"No, no! worse than that—much worse. You know what was whispered at the time, Miss Bracegirdle, though people were atraid to speak too pizinly. Well, now the boys are crying his name about the streets. They say there are fresh discoveries, and an order is given—a warrant for his arrest—and he has escaped!"
"Poor young man! I—I hope they will not find him," said Pauline. "Oh! how ill I feel; what a shock this news has given me!"
"Were you in love with Owen, also?" asked poor Rosa, in a tone of bitterness. "Because another young lady was, and is gone home in consequence. Mr. Owen appears fascinating."

Pauline put her hands before her eyes.

She was threatened with one of her sudden attacks of faintness. At any time the sudden mention of Lord Hammond's name had the power to throw her nervous system into a wild disorder. She said slowly to Rosa: said slowly to Rosa: "Arthur Hammond was dear to me, and was dear to him. I try to forget the past, but I cannot. And she managed to escape by a side

And she managed to escape by a side door from the ball room.
"So she has a heart, after all," said Rosa to herself, "I can see that by the anguish of her face. She loved him, then he fell in love with that wonderful Lady he fell in love with that wonderful Lady Mary, whom all the world made such a fuss about, and who is now gone away to France again, instead of shining like a planet in the London season. So this Miss Bracegirdie has a heart, after all, and I always called her a plg. Now I will dence if anyone asks me, though I don't feel the least like dancing, and I will go and see this girl's home; she said she had something to tell me. I wonder if anybody is in love with me, and she knows it?"

But just at that moment poor Rosa chanced to turn her head, and she caught sight of her own reflection in a plate-slight of her own reflection in a plate-glass mirror let into a panel in a corner. Her fat, plain, flushed face, the ugliness of her eyes, the ungraceful outlines of her form, all struck her like a new reve-

But I think it is a pity that he tries to escape if he is innocent. And surely he is innocent of this horrible crime. Of course the news must have agitated you. Eldred Barker did not say what he thought in his heart—that the evidence now brought against Owen looked very black.

There often comes a time in the struggle with pulmonary disease when the victim loses heart and gives up hope. The ambition to be up and around gives way before growing weakness, and the sufferer keeps to the bed.

No one who suffers from lung disease chould lose heart or give up hope while there is a possibility of cure. THE WORLD OF SPORTS.

Maher Knocks Out Jeffords-Results at the Aqueduct.

THE AQUEDUCT RACES. New York, Nov. 9.—Two favorites, both at odds-on, won at Aqueduct yesterday, together with one second choice and three outsiders. The day began with an upset, Morekanta, at 30 to 1, winning in a drive from Shoreham and Maiden. A few profited by his victory, as he was played in places at 40 to 1. Heliobas, the favorite, ran a bad race. Marathon, at 8 to 1, made every post a winning one in the curate, Eldred Barker, among the crowd; he made straight for her, but she did not give him smile for smile.

"Not dancing, Miss Stanly?"

"Not yet; I am going to, though."

"May I sit by your side a few moments?"

Rosa laughed an unpleasant laugh; the discovery about Elsie, the conversation with Miss Bracegirdle, the sudden sight of her own plainness in the mirror, had all conspired to "turn a wholesome heart to gall."

Barker could not make her out.

"May I sit here?" he repeated.

"Certainly you may; who is to prevent you, Mr. Barker?"

"You might," he said sadly. "You might consider me a bore, and wish to get rid of me."

"I have never led you to suppose that I thought you a bore," she said. I feel sad; I have heard some dreadful things ad; I have heard some dreadful things ad; I have heard some dreadful things ad; I have heard some dreadful things are readed.

THE PETERBORO CLUB EN ROUTE TO LONDON.

Peterboro, Ont., Nov. 9.—The Peterboro Rugby Club left at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon for London, where they will play their first game in the finals with the Forest City team today. The Peterboro team is a weak one, as at the last moment several juniors had to be taken on. Revell, Peterboro's best scrimmage man, was unable to go, and Crowley, who plays at inside wing, was badly injured at last night's practice. The remainder of the team, however, is in the pink of condition, and are prepared to make the fight of Trade at Ottawa has been moderately active. Some large shipments are being made to inland points, and the demand for supplies for the winter has been heavy. Payments have been more satisfactory.

Business conditions at Hamilton are encouraging. The movement in sea-sonable lines is large, many country orders coming forward for prompt delivery. Values of staple goods are firm.

The colder weather has improved at the demand for heavy winter goods at Toronto during the week. There is a better feeling in business circles as a result, and the outlook for trade in the next two months is generally conceded to be very bright. There is a big demand for iron and steel, and a satisfactory feature is the large consumption of domestic iron. Steel prices are very firm. Country remittances are improving with the increased deliveries of grain, especially in the Northwest, and it is expected that when fall work on the farms in Ontario becomes impossible the de-liveries of grain in this province will become more free and greatly stimulate trade.

Trade at Montreal this week has been active. There is a good sorting demand for drygoods and seasonable lines in other departments for the colder weather. The shipping trade is active; grains are most active, particularly oats and wheat. Remittances are fair, but should be better. At Quebec business continues brisk. particularly in wholesale circles. Shoe manufacturers report orders coming in and the outlook is favorable. Outside of river craft there is a quletness in shipping circles. The business situation at Winnipeg is in good shape—better than for a erally more encouraging than they have ever been before. Payments are ago. improving, and the outlook for trade is unusually bright. A large holiday trade is looked for. Trade at the Pacific coast cities is moderately active. The fall demand for seasonable lines is very fair now. The demand from the mining centers is very fair. Payments are only fair.

Print cloths have ceased to be inflated, standard widths resuming the former quotations of 3 cents, and meeting with a fair demand. Domestic buying of all staple cottons is seasonably quiet; and the views of exporters are still below those of sellers. Recent declines in the raw material have not weakened prices, as there was no commensurate advance in goods when the cotton market was rising. Reports from the south indicate that spindles

In woolens there is a free movement simmons has lived in the United States of women's dress goods, and orders thirteen years, and took out his first are plentiful in heavy-weight lines for immediate delivery. Footwear is firm, at last week's advance, and eastern manufacturers are beginning work on spring orders. Leather is held at the best prices of the season, and dry hides rose further on heavy sales.

Weather conditions were the chief of staple products. Low temperature in grain-growing states brought a higher level of quotations, corn rising 25 cents above the figure ruling at the cents over 1899. BRADSTREET'S.

Bradstreet's report: The trade sitution possesses many points of strength and few of weakness. Colder weather throughout the country has stimulated trade in heavy clothing, shoes, groceries and rubber goods. While nearly all the industries are active, special strength and activity has been displayed in iron and steel. So urgent has been the inquiry that some German steel billets have been imported and larger takings are looked for. The shortage of cars is an additional retarding feature just at present, and the effect upon the coke trade has been so marked as to cause the shutdown of twenty blast furnaces in the Pittsburg district. Pig iron is in good demand. Railway material is very active at Chicago, and 50,000 tons of

The coal trade was in good position previous to the cold weather. Coal has lost none of its strength since, and the only source of complaint is the small stock in dealers' hands and the trouble growing out of the scarcity of cars. The same complaint comes from the lumber trade, the open fall weather having stimulated demand at first and second hands. Raw sugar is lower, in sympathy

Each machine, securiely packed with an outfit, is set up for work thoroughly tested, and a sock or stocking partially knitted before boxing and shipping. Should you decide to engage with us, it will necessary to send us Cash Contract Order Form, properly signed by you, and at least one good reference, together with the remittance accordingly, upon receipt of which we will forward machine and outfit-ready to commence.

We are so frequently and unnecessarily asked if one can learn to knit without a teacher. We say, Yes; It requires no teacher; any person of ordinary intelligence who can read the instruction Guide can learn to knit at once. Sender or head of family (if possible) must sign here: References: Head Office: McKINNON BLDG., TORONTO.

If at any time a worker becomes dissatisfied and wishes to discontinue in our employ we will take back the machine and return the money, provided the machine is in good conditions when received, and provided an amount of work equal to the amount paid for machine as been done.
