

WILLIAM J. BRYAN EXPLAINS HIS AND ROOSEVELT'S POLICIES

Great Democrat, Who May Be a Candidate Against the Rough Rider, Tells in Special Article Where He and the Colonel Agree and Disagree.

The possibility that Theodore Roosevelt will be nominated at Chicago has forced a vital question on the Democratic party. Can they beat him? What Democrat has the best chance to do it? From thousands of Democrats comes an answer: "Yes, with Bryan."

The Chicago convention, therefore, is likely to determine the nominee at Baltimore. There's no cloud on Bryan's title as a progressive. Many Republicans and most Democrats say there is on Roosevelt's. They also charge Roosevelt with having stolen the "Bryan policies." Has he done it? Is he really a progressive?

The Newspaper Enterprise Association, which serves the London Advertiser, has asked Bryan to tell the difference between him and Roosevelt. Here's Bryan's answer.

BRYAN IN A JOVIAL MOOD.

Complying with your request, I beg to say that I was first inclined to ask you to change the wording of your question so as to permit me to show the difference between Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic party, together with the points of agreement between him and our party, but as we shall not know until the platform is written at Baltimore just what language our party will use in defining its position, as compared with his, rather than to attempt to speak for the party, I shall content myself with setting forth Mr. Roosevelt's position on twelve subjects and my own upon the same, six upon which we differ and six upon which we are now in substantial agreement.

WHERE WE DISAGREE.

First—He believes in a third Presidential term, and he has not yet announced any limitation to the number of terms a President should be permitted to enjoy. I am not only opposed to a third term, but I favor an amendment to the constitution limiting the President to a single term.

Second—He desires international peace, but believes it can be secured by such an increase in the navy as will make other nations fear us. I believe in securing it by a policy of justice to all nations, and have faith in the persuasive influence of a good example.

IRISH SUFFRAGETTE BAND PELT THE PUBLIC BUILDINGS

Militant Fair Ones of the Emerald Isle Open Window-Smashing Campaign at Dublin and Do Great Execution Before Stopped By the Police.

[Canadian Press.]

Dublin, June 13.—A campaign of window-smashing was opened today by the Irish suffragettes, who tried to emulate the deeds of their English sisters, but came into vigorous conflict with the authorities. After the women had made an energetic attack on most of the public buildings, eight of them who were armed with bags of stones, were arrested, and are to be brought up before the police magistrate.

The women, before the police came on the scene, had set siege to and succeeded in shattering 42 windows of the customs house, the postoffice, the land commission office, and the police and military barracks.

CANADIAN FORESTERS WILL MEET IN LONDON NEXT YEAR

Forest City Won Out at Big Convention Held in Hamilton.

The convention of the Canadian Order of Foresters will meet in London in 1913. After a strenuous battle with Toronto, the representatives from this city, Mr. J. Grant Henderson, commissioner of industries, and license inspector A. R. Galpin, succeeded in having the majority of the delegates vote to come to the Forest City for their next outing.

As soon as the convention opened, Aid. Spittal, chairman of the city and factories' committee, and Mr. Henderson got their heads together, and determined to bring the Foresters to this city.

Inspector Galpin seconded the efforts of the local bodies, and used all his influence to get the delegates to vote right.

London Won.

"It was a hard struggle, but we won out with a handsome majority," declared Mr. Henderson. "The convention is one of the best in the province, and we were fortunate in obtaining it. We will try and secure others. I am well pleased with the result."

The hall to be used for the convention has not yet been selected, but arrangements will at once be made to properly entertain the delegates when they come here.

The dates for the sessions have not yet been selected, but they will be some time in June.

STRAITS STILL CLOSED

Belle Isle Not Yet Navigable for Atlantic Liners.

Montreal, June 13.—How late the summer is this year is indicated by the fact that the Straits of Belle Isle route to Canada is not navigable yet. The first navigator to attempt to pass through the straits this year was Capt. Jones, commander of the Furness liner Pearlman, which arrived in port from Liverpool yesterday. Captain Jones attempted the passage, but found it impracticable.

HEALTH DESTROYED IN WEST AFRICA

Mr. Thomas F. Rutherford, a Missionary, Died as Result of Illness Contracted On Duty.

HOME ON SICK LEAVE

While on a Visit to Toronto the Old Sickness Came Upon Him and His Death Occurred Today.

Mr. Thomas Featherston Rutherford, a former London boy, more intimately known as Fred Rutherford, who two years ago went to West Africa in the Sudan Interior Mission, and who returned to London in March last on sick leave, after a severe attack of fever, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. H. McDaniels, 1040 Mary street, this morning.

Mr. Rutherford was stricken with a very malignant form of fever in West Africa, and was granted sick leave, returning to Canada by way of England. When he reached Liverpool some months ago his condition became so serious that he was taken to a hospital, but after treatment, recuperated sufficiently to permit him to continue the trip. At Toronto he again required medical attention, but when he finally reached London he appeared to be regaining his health, and visited for a time at the home of his friend, H. E. Wilson, of Carleton Crescent.

Ill in Toronto.

Later he returned to Toronto, and while in that city was taken with a recurrence of the trouble. At one of the hospitals his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia, but proved to be the influence of the fever on his lungs and heart. Three weeks ago he was again removed to London in a very weakened condition, his death resulting at his sister's home this morning.

Mr. Rutherford, who was in his 27th year, was a son of Mary and the late Joseph Rutherford, and lived in London until a little over two years ago, when he went to Africa in the interests of the Sudan Interior Mission. He is survived by his mother, two sisters, Mrs. W. H. McDaniels, of Mary street, and Mrs. J. A. Simmons, of Saskatoon, Sask., and one brother, Attwell, of Moose Jaw.

Funeral on Saturday.

The funeral is to be held on Saturday to Woodland Cemetery. Rev. R. B. Bingham, of Toronto, will officiate at the services, and will be assisted by Rev. George N. Hazen, of the Centennial Methodist Church.

Mr. Rutherford was interviewed by The Advertiser at the home of Mr. Wilson on March 14, and then appeared to be gaining strength. He spoke very interestingly of his experiences in Africa, and of the customs and beliefs of the Yagha tribe, in and about the town of Ede, in which his headquarters were located.

As he did so he missed his footing and was thrown against the housing of the driving apparatus and was painfully bruised.

STREET RAILWAY CONDUCTOR BADLY CRUSHED BY BRIDGE

Ed. Gould, of 951 Lorne Ave., Hurt as He Leaned Out of Car Window.

Ed Gould, of 951 Lorne avenue, for many years a conductor on the street railway, was very seriously injured at 6:40 this morning, when in leaning out to clean one of the windows of car 84 of the Ridout line, he was struck on the head by a support on the York street bridge. Gould was removed to Victoria Hospital, suffering from bruises and cuts about the head and injuries to his back.

The Accident.

Mr. Gould was conductor on car 84, in charge of Motorman Ed Bowman, when the accident occurred. As it was his first trip around this morning he was still engaged in cleaning up his car, and despite the fact that he had made thousands of trips over the same bridge during his years of service with the street railway, he misjudged the distance of the bridge. One of the girders caught him on the side of the head and under the jawbone, it is said, but while he received a terrible jolt, he was not rendered unconscious at the time.

Mr. Gould and his young son and daughter reside at 951 Lorne avenue.

DEPT. OF EDUCATION UNCHANGED ON WESTERN HONOR DEGREES

Deputy Minister of Education Informs the Advertiser That Miss Valerie Carrothers of This City Will Not Be Granted a Specialist's Standing.

The Department of Education will not as yet recognize the honor degrees of the Western University, in spite of the agitation carried on by the friends of that institution.

The impression that the attitude of the department had changed was conveyed in a letter received by Miss A. Valerie Carrothers, B. A., of this city, from the Faculty of Education, Toronto, that she had been given specialist's standing. She had written on these examinations, and was successful, so far as the examinations go. A certificate was not granted her, it was stated, owing to the fact that she had not attained the age limit.

However, Dr. Colquhoun, deputy minister of education, in an interview with The Advertiser, over long distance phone today, stated emphatically that Miss Carrothers had been granted an ordinary high school teacher's certificate only, and was not entitled to specialist standing.

Dr. Colquhoun's Statement.

"When The Advertiser called the other day I was not in possession of the facts of the case," Dr. Colquhoun explained to The Advertiser, "since that time I have gone into it, and I have to announce that the Department of Education has not changed its attitude towards the honor degrees of the Western University. Miss Carrothers has been granted an ordinary high school teacher's certificate, no more. She is not given specialist standing. That is all I have to say on the matter at this time."

Dr. Colquhoun would not give any information as to the possibility of the ban being lifted on Western University honor degrees, nor would he vouchsafe any further information regarding the matter. His statement was positive, however, that at the present time the Department of Education would not recognize the degrees.

LONDON ELECTRIC CO. WILL SEEK ST. RAILWAY CONTRACT

Manager Jenking Announces That the Concern Is Here To Stay.

No definite announcement has been made as yet regarding the policy of the London Electric Company, now that it has been taken over by a large syndicate, other than the statement that the company would be put on a substantial basis, and would continue to do business in London.

Mr. Ernest J. Jenking, acting manager of the company, has been in Toronto for some days, arriving in the city Wednesday evening. He would not discuss the plans, declaring that they had not been matured as yet.

"You can say that we are here to business all the time," he stated, "some people got the impression that because there was a change in ownership the company might withdraw from London. That is a false impression. We are here to stay for all time to come. Something important will be announced shortly."

Street Railway Contract.

It is understood that the company will go after the contract of the London street railway for power. An offer has been made already, and from information received it is much more favorable than the best terms quoted by the hydro-electric commission. However, the street railway company have made no decision as to where they will purchase power, but it is the opinion that they will go ahead and put in their own plant, and thus be independent of all other influences.

CLOSING HOURS OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY

J. K. Macdonald Presents His Scheme For Aged and Infirm Fund.

THE TREASURY EXECUTIVE

Board Given Authority to Name Its Own Head When Right Man Is Found.

[Canadian Press.]
Edmonton, June 13.—The exodus from Edmonton of delegates to the General Assembly began yesterday and was continued today. Much less than half the members remain. It is expected that all the business will be completed and the adjournment taken this afternoon. J. K. Macdonald, of Toronto, who since 1897 has been identified with the aged and infirm fund, told the commissioners of his dream of this scheme of the church. When he began his work on this committee there was an endowment fund of $15,000. This had been increased since that time to $250,000, and an effort was now being made to increase it to $500,000.

At present, a minister who had served forty years in the church would be possible to pay $500, which was the smallest sum on which an aged minister could be maintained in any degree of comfort. Mr. Macdonald stated that a successful minister of the church could not be a money-making man, and that all that any minister received was a maintenance, and that provision must be made for his old age.

The executive committee suggested for the treasury board is as follows: Dr. W. G. Wallace, J. W. Woods, Alexander Laird, Thomas Findlay, Wm. Yellie, W. A. Charlton, James Rodgers. The executive is given authority to name its own head when a suitable man is found. The entire treasury board, made up of twenty-one men, one third to retire at the end of each year, is as follows:

1912—S. T. Martin, J. A. Patterson, Edward Brown, W. G. Wilson, C. G. Mitchell, W. A. Charlton, James Dodge.
1914—J. Macbado, Dr. Drummond, Chas. H. Stewart, Geo. S. Dingle, J. W. Woodside, J. W. Woods, Wm. Yellie.
1915—Prof. R. Laird, W. R. Leckie, Jas. Balfour, G. A. Myers, Alex. Laird, Thos. Finley.

POLICE MAGISTRATE JUDD WOULD NOT ABOLISH BAR HE TOLD SYNOD TODAY

Abolish the Room Behind Is His Idea of Promoting Temperance, and He Would Also Stop the Treating Habit.

PROPOSAL TO CANCEL LICENSE ON A FIRST CONVICTION DEFEATED

Synod Accepted a Proposal to Publish the Banns So as to Prevent Clandestine Marriages in the Church of England.

The following was the resolution on temperance presented to the Synod of Huron this morning:
"Your committee rejoices to know that the Provincial Government is making a noticeable effort to administer and enforce the liquor law, but notwithstanding all the vigilance used the law is still violated. We are of the opinion that in addition to the fines now imposed, the strongest deterrent to the violations of the law would be to cancel the license on the first willful infraction of the law. While we know that men cannot be made sober by law, we fully realize that it is the duty of the state to curtail the liquor traffic in whatever way will be in the best interests of the citizens generally. Both political parties in this province are now pledged to such a course of action. Whatever views men may hold as to what is the best policy to pursue on this question there is still, and will ever be, the necessity of teaching and preaching the great truth of the Gospel, that if we are to attain to our highest manhood, mentally, morally, physically, and spiritually, we must learn to be temperate in all things."

For the greater part of the morning the Anglican Synod battled over the adoption of a clause in the report of its social and moral reform, recommending that the Government be requested to enact legislation compelling any hotelkeeper to forfeit his license on first conviction of a violation of the liquor act.

No sooner had the clause been read than A. H. Backus, of Aylmer, arose and moved that it would be stricken out, precipitating a discussion which continued for more than an hour, and which resulted in the striking out of the clause.

The defeat of the recommendation was largely due to Police Magistrate J. C. Judd, who spoke against it at some length.

No Politics, He Says.
Mr. Judd began his address by expressing his intention to speak from a standpoint of political prejudice, but to consider the question purely from its moral and legal aspects. He did, however, express himself in the following language:

"If I were Premier of Canada I would not say abolish the bar, I should say abolish the room behind the bar, and prohibit the selling of liquor in small quantities by the wholesale dealers. I would not abolish the bar, I would have an open bar, but I would make it impossible for the workman to buy liquor for two or three of his associates as well as himself. I would do away with the treating system."

The clause in question, which was presented as part of the committee report by Chairman (Rev.) T. R. Travis, was accepted as originally presented with the exception of one sentence:

"We are of the opinion that in addition to the fines now imposed, the strongest deterrent to infractions of the law would be to cancel the license on the first willful infraction of the law."

This, in the opinion of Mr. Backus, Mr. Judd and others, was calculated to speak on the subject declared that the passage of such a measure would virtually deprive the magistrate of his power of suspension of sentence on first offences in deserving case, not only in hotel, but in all in the nature of law infractions, because "what is fair for one is fair for all."

"The trouble we have with drunkenness is not the fault of the bar," said Mr. Judd. "It is the fault of the bottle which the workman buys at the liquor store and takes home." The rest of Mr. Judd's speech was largely an argument against the clause.
