He said: Perhap: I am prejudiced in their favor, for I bave been some years a farmer myself, not always a very successful one, I am afraid, but that is to be explained by the fact that I have not attended as closely to my business as I might. But if I am interested in farmers generally. I have a special interest of the sentence of the sentence of the sentence of the infarmers generally. I have a special interest of the sentence of the sen dress presented to Lord Landowne this that I have not attended as closely to my business as I might. But if I am interested in farmers generally, I have a special inter-est in the farmers of Canada. There is to begin with one matter about them which is remarkable in my eyes as a new comer here. In this country it is very rare to find one who does not own it. This is of course not who does not own it. This is of course not the moment for enquiring into the circum-stances which have led to this difference, but I may at any rate express my conviction that the largeness of the number of those who are absolute owners of Canadian soil has given strength and solidity to the basis has given strength and solidity to the basis of Canadian society, and my regret is that in the old country we have not more farmers who like you farm land which is their own property. It is the cultivators of the soil who have been and are still carrying civilization and order into the waste places of the dominion and building up the foundation of that national greatness which it has acquired and will yet acquire in a still greater degree.

Mr. McMurrich said he looked upon this as a declaration of war against the railways. He was met with the unanimous reply that it was not so to be constructed. It was merely a precautionary measure. If the railways came to a suitable settlement among themselves it would not be necessary to build the street and the legislation named above would not be scught. It was then resolved that if the railways were not heard from in two weeks notice would be given for such legislation merely to be prepared. If, however, a suitable arrangement is made before the meeting of parliament two months hence nothing will be done.

The trouble was that the students had been refused admittance to the gallery, which had hitherto been set apart for them. This time the gallery was reserved for ladies. Having no place to go, the students crowded round the entrance and under the gallery, forming a phalanx, through which the procession could not penetrate. For some minutes the dressed the meeting. But they offered nothing definite. "Mr. Hickson" said Mr. Wragge was negotiating with the Credit Valley for different schemes. There would be a certain measure of relief from crowding on the street when the new Grand Trunk yard at York was finished a month hence. Cars that were now delayed opposite the city front would then be passed out to the York yard and shunted or sorted. The matter of enlarging Union station was also being considered. Mr. Whyte said the Grand Trunk had broken faith with the Credit Valley. The latter road could get me relief as yet, although he had numerous interviews with Mr. Hickson.

A long discussion followed which was concluded by Ald. Baxter moving a resolution to the effect that inastauch as the railway representatives had offered nothing definite the meeting adjours subject to the call of the mayor. The aldermen did not at all take kindly to this resolution and Mayor Boswell moved in amendment that "in the opinion of this comm the a street south of the Esplanade, at least 40 feet in width, is indispensible in carrying out the improvement which is necessary on the Esplanade to make it tree from the great danger to the public which now exists, and that the committee be instructed to prepare a petition to the legislature asking for such legislation of feet of the legislature asking for such legislation of the legislature asking for such legislation of the legislature asking for such legislation of the scholars of the credit valley.

Police Court Fenetiliags.

David Kehoe and Ben Bontuille, who were found trespassing at Union station, were discharged. Charles Gleeson, held on A start was then made for the residence of Ald. Walker in St. James' square, where man, Mr. and Mrs N. W. Hoyles. There was a large number of other arrivals of ladies and gentlemen who came, not to wish the bridge and groom happiness over the festive board, but in the divertisements of Terpsichorean art to the tuneful strains of O Bernier's orchestra.

The presents to the bride were as numerous as they were handsome and unique. The employes of the Walker house paid tribute in a beautiful silver tea service, second in value only to the gift of the bride's father of a set of diamond jewels.

The happy couple left at 11 45 for a trip to New York and other eastern cities. Bon voyage.

The annual concert of the Irish Protestant suits, blankets, flannels, etc., were disposed of was really astonishing; in fact a reporter who happened to drop in for a few minutes, opened his eyes and mouth "so wide" that even at the hour of going to press (3 o'clock a.m.) he has not fully succeeded in closing them.

Retirement of Capt. Baker.

The members of K company university rifles and the volunteers generally of Toronto will learn with regret that Capt. Baker has signified his intention of severing his connection with the company, over which he has so ably been the head for the past five years. The duties of the double registrar of the university and college render this step necessary. The command will, no doubt, fall on Lieut. Acheson of the collegiate institute. attractions the audience was not as large as but it appears to have been strained; she betrayed a tendency to flat in all her pieces which somewhat marred her performance.
