Twenty-five years ago J. Gammage & Sons started in a very modest way the nucleus of what is today the second largest greenhouse establishment in the Dominion. Mr. Wm. Gammage, the survivor and present owner, is a prosurvivor and present owner, is a progressive businessman, with a keen appreclation of the ever-changing demands of floral fashion. With their usual enterprise the services of one of New York's leading floral artists have been secured, and the firm is now prepared to handle any floral decorations, either large or small, in the latest American style, and at moderate rates. That the quality of flowers produced at their mammoth greenhouses on Oxford street is of a high standard is fully attested by the many awards carried away at the Pan-American, Ontario Fruit and Flower Show, and other exhibitions throughout the country.
