yet. I have got 100 acres of land myself and two yoke of oxen, and I just made up my mind that I wasn't going to let the old man euchre me out of Jennie any longer. She lives about two miles from the railroad track. She left home this morning in her Sunday clothes, telling her folks she was going to Fredericksburg to spend the night with a friend. I met her about a half-mile out, and we came right over here and stopped this here train in the brush. I would be glad for you all to stop over and see the weddin', and I will set 'm up to a spanking good supper, too, after we are married sure and tight."

The passengers all declined the gracious invitation, and Mr. Smith and some friends of his took the young couple back to the dining car and treated them to the best luncheon that could be provided. All the passengers wished them long life and happiness when they disembarked at Washings ton.
