The C.P.R. Tel. Co., who have been supplying the corn exchange with reports since the Chicago board discontinued the service, stopped the service to-day pending an arrangement with the local Board of Trade. As the telegraph company can obtain larger revenue by supplying private customers who otherwise would obtain their in information from the bu letins, their terms are likely to be too high to meet the views of the executive, and Chicago quotations henceforth are apt to be conspicuous by their absence.
